WINSTON ADMITS MISTAKES BY NRA BUT SAYS IDEA IS BASICALLY SOUND

ing New Theory of Wages

World War Times.

Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Hugh Johnson, NRA Administrator, at a meeting tonight said that he is above all a time to be faithful and fair.

Labor has had plenty to complain of in NRA, he said. "So has industry."

Johnson can't inaugurate a new system of economic relations without making mistakes, but the essential point is not the mistakes. It is the new system itself.

Johnson said he has faith in that the attack is not NRA, but the mistakes of NRA. He said he has his heart in the principle of NRA and instead of resisting the attack on the mistakes of NRA I think it. That is the only way to what I believe about 90 per cent of the people in the country truly hope for.

He promised that "by the first year there will be a new and equally important nationwide plan for compliance that will be the policy in the first paragraph of NRA."

For co-operative action.
Johnson said the provision relating to the elimination of unfair competition and to the full utilization of industry's productive capacity, Johnson said:
"Any executive has a duty to examine the law as he finds it, with sympathy and common sense. What NRA supposed to do?
Well, it is to promote the organization of industry in trade
groups for co-operative action.
That we have tried to do with force at our command and have been roundly criticized for it is to induce and maintain action of labor and management under adequate governmental supervision and in the zones of the stated policy.
I think this is the most important clause of all."

DISTILLERS SPEED OPERATIONS FOR REPEAL TUESDAY

American Plants Working at Full Blast—Fast Boats Being Loaded in Foreign Ports.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Domestic distilleries were moving at full blast and importers were having liquor loaded on fast boats in foreign ports today in a hurried effort to meet the expected demand for legal spirits Tuesday on presidential proclamation of repeal.

President Roosevelt will return
from his vacation at Warm Springs, Ga., to receive notification that the necessary 36 states have ratified
the twenty-first amendment repealing prohibition. He plans to issue his proclamation immediately on that notification.

Acting Secretary of State Phillips
today asked the Governors of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah to inform him immediately of the results of the repeal conventions to be held in those states Tuesday. Thirty-three states already have ratified.

The President and the State Department's proclamation are to be issued simultaneously. In a move to prevent interference with their issuance, the Government today
asked the dismissal of legal proceedings that have been brought in the District of Columbia Supreme Court to block the action.

Arguments on a petition filed by Cannon William Shufelt Chase, Jr., Brooklyn contending the method of ratification of repeal was unconstitutional have been set for Monday.
The Justice Department today contended the petition had no legal basis and that it should have been brought in the states and not
brought in the states and not brought in the states.

Completion of the liquor industry under the Federal Alcohol Control Administration was assured today by the signing of the import code by President Roosevelt at Warm Springs. It gives the Administration power to regulate the volume, origin and types of liquors to be imported. The distillers' code has been in effect for nearly a week. The final draft of the brewing code was made today by the President's Interdepartmental Alcohol Committee.

600 Import Permits Issued.
About half of the 1200 applications of importers had been passed on by representatives of the Agriculture and Treasury departments and supervision of a 30-hour shipment of between four and five million gallons of spirits and wines
from foreign ports.

CANADIAN COURT ORDERS RETURN OF M. J. INSULL TO U. S.

Sam's Brother Obtains Habeas Corpus Hearing
After Ontario Judge
Grants Chicago Request.

By the Associated Press.
TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 2.—The National Industrial Recovery Act was held unconstitutional insofar as it attempts to control local industry in an opinion today by Federal Judge Alexander Akerman.

In the first ruling by a Federal Court on the question, Judge Ak-erman held that the act itself might have valid standing in matters of interstate commerce and perhaps
as a restricted emergency measure,
but the Federal Constitution, he said, gave the national government
no authority "to invade the reserve
power of the states" in regulation of a local industry even in an emergency.

The decision was in a suit brought by cleaning and dyeing companies of St. Petersburg seeking to force a competitor to charge prices agreed on for the Tampa "redie area, which includes St. Petersburg in accordance with provisions of the cleaning and dyeing code.

"No Authority in Constitution."
"If the operator of a local cleaning and dyeing establishment, or what is commonly called a pressing club, is to be construed as coming within the purview of the act of Congress commonly known as the National Industrial Recovery Act," said the Judge. "Then I am bound to hold that Congress has no power under the Constitution to enact the National Industrial Recovery Act."

He did not mean to hold that the National Industrial Recovery Act in its entirety is without constitutional authority, but merely to hold that if it is to be construed as authorizing the regulation of a local pressing club, then there is no authority in the Constitution for the enactment of the same.

The bill of complaint was brought on behalf of J. F. Purcell, Carlisle Campbell, Jack Fuchs and others of St. Petersburg to restrain Samuel Bazemore, operator of three cleaning and dyeing shops, from diverting prices said to be lower than those in force for the trade area.

Judge Akerman refused even a temporary restraining order, however, on the ground that the bill of complaint did not state a case of action within the jurisdiction of the United States District Court. He held that Congress had no right to interfere with a local business and that the Federal Court had no such right.

Not in Interstate Commerce.
In his opinion, Judge Akerman said: "Section 1 of the National Industrial Recovery Act attempts to justify the enactment of the same upon two theories: One is to remove obstructions to the free flow
of interstate and foreign commerce and the other is in the time of an emergency to provide for the general welfare by promoting the organization of industry for the purpose of co-operative action among trade groups. It is contended by counsel for complainants that neither the complainants nor the defendant are engaged in interstate commerce and without such commerce it would acquire a stretch of imagination beyond the power of this court to conceive that a local industry engaged in the pressing, cleaning and dyeing of clothes was engaged in interstate commerce."

"So if the code for this industry is to be justified under the Constitution, it must be upon the ground that an emergency exists which would justify congress in attempting to regulate a purely intrastate business and I can find no authority in the Constitution which authorizes the national Government in any emergency to depart
from its constitutional function and invade the reserve power of the states."

SENATOR BROGAN RENEWES FIGHT TO MAKE BARS LEGAL

Because of Previous Vote to Strike Out Liquor Bill Amendment, Motion May Be Ruled Out.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 2.—Senator Brogan of St. Louis encountered a parliamentary obstacle late today when he attempted to amend the Senate liquor control bill to re-establish the old mahogany bar
as a fixture of the saloon of the future. Unless a way is found around the difficulty bars will be prohibited in Missouri saloons.

The Senator advised a final decision on his motion over the weekend by asking that it be held in abeyance. He hopes to find authorities before the Senate reconvenes Monday which will permit
the motion to go to a vote.

The section of the bill to which the Senator objected and which he sought to amend is:
"No dealer licensed here under shall maintain or suffer to be maintained or kept in, upon or about his premises, or in any room connected therewith, any fixture or ordinarily described as a bar, and it shall be the duty of the supervisor of liquor control and all peace officers of this State to vigorously enforce every provision of this act
in order to abolish the 'speakeasy'
and to prevent the return of the saloon, as these terms are commonly known."

Throughout a week of debate
the question of the return of the saloon has been discussed frequently, and time after time Senators have pointed to the two party platforms which declared against the saloon.

Senator Brogan, speaking for his amendment, pointed out that the platform of the Republican party in 1920 contained no mention of abolishing bars, and denounced the "hypocrisy of those who are attempting to delude the people on this question."

According to the dictionary, the Senator said, "a saloon is a place where intoxicating liquor is sold and drunk." A saloon will be a saloon whether it has a bar or whether it has tables, or whether it has, or neither, or both, or what difference does it make whether liquor is sold and drunk in it?

To Sit or to Stand.
"I have information that a number of empty buildings in St. Louis will be fitted up in expensive manner as restaurants and saloons if this Legislature passes a sensible law."

"It is the purest kind of bunk for us to solemnly pass an act permitting the sale of liquor and providing that the drinker must sit down to drink it. What difference does it make whether a drinker stands at a bar or sits at a table.
About the only difference I can see
is that the tendency of a crowd seated around a table will be to drink lot more liquor than if standing at a bar."

Senator Jones of Dunklin raised the point of order against Brogan's amendment. He directed attention to the fact that Senator Terry of Jefferson County several days ago offered an amendment to strike out the entire section and that the amendment was defeated.
Lieutenant-Governor Harris, presiding, informally sustained the point that an amendment could not be offered to a section which had previously been sustained by a vote of the Senate, but withheld an official ruling to afford Brogan an opportunity to present authorities.
Bill Behind Schedule.
When the Senate adjourned late today on Monday, the liquor bill
on which it has been working all week, was far from completion. A number of amendments are pending and many others are to be offered.

UTILTY MAN CALM, READS FROM BIBLE

Justice Comments "Clear
Prima Facie Case of Theft
Has Been Made Out by Demanding States."

By the Associated Press.
TORONTO, Dec. 2.—The appeal of Cook County, Illinois, for the return of Martin J. Insull to face trial in connection with the collapse of the Insull utilities system was granted today by Justice A. C.
Kinstone of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The legal fight for his extradition which began Oct. 6, 1932, when he was arrested at Barrie, Ont., went into its final phase next Friday, when Justice H. H. Davis hears a motion for his release under a writ of habeas corpus.

Immediately after Justice King-stone announced his finding that the charges named were extradi-
table, Insull's counsel, J. C. McRuer and I. F. Hellmuth, applied for a writ of habeas corpus in order to reopen proceedings by way of appeal to review the evidence.

Justice Kingstone said that the Court granted the writ and on Mc-Ruer's application granted an adjournment until Dec. 8. Bail was set at $10,000, with the agreement of Edward Bayley, counsel for Cook County.

He Reads Bible.
Insull took today's decision
calmly.
"No; not a thing," he told reporters who sought his comment.
He picked up a Bible and read slowly to himself in a low voice.
It was understood he would return to Orillia, Ont., where he has lived the last 18 months, to await the Dec. 8 hearing.

Cook County sought his return to face charges of "embezzlement larceny by baillee, and larceny" of $344,720 and $66,000 from the Middle West Utilities Co. and $104,222
from the Mississippi Valley Investment Co.

These concerns were links in the utilities chain organized by his brother, Samuel Insull, who fled to Athens, Greece. The Greek Court of Appeals twice refused to grant an American request for Samuel In-sull's extradition.

Reviewing the case today, Justice Kingstone said it was shown that Martin Insull had used large funds "without any color of rights"
to pay brokerage transactions and that "deliberate effort had been made to disguise the transactions
with the companies' funds."

The Justice added that there
"seemed to be a fraudulent conversion" and that he was not attempting to prejudge the case since In-sull "might have perfectly good answers to the charges."

MARRIED TWO MEN IN TWO MONTHS

By the Associated Press.
RITA GENTRY, 19, of Chicago, had considerable explaining to do Dec.
1, after she revealed she had married two men in less than two months. Here she is as she was photographed in Felony court. Last Sept.
18 she became the bride of Carl Bishop, 22, at a church ceremony. Saint
S. Millard, 32, told police he eloped to Valparaiso, Ind., with Rita on Armistice day. The wife explained her second husband worked nights and the other days. She got along fine until a Thanksgiving reunion upset her dual role.

President Roosevelt's two weeks visit here ends tomorrow. Tonight he cleaned up his table in the cottage on Pine Mountain with the signature of the liquor import code.
He will reach Washington Monday with a complete plan established to control the liquor industry
following repeal of prohibition Tuesday.

Roosevelt had a log-fire burning in the cottage this morning for one of the few times during his visit here. A bright sun and summer weather has prevailed during most of the stay.

The President again said in response to inquiries that he was contemplating no change in his monetary policy and that no new move was in prospect in his campaign for a "managed currency." He showed some surprise at the suggestion that he discuss the monetary issue in a speech next Wednesday before the Federal Council of Churches in Washington. He said
a secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre, indicated the address would be confined to a religious theme.

The President's special train will leave here tomorrow morning.

TOPEKA BANK HEAD ONE OF 7 INDICTED IN BOND FRAUD

C. W. McKeen, President of Town's Biggest Depository; Tom Boyd, Ex-
Treasurer of State, Two Finneys Among Accused.

By the Associated Press.
TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 2.—Seven persons, including Carl W. McKeen, president of the largest bank in Topeka, were indicted today by a Federal grand jury for participation in the million dollar Kansas bond forgery case.

McKeen, head of the National Bank of Topeka, was accused of joining Tom Boyd, former State Treasurer; W. W. Finney, Emporia bank president already facing a prison sentence for embezzlement,
and Ronald Finney, W. W. Finney's son, in misapplying $146,172 in bank funds.

Also indicted were C. L. Cooke, president of the Prudential Investment Co.—a former affiliate of the National Bank of Topeka; Collis Harner, bookkeeper in the investment company; and Leland Caldwell, assistant in the bond brokerage business of Ronald Finney.

Boyd resigned as State Treasurer three months ago upon the request of Gov. Alf M. Landon. Two other State officials, Roland Boynton, Attorney General, and Will J.
French, State Auditor, have been impeached by the House of Representatives and face trial before the Senate.

Accused of False Entries.
Cooke and Harner were indicted
today for making false entries.
Cooke also was charged with converting $10,000 in Treasury bonds to the use of Ronald Finney. The two Finneys, Boyd and Caldwell,
were charged with using the mails
to defraud in additional indictments.

Boyd, who said when the scandal
was discovered last summer that he discovered Ronald Finney "was a brother, but he lied to me," had admitted he gave the younger Finney access to vaults of the State Treasury. There, investigators have said, Finney obtained copies of bonds
which later were forced in duplicate. Part of the bonds were accepted by the State as security for deposits in banks with which W.
W. Finney was connected. Three of these banks—at Emporia, Neosho Falls and Eureka—were closed.

The elder Finney, known in Emporia for years as a civic leader,
was sentenced yesterday to 12 consecutive prison terms, ranging from three to 50 years. He was convicted of embezzling $83,000 from the Fidelity State and Savings Bank, Emporia, depository of which he was the head. He was released under bond pending appeal on the State charges.

Ronald Finney Accused Before.
Ronald Finney, who lived in an expensive Topeka hotel suite before his arrest last summer, previously had been named both in State and Federal charges, as also had Boyd and Caldwell. Federal charges filed several months ago accused the men of using the mails in a scheme to defraud Jackson Brothers, Bos-
sell & Co., Chicago brokerage house,
through the deposit of spurious
bonds. Finney was alleged in State charges to have presented forged bonds to the National Bank of Topeka.

Approximately $1,000,000 of spurious bonds, all purporting to have been issued by Kansas municipalities, have been uncovered by investigators. The exact amount of loss to the State or individual business houses will not be known, investigators said, until actions against various officials are completed.
Sundry bonds probably will make up part of the loss.

MISS JANE HINKS has been selected to represent the Pacific Ocean in the court of beauties who will rule over the annual Pasadena Tournament of Roses. Handed by the Queen of the Seven Seas, yet to be chosen, the pretty Princesses of the court will represent the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, the Red, Mediterranean, Caribbean and China seas and the Indian Ocean in the ceremonies which will inaugurate the celebrated New Year's floral festival, which will have as its theme this year the "Tales of the Seven Seas."

DISTILLERS SPEED OPERATIONS FOR REPEAL TUESDAY

ously pending negotiation of trade pacts. Harold D. Picker, a New York importer, said "we have received assurances that the allotments will be increased if the foreign governments agree with the Government on trade pacts that will assure disposition of some of our surplus products."

Canadian Quota Allotted. A quota has been allotted for imports of Canadian liquor but officials declined to discuss it. Regulations were being drawn by the Customs and Internal Revenue Bureau to control the bringing in of liquor from Canada at border points.

Under existing law, American citizens may bring in foreign products of less than $100 in value. The regulations are understood to be drawn to prevent individuals from making several trips a day across the border at Detroit, Buffalo and other points.

A part of the President's liquor program includes levies low enough to encourage the consumption of beer and wines.

Representatives of the distillers have reported they have on hand about 4,500,000 gallons of aged domestic whisky. Through rectification and blending this could be multiplied four or five times. The whisky figure is exclusive of 224,721 gallons of rum; 305,061 of gin; 1,768,809 of brandy; 22,311,164 of grain alcohol and around 70,000,000 gallons of wine.

The Government has already taken steps to license imports of about 4,000,000 gallons up to Feb. 1. After that import quotas will be assigned to the various countries on the basis of concessions they make for the admittance of American agricultural products.

In many cities in the 22 states where liquor may be sold after repeal, distillers and wholesalers having liquor available for the market prepared to hurry deliveries to hotels, restaurants and other places of sale.

Only about 15,000,000 gallons of the 25,000,000 gallons of whisky and spirits in the United States is ready for consumption, Dr. James M. Doran, Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol, said. Of the whole quantity, only 1,000,000 gallons is more than four years old, he added.

KANSAS CITY SLAYER MOVED AFTER THREATS OF LYNCHING

Killed Girl, 16, Taken to State Prison.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 2.—Immediately after he had said that he was going to leave the city, Paul Kauffman, attacker and murderer of a girl 16 years ago of Avis Woolery, was moved from his quarters in the city to the State Penitentiary at Jefferson City today. Kauffman remained there until the Supreme Court passed on his appeal from the death sentence given him in his second trial.

The Circuit Judges appointed one of their number, Judge Emory H. Hight, to appear before the County Court Monday to support Sheriff Hight's plea that more deputies were needed to guard the county jail.

Kauffman, 35 years old, lured Woolery, 16, to Kansas City from Webb City, Mo., and shot and killed her in August, 1930, in a park. He was tried and sentenced to death. The Supreme Court passed on his appeal of that sentence before the State Supreme Court.

GRAND NATIONAL BANK EXPECTED TO OPEN IN 10 DAYS

President Ed Mays Makes Announcement After Washington Approves Reorganization.

Approval of a reorganization plan for the Grand National Bank was announced in Washington yesterday by the Treasury Department. Ed Mays, president of the bank, said he expected it would be open within 10 days. Since the March banking holiday it has been in charge of a conservator.

Mays said the bank's 10,000 depositors who have $1,774,000 in it would get 100 cents on the dollar, with interest at 6 per cent since March. They will not be asked to take stock or participation certificates in non-liquid assets, he said.

Details of the reorganization plan were not announced and Mays said they would not be made public as they do not call for any sacrifice on the part of depositors.

From one connected with the bank who would not permit use of his name it was learned that a new bank will be organized to take over the liquid assets of the present Grand National Bank. The R. F. C. will make a loan against the non-liquid assets not to be taken into the new bank, he said, and a second loan from another source will be obtained on some of the assets.

Information was not available on where new capital for the reorganized bank would be obtained. Soon after the March banking holiday the Continental Life Insurance Co., of which Mays is president also, obtained a ruling from Attorney General McKittick that it could legally lend $300,000 to its holding firm, the March National Bank & Holding Co., which would then organize the new bank with capital of $300,000 and surplus of $60,000.

Insurance Superintendent O'Malley declined yesterday to say whether that plan had been put into effect and Mays would not discuss it. The Continental Life Insurance Co. has about $1,016,000 on deposit in the Grand National and in Wellston Trust Co., with which it is connected.

The Wellston Trust Co. has been closed since March, with its reorganization plans awaiting disposition of the plan for Grand National. The plan presented to Attorney General McKittick contemplated that the Continental Securities & Holding Co. would assign its stock in the new Grand National Bank to Wellston Trust Co. to enable that bank to reopen.

While the Grand National Bank has been in charge of a conservator he has received deposits of $128,000 which have been held in a special fund and are not subject to restrictions as to withdrawal. Capital of the present Grand National Bank is $700,000.

NEW 4-STORY SHELTER FOR HOMELESS MEN

Building at 2207 Chestnut to Replace One Now Being Wrecked.

New quarters for homeless men will be opened tomorrow by the Citizens' Committee in a four-story building at 2207 Chestnut street, formerly used as a shoe factory.

The new shelter, to be known as "Chestnut Lodge," will replace the Municipal Lodging House, now being wrecked to clear Memorial Plaza. For the present only one floor will be used, but the potential capacity is about 1000.

The old Municipal Lodging House, at Fourteenth and Pine streets, had bunks for 1300. During the seven years it was used for that purpose, 1,132,207 men were sheltered there and more than 2,500,000 free meals were served.

Much of its equipment has been transferred to Chestnut Lodge, which has facilities superior to those of the lodging house. Among them are a barber shop, ample shower baths and complete equipment for washing and disinfecting clothes.

Other quarters for homeless men are available at Ozanam Shelter, operated by the St. Vincent de Paul Society in the old buildings of Mulanphy Hospital, Coleman and Montgomery streets. These have proved less popular than the Municipal Lodging House, however, as those who stay there are required to remain on the grounds during the day unless they have a good reason for leaving.

Many of the homeless men prefer to be free during the day and early evening to beg on the streets, and these have avoided Ozanam Shelter. On cold nights they have slept in police stations.

Killed in Crash of Plane.

SUITS OVER MO. STATE LIFE SALE UNDER ADVERTISEMENT

Two Policyholders Charge Conspiracy in General American Deal; 20 Days to File Briefs.

Motions to dismiss two suits by policyholders in the Missouri State Life Insurance Co., seeking to set aside the sale of assets of the company to the General American Life Insurance Co., were taken under advisement by Federal Judge Davis yesterday after he heard arguments of counsel.

The complainants, represented by the law firm of Jeffries, Simpson & Plummer, charged the sale of assets was brought about through a conspiracy. Earl F. Nelson, representative of the General American Life Insurance Co., argued the complainants had not set up sufficient jurisdictional averments in their petitions. Judge Davis gave the parties 20 days in which to file briefs.

TREE FROM WHICH ST. JOSEPH NEGRO WAS LYNCHED CUT DOWN

Removed as "Unpleasant" Reminder and Because It Blocked Traffic, Mayor Says.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 2.—The tree from which Lloyd Warner, Negro youth, was hanged by a mob here Tuesday night, was cut down today at the order of Mayor John Schuler.

The tree was removed, Schuler explained, because of its "unpleasant" reminder of the lynching and because it attracted visitors causing traffic to be blocked. Warner, 19, had attacked a white girl.

Police today arrested a man suspected of being the leader of the mob. Officers of W. O. Sawyers, Assistant Attorney-General, questioned the man after another person, held as one of the mob, had identified him as one of the leaders.

Police said the second man accused the first of being the one who fastened a log chain to the rail door and then caused a heavy truck to pull the iron door from its hinges. The man denied leading the mob but admitted being in the crowd.

Sawyers said warrants would be issued Monday.

WIFE ACCIDENTALLY SHOTS HUSBAND WITH REVOLVER

Showing Him Old Weapon She Found in Box of Papers When It Is Discharged.

Hilmar Miller, 5130A Wabada avenue, was shot in the back last night when an old revolver held by his wife was discharged accidentally as she approached him to inquire whether he had had it fixed. The bullet entered his back beneath the left shoulder and lodged in his chest. At DePaul Hospital it was said the wound was not serious.

Mrs. Miller said she came across the revolver when going through a box of family papers and took it to her husband, who was shaving in the bathroom of their home, recalling that he had mentioned recently that the weapon was rusty and might explode if it were fired.

Miller, an automobile body worker, is 42 years old. His 19-year-old daughter, Mildred, was in another room when the shooting occurred and went with her father to the hospital. Mrs. Miller became hysterical.

SENATOR BROGAN RENEWS FIGHT TO LEGALIZE BARS

see of Kansas City. It prohibited blinds, screens or other obstructions to public view in places where liquor was sold.

Senator Kinney of St. Louis presented an amendment to give the Governor, instead of the State Treasurer, the power to appoint the State supervisor but he did not press the amendment. Permitting it to lie over until Monday.

Even after the Senate bill is passed in that branch of the Legislature which can hardly come before the end of the week, it must go to the House for action. The tendency in the House votes is to keep the bill from coming to a vote. It has been steadily against licensing the selling of liquor by the drink. The important feature of the Senate bill.

Deadlock in Sight.

It appears now probable that the House will amend many features of the Senate bill, and that the Senate will refuse to concur in the House amendments. This will mean a deadlock, and it may be that an entirely new liquor bill will be written in a conference committee consisting of three members of each House.

When a bill finally is worked out there is no assurance that it will go into effect before the latter part of March or early in April. To become effective immediately upon its passage and signing by the Governor, it must contain an emergency clause. A two-thirds vote in each House is required for the adoption of an emergency clause, and that will mean 23 votes in the Senate and 100 in the House.

Failure of the emergency clause will make the bill inoperative until 90 days after the adjournment of the Legislature.

Mauna Loa in Eruption, Most Violent Since 1903

Crater of 12,600-Foot Volcano on Island of Hawaii Sends Up Smoke Column Visible for 200 Miles

By the Associated Press.

HILO, Hawaii, Dec. 2.—The greatest eruption of a Hawaiian volcano since 1903 occurred in Mauna Loa today to the accompaniment of sharp earthquakes.

Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, volcanologist and director of Kilauea Observatory, returned tonight after a day-long horseback trip to the top of the 12,675-foot peak and described a mile square area of seething lava fountains in the Mokuweoweo pit at the summit.

From the center of the pit to a point a mile southward, said Dr. Jaggar, thousands of lava fountains bubbled from which arose a three-mile column of smoke to the accompaniment of what he described as a "brooding roar." The column was visible 200 miles.

Old Hawaiians said Pele, Hawaiian goddess of fire and the volcano, was stirring in her long sleep.

The signs of renewed activity on Mauna Loa were greeted with joy by the inhabitants of this and the other Hawaiian Islands, to whom Pele's visits mean thrills, spectacular sights, lots of tourist trade—but no danger.

Dr. Jaggar had predicted an eruption of Mauna Loa or Kilauea—the two volcanoes are part of the same volcanic system—before the end of the year and had been

PROF. FISHER ATTACKS 'ILLUSION' OF BANKERS

He Says They Can't Forget President's Remarks About "Money Changers."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Declaring that the "baloney dollar" is not the dollar of tomorrow—it's the dollar of yesterday," Prof. Irving Fisher said "tomorrow's dollar will be straight goods" if no one trips the President.

The Yale economist, addressing the Young America Institute, attacked the "money illusion" of bankers and gave praise to the monetary program of the administration.

"I can see several reasons for the special hostility of American bankers toward Mr. Roosevelt and his hold, but absolutely sound and studious monetary policy," he said, adding:

"In the first place, many bankers are smarting under their recent dose of unpopularity, and they can not forget that Mr. Roosevelt took office with a remark about money changers. In the second place, they fear that some of their business will get into the hands of the Government. Already, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, inherited from Mr. Hoover, is taking over some of their work."

"But chiefly, the bankers swear by gold. Gold in their tradition of stability. And the President to them seems to be tampering with something sacred."

"This view of gold is part of what I call the 'money illusion' and this illusion affects practically without exception, every human being who has not specialized in the science of money."

Only a handful of people in the world, Prof. Fisher said, "have even an inkling of the meaning of money. Only a minority of economists have studied the subject exhaustively. A smaller proportion of bankers have even reflected on it and a still smaller proportion of business men."

Among the "notable exceptions," the Yale economist listed Prof. George Warren of Cornell, mon-

WOMAN FIRES TWO SHOTS AT INTRUDER IN HER STORE

Man, Whom Employee Had Seen Enter Basement, Flees as She Shoots.

Miss Betty Pfeiffer, proprietor of a confectionery at 6218 Clayton avenue, fired two shots at a man found in the basement of her store last night.

The man was first observed by Miss Alta Jackson, an employee at the confectionery, who passed him as she entered the basement by outside stairs. She informed Miss Pfeiffer, who seized a revolver and caught up with the man at the alley. Pressing the pistol against him, she ordered him to walk around to the front, "so I can get a look at you."

Instead, the man broke away and fled. Nothing had been taken from the basement.

$6,475,000 PWA FUND FOR COUNTY SEWERS SOUGHT

Business Recovery Organization Files Application for Grant and Loan With Hugh Miller.

DEPENDS ON PASSAGE OF HOUSE BILL 88

Request Tentatively Accepted, Though Engineer Understands County Court Plans Similar Action.

Application for a loan of $5,400,000 and a grant of $1,075,000 to build sanitary trunk sewers in St. Louis County, was filed yesterday with Col. Hugh Miller, State PWA Engineer, by the County Business Recovery Organization.

The loan represents the estimated cost of the sewers, and the grant, based on 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials, would be held to pay interest and amortization charges on the loan for three years to avoid an increase in taxes during that period.

Miller tentatively accepted the application, although he understands the St. Louis County Court intends to file one of its own. The proposal of the County Business Recovery Organization, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, is in preliminary form and anticipates the passage of House Bill No. 88, pending in the Legislature, which would authorize the formation of a metropolitan sewer district in the county. The County Court also has a sewer bill in the Legislature, but it is not likely to pass.

Suggested Boundaries.

Plans for the sewer system favored by the Chamber of Commerce were drawn by W. W. Horner, consulting engineer and member of the PWA Technical Advisory Board. The boundaries of the district will be determined ultimately by the Circuit Court, but Horner suggests the western boundary would roughly follow State Highway No. 77; the southern boundary, Gravois Creek; the northern boundary, Marine Creek; and the eastern boundary, the city limits of St. Louis. Parts of Richmond Heights, Clayton and University City which now have sewers discharging into St. Louis sewers would be excluded. A district so laid out, Horner estimates, would have an assessed valuation of $140,000,000. Assuming that the grant would be used to service the debt, Horner figures there would be no expense to taxpayers for three years and that the first levy, to be made probably

Martin Luther Celebration in German Capital

OBSERVANCES of the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther were held throughout Germany on Nov. 19, 1933. A huge festive meeting took place at the Lustgarten, in Berlin, where the above photograph was made.

In 1939, would be on the basis of 35 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation. The annual tax levy on a 10-acre tract of unimproved land assessed at $100 an acre, he points out, would be only $3.50 a year, and the owner of a small home, assessed at $1500, would pay about $5 a year.

High Estimate on Prices. In estimating the cost, Horner figured on construction of 104 miles of sewers and calculated prices 25 per cent higher than those which prevailed this year, adding as a general contingency allowance an additional 8 per cent.

He anticipates that necessary preliminaries could be disposed of by May 1, and that construction could begin then and continue for 20 months, employing an average of 1250 men each month.

Only sanitary sewers are contemplated, with no provision for drainage of storm water. Ultimately, Horner believes, it will be desired to build additional sanitary trunk sewers and to establish a separate drainage system for surface water. Continued use of the present creeks and water courses to carry surface water is recommended. Horner regards the present plan as the minimum necessary to remove raw sewage from creeks, to provide outlets for lateral sewers and to produce a "reasonably sanitary" condition in the county.

Status of Lateral Sewers. No provision is made for the construction of lateral sewers. The pending legislation, however, would authorize trustees for the sewer district to assume general supervision over the construction of laterals within its boundaries. Five county towns, Kirkwood, Ferguson, Clayton, Shrewsbury and Webster Groves, have, within the last week, filed applications with the PWA for loans and grants to build lateral sewers.

The two main trunk sewers, on the north and on the south, would extend for a short distance through St. Louis to outlets in the Mississippi River. A third, which would serve the Overland district, would empty into Cold Water Creek, which passes through Bridgeton, Florissant and Lambert-St. Louis Airport. Arrangements would be made for purification of the sewage before its discharge into the creek.

The other trunk sewers would parallel streams which flow toward St. Louis. These would be connected with the St. Louis sewer system. Preliminary negotiations have established that satisfactory arrangements for this service can be made with the city of St. Louis, Horner said.

SHOTGUNS VALUED AT $545 STOLEN FROM SHOP-WINDOW

Two Weapons Taken From Store Across Street From Police Headquarters.

Breaking two large plate glass windows, thieves took two shotguns, valued at $545, from the Browning Arms Co., across the street from Police Headquarters, early yesterday.

Each gun was on display in a separate lighted window on the Spruce street side of the building at Twelfth street. A private watchman inside the building said he heard a noise at 3 a. m. but finding nothing unusual, continued on his round. An hour later he discovered the theft. Attempts had been made to cut holes in the glass but the panes had been shattered.

Both guns were .12-gauge arms, one, gold inlaid, being valued at $248 and the other, engraved, at $297. The loss was insured.

JURORS PRAYED, THEN FOUND SHANK GUILTY

Arkansas Farmers Tell of Asking Divine Help to Reach Decision.

By the Associated Press.

BENTON, Ark., Dec. 2.—Mrs. Mark H. Shank was in a state of collapse today after a jury last night convicted her husband of murder and fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair.

Shank, Akron, O. attorney, remained in the apparent stupor he showed throughout the trial, and refused to talk to any one today.

Spending a sleepless night, Mrs. Shank pleaded constantly to be near her husband. "Why can't I be with him now when he needs me most?" she sobbed.

She faintly when the verdict was read and was carried to her hotel on a stretcher. Shank's brother, Urban, also collapsed later and was unconscious for 15 minutes.

Shank's aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shank of Attie, O., remained with Mrs. Shank. Credited by defense lawyers with having worked unceasingly in her husband's behalf since he was arrested last August for the poison murders of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Coley and their two children near here, Mrs. Shank pleaded to remain here at least until he is formally sentenced next Thursday if a motion for a new trial is overruled by Circuit Judge Thomas E. Toler.

After that, she hopes to find work here or at Little Rock so she may be near him.

Prayer was resorted to by the jury which convicted Shank. Shortly after the jury of farmers was given the case yesterday afternoon, one member suggested they engage in prayer inasmuch as they held a man's life in their hands, Foreman E. M. Banks said.

They all prayed aloud at that time, one at a time, he said. Later in the night, one juror still expressed some doubt as to whether Shank should be given the death penalty, and asked that prayer again be held. This was done and shortly afterward, the jury announced it was ready to report.

UNION OFFICIAL TO ADDRESS STRIKING LAUNDRY WORKERS

Roy Burt to Urge Inside Employees to Continue Fight for Recognition.

Roy Burt of San Francisco, president of the International Laundry Workers' Union, will address a mass meeting of laundry workers at Hibernian Hall at 2 p. m. today.

Burt said he would urge inside laundry workers to remain on strike until they receive union recognition. The international union is composed of more than 150 locals and has been recognized in many cities, Burt said. Burt called on Chairman McDonald of the St. Louis Regional Labor Board, who has endeavored to end the strike.

The union leader will leave tomorrow for Washington for a hearing on the laundry code.

Union laundry truck drivers last Wednesday ended a six weeks' strike involving 87 laundries and linen supply houses.

INHERITANCE TAX OF $11,586

State inheritance tax amounting to $11,586 was assessed against the estate of William H. V. Roeling, an electrical engineer, by an appraiser who filed his report yesterday. The appraiser found the net value of the estate for tax purposes to be $191,088.

Beneficiaries under the will are two sisters, a brother and a niece. According to an inventory filed in Probate Court, his estate was worth $266,757, but certain exemptions are allowed in determining the tax. Mr. Roeling died last Jan. 11.

CROSS-BILL TO WIFE'S DIVORCE SUIT FILED BY DR. M. L. CUSTER

Includes Charge Mate Said She Had More Regard for Negro Maid Than for Him. Dr. Matthew L. Custer, a physician with offices in the Paul Brown building, filed an answer and cross-bill to his wife's divorce petition in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday, alleging that she forced him to leave their home at 7440 University drive, University City. The cross bill alleges that Mrs.

Custer persuaded him against his will to discharge his office assistant and employ Mrs. Custer's sister, and to pay her mother $30 a month. When he objected to the continued employment of a Negro maid, the cross bill states, Mrs. Custer told him she had more regard for the servant than for him. They were married Oct. 20, 1920, and separated last June 28. After effecting a reconciliation last September, he stated, he was again ordered to leave the house after four days. Mrs. Custer's allegation that he gave her $35,000 in stocks and bonds and removed them from a safe deposit box, refusing to return them to her, was denied in the cross-bill. She charged him with general indignities and asked for

SMITH 'ALL WET' ON HARD MONEY, HEARST DECLARES

Publisher, in Radio Address, Refers to Former Presidential Candidate as 'Morgan's Political Agent.'

By the Associated Press.
SAN SIMON, Cal., Dec. 2.—William Randolph Hearst said today that President Roosevelt was striving to get the country away from the hard money of the Shylocks, and asserted that Alfred E. Smith is "all wet" in his criticism of the President's policy. The publisher, speaking on "Where is Our Money" over a National Broadcasting Co. network, said:

"Those who do not know so much about finance, but know something of human nature, think it is safer to follow Mr. Roosevelt than the international bankers who have robbed us and betrayed us in the past, and are apparently striving to establish the dollar of depression so they can plunder us again."

"The bankers want you to pay them in hard money, in blood money, and they call easy money 'baloney' money."

"Morgan's Political Agent." The phrase was invented by Mr. Morgan's political agent, Mr. Al Smith.

"Mr. Smith is all right in some ways. He is wet and does a good song and dance. But in this instance it would seem that he is all wet and is giving the public the song and dance. Mr. Smith speaks the Tammany language, and the word 'baloney' is an important part of that limited vocabulary."

"He used it in his campaign for the presidency. He said no matter how thin you cut it, it's still baloney."

"The voters cut it pretty thin for Mr. Smith in that campaign. So Mr. Smith went back to work for Wall Street."

"Easier Money for People." "Now he is campaigning for hard money. Along with Mr. Morgan, fiscal agent for the British Empire, and Mr. Sprague, American adviser of the Bank of England, and along with the international bankers generally, whose thoughts, as you all know from exposure and experience, are centered on foreign loans and big commissions, rather than on the essential interests of the American people."

"Mr. Roosevelt is striving to get the country away from the blood money of the Shylocks, away from the hard money of hard men. He is trying to make money easier for the average citizen, easier to get, easier to earn, easier to save, easier to spend. He is trying to give our people the easier money which foreign nations have already given their people."

"Dear Dollars" and the Bankers. Hearst asserted the bankers and the money-lending classes like "dear dollars" for four reasons: "First, because they have them. Second, because dear dollars buy more for them. Third, because when loans are paid the bankers get the dear dollars of depression in place of the cheap dollars they loaned in times of prosperity. Fourth, because if the loans are not paid the bankers get the property."

"Pretty soft for the bankers, say you. Naturally the money lenders like dear dollars, and they call these dear dollars sound money to make it sound good to you and me. But dear dollars are not sound money. They are blood money. The money lenders are the Shylocks who want the last letter of their bonds, and Mr. Roosevelt—a wise young judge—a Daniel come to judgment—is trying to save the country from their clutches."

"You remember Mr. Morgan's little presents to people in public life, and how gratefully they were received and with what promises of services in return. Now the bankers are calling their henchmen to render the promised service, and the henchmen are responding with loyalty to the bankers and disloyalty to the public. The light is on to establish the dear dollar, the scarce dollar, the dear dollar of depression."

BISMARCK, D., Dec. 2.—P. O. Sathre, State Attorney-General, announced today that E. J. Helmsing, State Hall Insurance Department manager, had signed a statement confessing misappropriation of $1350. Gov. William Langer ordered three National Guardsmen to take charge of the department offices last night. They were on duty today, preventing entrance of anyone not having a permit from the Governor.

Sathre announced Helmsing had been suspended from office and that he implicated a man now dead. Langer in a statement asserted signatures of two farmers had been forged to warrants totaling $1350.

Drunkenness Is a Disease

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE has successfully treated liquor and drug cases for the past fifty-four years. It is the oldest and best known institution exclusively treating these additions.

The Keeley treatment is pleasant and easy to take—no nausea—no confinement—no disagreeable experiences—no bad after effects.

Pleasant surroundings—good food—a well-equipped gymnasium—golf. The proper medical treatment supervised by qualified physicians of long experience. The cost is moderate.

Write for booklet, "The Disease of Inebriety," mailed in plain envelope.

Detectors Hold Convict for McAlister (Ok.) Penitentiary Sentence.

Harold Eugene Burrell's eight-month term in the Workhouse ended yesterday, but when he approached the gate and saw two detectives heading in his direction he knew that life was going to be just as complicated as ever.

A half hour after he had been released he was back in a cell again, this time at Police Headquarters, awaiting transfer to the McAlister (Ok.) penitentiary, where he has been wanted since the was listed as escaped on Dec. 24, 1924. McAlister is one of three prisons, according to Burrell's own admission, in which he has served time.

Burrell's fingerprints, forwarded by the police to the National Bureau of Identification at Washington, led to the discovery that he was wanted in Oklahoma. With this information in hand, Chief of Police Gerk put a "hold" order on the Workhouse file and had detectives waiting when Burrell finished his term, which followed his arrest last spring in possession of a bag of tools he had stolen from a garage.

"What hurts me about this McAlister business," Burrell, 45 years old, told the Chief of Police, "is that I didn't escape. I was kicked out of that penitentiary, if any man ever was."

He declared in explanation that while in jail in Oklahoma City in 1919 awaiting trial for auto theft, he escaped with two other prisoners and was later shot and crippled by a posse. Tried and sentenced to seven years for the jail-break, he continued, he was placed in a hospital for treatment and ultimately was "sent on leave" to the home of a friend in Hominy, Ok., to recover. When he recovered, after a year, he said, he went on his way, pausing a few months later in San Francisco, where he was sentenced to 90 days in jail for bootlegging.

Released from the jail term, he was sentenced to five years in Leavenworth prison for sale of narcotics and served the sentence without discovery by the authorities that he was wanted in Oklahoma. Prior to his arrest in Oklahoma he had also served a term in the penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., for larceny.

COMMUNITY COUNCIL ENLISTS 170 VOLUNTEER WORKERS

Training Course for Those Who Give Services to Relief Agencies to Open Wednesday.

The Community Council enlisted 170 volunteers for part time work with its various relief and welfare agencies during the last month, and is renewing its invitation to those interested in the work to participate.

A training course for men and women volunteers will be conducted at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. beginning Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. Sessions of an hour and a half will be held at the same hour Thursday and Friday nights and Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Volunteers to do clerical work have been most sought by the agencies. Others are needed for visitors' aids, and to furnish automobile transportation to clinics and hospitals. Many of the agencies in recreational work can use volunteers to supervise play and instruct in handicraft.

FUNERAL OF BELLEVILLE NUN

Services for Sister Margaret Konstanze Set for Tuesday.

Funeral services for Sister Margaret Konstanze, for 72 years a student and nun at the convent of the Immaculate Conception at Belleville, will be held at St. Peter's Cathedral there at 9 a. m. Tuesday. Sister Margaret, 84 years old, died of infirmities Friday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville.

Born at Mascoutah, Ill., a member of a pioneer St. Clair County family, she entered the convent as a student at the age of 12, later taking the veil. She was the last known survivor of the Belleville convent fire in 1884, in which 30 persons were burned to death.

Maj. Snow Promoted.

Maj. W. A. Snow, who has been in charge of the district office of United States Engineers here for the last three years, has been promoted to assistant to Col. Edmund Daley, division chief of engineers, with headquarters in the Victoria Building. Capt. B. H. Harloe, who has been in the district office for the last year, succeeds Maj. Snow.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

PHILADELPHIA CLUB WOMEN REPLY TO ETHEL BARRYMORE

"Most Atrociously Impolite Thing
I Ever Heard," One of Them
Declares.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Members of the Philadelphia Lecture Assembly, which Ethel Barrymore lectured in an angry vein yesterday, today found their voices and talked back.

Mrs. George Horace Lorimer, wife of the editor of the Saturday Evening Post, made one of the mildest of the comments, when she said:

"The whole thing was most unfortunate. Miss Barrymore's last two plays were unhappily chosen,
and Philadelphia audience... did not like them. Hence, it seems Miss Barrymore is resentful."

Mrs. Houston De Coursey, member of the Lecture Assembly, combined the talks of Miss Barrymore and of Eva Le Gallienne in her complaint, declaring that the two stage stars were responsible for
"the most atrociously impolite thing
I ever heard."

The original difficulty came from Miss Le Gallienne's failure to keep a lecture engagement. This, Miss Le Gallienne said, was due to a misunderstanding, but it caused unfavorable criticism from members.

In replying to this criticism, Miss Le Gallienne introduced Miss Barrymore, who told her hearers that they knew nothing, appreciated
nothing, and would never learn anything, and that they should be "happy to come two or three times
to hear Miss Le Gallienne once."

Some of the members said they heard Miss Barrymore, in a stage aside to her companion, refer to the gathering as "morons."

"Maybe she's right," said one of the Lecture Assembly. "We've been going to see her in the theater for 35 years."

LABOR SAID TO FEAR NRA

MOSTLY FROM WITHIN

Outside Bombardment Cannot Destroy It, Declares Railway Brotherhood Organ.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—"Labor," official organ of the railroad brotherhoods, said in an editorial today:

"Labor fears the chiseling and poisoning from inside the NRA far more than it fears assaults from without. If NRA will do the job
it was created to do—put men
to work—all the bombardment from the outside, whether by dead cats
or other missiles, cannot destroy it.
But if NRA is prevented by mistakes and intrigue from doing that work, nothing on earth can save it."

The American Federation of Labor's weekly bulletin declared "the National Recovery Act will become a fact only if labor is given code authority representation."

SEEKS KELLY REWARD FOR GIRL

Suit Filed to Collect $15,000 for Geraldine Arnold, 13.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Dec. 2.— Suit to collect for 13-year-old Geraldine Arnold the $15,000 reward offered by Oklahoma City residents
for the capture of George (Machine Gun) Kelly and his wife, Kathryn,
was filed here today.

Charles F. Colcord, who headed the committee which underwrote
the reward while the Kellys were being hunted for the Charles F.
Urschel kidnapping, was named defendant. Geraldine's suit alleges she furnished Federal agents with the information which led to capture of the Kellys at Memphis, Tenn.
The child had traveled with Machine Gun Kelly and his wife in their flight from the law. The Kellys are serving life sentences.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON CARRYING ON FOR DRYS

He Predicts Swing Toward
"Real Prohibition After 5-Year Drunk."

Undismayed by a prospect which he envisions as a "five-year drunk," W. E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, 71-year-old steadfast prohibition leader,
said yesterday the pendulum ultimately would swing toward "real prohibition"—although he was not prepared to designate the "time or method."

Johnson, who spent the night at the Mark Twain Hotel preparatory to beginning an Illinois lecture tour
as a field representative of the Anti-Saloon League, asserted that "prohibition never had a real chance,"
due to lack of "adequate enforcement, yet held it was "more of a success than the previous liquor license laws."

Mild-mannered, almost jocular in speech, Johnson today bears scant resemblance to the powerful figure of 1906 when as chief special officer of the United States Indian Service, he enforced the liquor laws sometimes at the point of a pistol. Later, in the past 15 years, he lost an eye when assaulted by an English mob while attempting to dry up the British Isles
as foreign representative of the American Anti-Saloon League.

"I'm not sour," Johnson observed,
"for I feel that sooner or later prohibition will be achieved."

Faced with repeal, Johnson said
the best method of control would be through local options by counties, the "largest practical unit." But he does not think much of ordinary regulatory measures, observing that "you can't regulate a mad dog."

Remarking that he never drank
socially "only occasionally in a business way," the dry leader said he "never imagined prohibition would eradicate drink," regarding it as a means of reducing it to a minimum.

"If it were proposed to enact a law forbidding a man to take a drink I would be opposed to it," Johnson declared, "for the object of prohibition is to arrest debauchery. I'm not opposed to physician's prescriptions. That's a medical matter. I don't know anything about it."

Johnson conceded that "a lot of bona-fide dries take a drink now and then," telling of one financial contributor to the prohibition cause
who "could take it or leave it alone," but who "was willing to lay it aside for the common good."

Just now he feels that the popular perspective is murky "because most people are looking through the bottom of a beer glass."

"They said they'd be satisfied if beer came back," he observed, "but are they satisfied? No!"

PUTS ROOSEVELT MONEY PLAN UP TO 'BRAIN STORM TRUST'

Sir Arthur Samuel, British Currency Expert, Disposes of Inquiries With a Card.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Sir Arthur M.
Samuel, one of Parliament's experts on currency, explains his stand on the Roosevelt plan in a nutshell.

Sir Arthur found himself a target for continual questions about the American situation, so now he hands the inquiries a small card
on which is written:

"I do not understand the Roosevelt plan;
"Nor does Mr. Roosevelt.
"So please don't ask me to explain it.
"Ask the Brain Storm Trust."

STRIKE OF UNION FUR WORKERS CALLED

Walkout at 18 Firms Ordered for Tomorrow — Higher Pay Sought.

Union fur workers have declared a strike effective tomorrow, the opening day of the busy season, in support of demands for recognition and higher wages.

There are between 200 and 300 scrapers and handlers employed by 18 local firms, and the union claims to represent a majority. William Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades & Labor Union, with which the Furriers' Local No. 31 is affiliated, said an effort has been made during the last two months to obtain recognition by employers. No headway was made, according to Brandt.

The union wants demands on piece work basis for scrapers range from 2 cents to 5 cents a skin. Handlers are asking $36 a week. The present scale is from one and a half cents to 3 cents. The average scraper can prepare 400 skins a day. The strikers plan to picket raw

$200,050 WEEK'S PAYROLL OF THE CWA IN MISSOURI

Four Times That of Last Week; $10,000 to St. Louis City and $10,000 to County.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 2.—Checks totaling $200,050 were sent out today by the State Civil Works Administration to various counties, which are working on CWA projects at the present time, in order to meet the payroll of the week ending Nov. 30. The amount paid today is four times that paid last week.

The largest check went to St. Francois County, with $22,000, and the second largest to Jasper County, with $20,000.

Among the 54 counties receiving checks this week were Jefferson, $8000; St. Charles, $2350; St. Louis County, $10,000; St. Louis City, $10,000; and Washington, $2500.

MRS. PALMER L. CLARKSON GETS DIVORCE IN CLAYTON

She Is To Receive $2400 Gross Alimony and Custody of Two Children.

Mrs. Ruth Curby Clarkson obtained a divorce at Clayton yesterday from Palmer L. Clarkson, assistant secretary of the Pioneer Co-operative Co. By stipulation, she will receive $2400 gross alimony payable $100 monthly. She obtained custody of their two children, Ruth, 3 years old, and Palmer L. Clarkson Jr., 2, for whose support Clarkson is to pay $100 monthly.

Alleging general indignities, Mrs. Clarkson testified her husband was rude, unkind and possessed of a bad temper. She related that he had slapped her on three occasions, once when she remonstrated against his sleeping on a lawn as they were returning by automobile from a boat trip at Charlevoix, Mich. Clarkson did not appear, being represented by attorney.

The Clarksons were married Oct. 28, 1928, and separated last Oct. 27, when he left their home at 6417 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, and went to reside with his father, W. Palmer Clarkson, 26 Carrswold drive, president of the Pioneer Co-operative Co. and former president of the Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Clarkson is the daughter of Clarence J. Curby, general manager of the Smith & Davis Manufacturing Co., who accidentally shot and killed himself in 1922. He left an estate of $1,709,000.

HOSIERY MANUFACTURER SUE
FOR $1,000,000 BY WOMAN
Robert W. Allen Accused of Breach of Promise by Chicago Divorcee.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Robert W. Allen, head of the Allen-A-Hosiery Co. at Kenosha, Wis., was named defendant today in a suit for $1,000,000, alleging breach of promise. The complainant was Mrs. Mery London, a Chicago divorcee.

Mrs. London was formerly the wife of Philip Britten. In 1921 they were divorced and, her attorneys said, Mrs. London kept up a friendship with Allen that began when they met through her first husband, David London, who died in 1920. Mrs. London is 34 years old, Allen 46.

Her attorney said she would charge that Allen had proposed and promised marriage on three specific occasions. He gave the dates as May, 1929; Jan. 1, 1930, and March 29, 1933.

Allen, who divides his time in Chicago, New York and Florida, is unmarried.

MAXWELL ESTATE $71,000
Inventory of Property of Cupples Co. Officer Filed.

The estate of Stanley Maxwell, vice-president of Cupples Co., who died July 22, is valued at $71,041 in an inventory filed in Probate Court yesterday. It consists of stock appraised at $30,400, chiefly in the Cupples Co.; bonds, $35,500; cash, $394; miscellaneous items, $4277, and chattels, $470.

Mr. Maxwell left his property in trust with Harold Maxwell, a brother, and the St. Louis Union Trust Co. for the benefit of his mother, Mrs. Ida R. Maxwell.

VICE-CHAIRMEN FOR RELIEF DRIVE NAMED

Arnold G. Stifel Appoints Aids for United Campaign for $3,000,000.

Appointment of four vice-chairmen for the United Relief Campaign to be held next month was announced yesterday by Arnold G. Stifel, campaign chairman.

Leo C. Fuller will be executive vice-chairman, sharing with Stifel the responsibility of organizing and directing the efforts of several thousand campaign workers.

The other three, Charles M. Rice, J. Harry Rehme and Harry B. Wallace, were named advisory vice-chairmen by the heads of the three participating federations of charities.

Rice represents Jewish Federation; Rehme, Catholic Charities, and Wallace, the Community Fund. Fuller is a director of the Jewish Federation. Rehme has been active with St. Vincent de Paul Society, and Wallace is chairman of Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment and a director of the Provident Association.

The campaign will begin Jan. 22. The goal has not been announced, but is expected to be about $3,000,000.

Fuller will speak during the Community Forum program on Station KSD this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, telling of plans for the campaign. He will be introduced by Stifel.

RECEIVERSHIP SUIT AGAINST $5,000,000 UTILITY COMPANY

Bondholders of Central West Public Service Co. Charge They Did Not Get Interest.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 2.—Four holders of first mortgage bonds of the Central West Public Service Co. today filed a petition asking Federal District Judge James Donohoe to appoint a receiver for the firm. The company, a Delaware corporation with operating headquarters in Omaha, operates gas, electric generating plants and transmission lines, and telephone lines in Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa. It is now in the control of the First Union Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago and John C. Mecham of Chicago, as trustees, and representing a bondholders' committee. The bank and Mecham were named defendants.

Plaintiffs are H. G. Craig of

Gregg County, Tex.; L. F. Troxel of Stephens County, Tex.; William Berry of Little Rock, Ark.; and C. L. Wakefield of Dallas, Tex.

Their petition said that when the bondholders' committee was formed, with 82 per cent of the holders of first-mortgage bonds represented, the trustees agreed to pay half the interest owing to those who signed it. The plaintiffs did not sign it, they said, and have been refused similar payment.

Frank Millhollan of Omaha, president of the firm, which is capitalized at $5,000,000.

JOB PROVIDER FOR 177 MORE MEN UNDER CWA PROGRAM

Budget Director Meyers Sends Requisitions to Missouri Employment Service.

Requisitions for 177 additional workers on CWA jobs were sent to Missouri Employment Service yesterday by Budget Director Meyers. Some of the men will report for work tomorrow, others later in the week.

Meyers said he hoped by the end of the week to have at work all of the 4900 for whom jobs were authorized. He had no figures on the number so far employed, but about 500 got checks yesterday, the first payday under the program.

Of those for whom requisitions assigned to the Board of Public Service for street surveys; 109 to the Water Department to construct a conduit at Chain of Rocks, 15 to the Building Commissioner for cleaning municipal buildings and 30 to the City Plan Commission to continue its housing survey.

Elks Memorial Service.

The Rev. Dr. Arnold H. Lowe, pastor of Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, will deliver the address at memorial services at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Elks Lodge, 3819 Lindell boulevard. Similar services are being held throughout the United States for members who have died during the year.

MISSIONARY SUNDAY IN CHURCHES TODAY

Rally at 3 p. m. at Washington U. Field House; 10,000 Expected to Attend.

Today is "United Missionary Sunday" for the majority of the Protestant Churches in the city and missionary sermons will be preached from all pulpits by visiting missionaries who are here attending a three-day conference under the auspices of the Church Federation.

A rally which, it is expected, will be attended by 10,000 will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Washington University Field House. Dr. E. Stanley Jones, missionary at Sitapur, India, and author of many missionary books, will be the principal speaker. He will be preceded by the Rt. Rev. Logan H. Roots, Bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Hankow, China.

Arrangements have been made to seat any overflow in Francis Gymnasium and amplifiers have been set up for the purpose. Dr. Jones will preach at the 11 o'clock service this morning at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Skinner and Waterman avenues. Bishop Roots will preach at the morning service at Christ Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust streets.

Influences in the Orient.

Speaking at a young people's meeting yesterday, the Rev. Alexander Paul, of Indianapolis, secretary of the Disciples of Christ United Missionary Society, said that people in the Orient "are turning from their own religions because they find them insufficient."

"Many of the peoples," he said, "are turning to agnosticism and infidelity. Those who are influencing the present generation in China today, according to Dr. Hu-shih, Chinese philosopher, are Karl Marx, Bertrand Russell and John Dewey. We must face the question, 'Will Christianity be able to withstand the agnostic teachings of Western Philosophers? We think it will.'"

The Rev. Frederick P. Houghton, a general field secretary of the Episcopal church, followed Dr. Paul, speaking on "Is Nationalism Incompatible With Christianity?"

Three Union Services.

Three union denominational services will be held tonight. Congregational churches will meet at Pilgrim Church, Union boulevard and Kensington avenue, at 8 o'clock to hear Miss Lillian L. Picken, evangelist and social worker at Satara, India. Evangelical young people's groups will meet at 8 p. m. at the German House, 2845 Lafayette avenue, where Dr. Herman Chen-en Lin, president of the University of Shanghai, China, will speak.

A joint Methodist Episcopal service will be held at Union Methodist Episcopal Church, 3810 Delmar boulevard. The Rev. John R. Edwards will speak and a young people's group from Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church will present "At the Gate Beautiful," winner in a recent State religious drama contest.

Most of the visiting missionaries will speak at church meetings tonight, and tomorrow morning they will address groups in all the high schools. The conference is one of 29 which are being held this year in 16 states. It will close tomorrow night with a fellowship dinner at the Jefferson Hotel at which Dr. Jones will again be the principal speaker. Officers of the Church Federation will also be elected at the dinner.

NEW DEMAND THAT GOV. ROLPH RESIGN

California U. Professors Declare He Betrayed His Trust on Lynching.

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 2.—A call to the people of California to "demand" the resignation of Gov. James Rolph Jr., for condoning the lynching of Thomas H. Thurmond and John M. Holmes, Brooke Hart's murderers, was issued today by a group of University of California professors and civic leaders.

"California stands disgraced by its Governor, a self-proclaimed party to lynch law," said the statement issued by the group. "It can wipe out the blot upon its fair name only by disclaiming the Governor's voice as the voice of the people."

The statement said:

"At the time he was betraying his trust, another Governor, on the Atlantic Coast, was backing the law with all the power of his great office—sending out the State troops to bring the lynchers to justice, after minor officials had refused to do their duty."

"The Governor of Maryland wins the praise of a nation; the citizens of his State are proud of him. The only way the people of California can put themselves in favorable light is, of course to repudiate their Governor."

The statement bore the signatures of Prof. and Mrs. Guy Montgomery; Prof. Henry Francis Grady and Mrs. Grady, the latter an NRA county worker; Prof. George T. Tolson, head of the Pacific School of Religion; Prof. Paul Cadman of the University of California Economics department; the Rev. L. J. O'Hara of Newman Hall, Catholic institution at the university; and several others.

Advised in Sacramento that a large church mass meeting with every denomination represented was called in New York to protest against the San Jose lynchings, Gov. Rolph said:

"All I will say is that I am the foe of kidnap-murders. I am going to rid California of kidnapers and murderers if I can. I am going to make the hearts of mothers more contented than they have been during the last few years—since the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped."

At Present Pet Milk Man Is President of Industrial Club of St. Louis.

William T. Nardin, president of the Industrial Club of St. Louis and vice-president of the Pet Milk Co., has been nominated chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce. Ballots will be mailed to all members of the chamber tomorrow, to be returned not later than Dec. 13.

Nominees for membership on the executive committee are F. B. Eiseman, vice-president of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., A. B. Elias, president of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., Jacob M. Leashy, attorney and retiring chairman of the board, and Sidney Maestre, president of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

Those nominated for directors are Mayor Dickmann, Ben Comfort, Walter C. Doering, Alexander Fraser, C. W. Gaylord, August E. Gilster, R. S. Hawes, Walter W. Head, Gale F. Johnston, Wilbur B. Jones, former Mayor Kiel, Carl S. Lawton, Robert L. Lund, Eugene R. McCarthy, Edwin B. McKesner, E. J. Miller, Albert T. Perkins, Edgar M. Queeny, Walter M. Smith, and J. Gates Williams.

Nardin has been nominated also for re-election as president of the Industrial Club. He is a director of the First National Bank and during the World War was a member of the United States Food Administration Grain Corporation. He gave up the practice of law 10 years ago to go with the Pet Co. New officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce will take office immediately after the election.

Conference on St. Lawrence Pact, PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—The proposed St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada and its effects on waterway projects in the United States is to be the subject of a conference of representatives of trade and business organizations and others from 16 states along the Atlantic Seaboard to be held here on Dec. 18. A call for the conference was issued today by Mayor J. Hampton Moore of this city, president of the Atlantic Deepwater Waterways Association.

HYDE PARK

"Seldom Equalled—Never Excelled"

... This sign

displayed on the windows of dealers all over St. Louis, Thursday, December 14th, will announce the return of the original Hyde Park Draught Beer.

Skilfully brewed and fully aged, Hyde Park Beer brings back that perfect flavor that made it the leading seller of all draught beers in St. Louis before prohibition. There have been no hurried preparations for early profits. Three months have been allowed for its careful ageing under the same expert hands that made it the overwhelming favorite of yesterday.

Since 1875, it has been Hyde Park's quiet boast that, though rarely equalled, it has never been excelled. Be your own judge. Remember the date of its return, Thursday, December 14th, and look for the above dealer sign. It is your invitation to welcome back the real old-time beer that St. Louis has never forgotten.

By J. L. S.

Radio Program

RESIDENT ROOSEVELT will speak over KSD at 9:30 Wednesday night in connection with the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Federal Council of Churches.

Richard Crooks, the Metropolitan Opera tenor, will open the new weekly KSD series in which he will star with Lawrence Tibbett, 7:30 tomorrow night. He will be the soloist on Monday night, Dec. 10. Tibbett will sing "In the Garden," by Isabelle Firestone; "Angels' Serenade," "Ritmo" and the aria, "La Reve," from "L'Elisir d'Amore."

Frank Munn and Abe Lyman's orchestra will shift from Wednesday to Friday night at 8 o'clock, taking the place vacated by Fred Jones. An added Wayne program will occupy the spot KSD and the WEAF chain vacated by Munn and Lyman.

HILLIPS LORD's first broadcast from his schooner, the "Seth Parker," in which he is to sail down the Atlantic coast to Miami and then start around the world, is set for 9 o'clock Tuesday night on KSD. The Governor of Maine will take part, as will friends of Jonesport, which Lord has made famous by his Seth Parker programs, and representatives of Bowdoin College, where he was a student. There will be 13 of these broadcasts, each from a port of call for the schooner on its way around the coast.

Tomorrow KSD will begin a new series of sketches, scheduled at 2 o'clock daily except Saturday and Sunday, that will center around "a Perkins," an energetic widow who snatches a falling number from creditors only to see burn up and lose her eyesight following the fire, then regains her sight through an operation and care on a colorful struggle against city's political boss.

John Martin, widely known for stories for children, will begin own story-telling period on MAQ and the WEAF net at 3:15 tomorrow.

An adaptation of Dickens' "Pickwick Papers," under the title, "Mr. Pickwick," will be broadcast by KSD and the WEAF net at 10 o'clock Thursdays, starting this week.

Discussions of this country's relations with other nations will be carried on by KSD and the WEAF network at 12:45 noon the first Sunday of each month, beginning Dec. 9. The broadcasts will come from luncheons of the Foreign Policy Association. Outstanding authorities on foreign governments, trade, finance and culture will be the speakers. In the first broadcast, Lawrence Dennis, for eight years in the foreign service of the State Department, will discuss Fascism. Communism will be the topic Lawrence Strachey, author and emeritus M. P., and the future of the United States under the NRA will be that of Prof. A. A. Berle Jr., special assistant to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and prominent in the so-called "brain trust."

Prohibition Repeal

ratification Broadcast.

PROPHONES have been installed in the State House of Utah, Pennsylvania and Ohio that the CBS chain can broadcast on Tuesday ratification of the repeal of the prohibition amendment by the thirty-sixth state. The Pennsylvania ratification convention is to meet at 11 o'clock, that of Ohio at 12:30 noon and that of Utah at 1 o'clock. The broadcast will come from whichever convention is the thirty-sixth to take formal action.

McDonald Appointed St. Louis Distributor Of Continental Autos

Adds Three Models in This Line to Willis and Franklin for This Trade Area

Frank C. McDonald, president of the Southwest Willis Co., 3000 Locust street, has been appointed distributor of Continental automobiles for St. Louis and the surrounding Missouri and Illinois territory. His firm will distribute these cars in addition to Willis and Franklin cars. It has on display a complete line of Continentals, and has equipped for special parts and maintenance service.

The Southwest Willis Co. has distributed automobiles here for 13 years. George R. Hutchings continues as sales manager, and there will be no changes in personnel.

Continental cars are made in Detroit by the Continental Automobile Co., which has furnished engines for more than 100 makes of cars and for 750,000 cars that are now operating in this country. It is one of the largest manufacturers of airplane and truck engines, and has built the motors for thousands of buses and motorbuses.

Three Continental Models. The Continental line includes the four-cylinder Beacon models listing as low as $380 at factory; the Flyer, a light six, at $490 up, and the Ace, a de luxe six, at $725 up. Gasoline mileage of 25 to 30 miles per gallon is claimed for the Beacon.

Both the Beacon and the Flyer have a new type of chassis design, a light six, at $490 up, and the Ace, a de luxe six, at $725 up. Gasoline mileage of 25 to 30 miles per gallon is claimed for the Beacon. The chassis is mounted at the front end directly to the center of the transverse front spring. At the rear, the two mountings are at either end of a specially reinforced tubular cross member, instead of on the chassis side rail. This provides Continental's unique three-point balanced chassis. One of its traits is the ability to take turns and negotiate rough roads with a minimum of body list. The chassis, due to the mounting and the new method of springing, is not subjected to torsional twists from road inequalities, which makes for greater riding comfort.

Only three springs are used on the Beacon and the Flyer. The front is a single, transverse spring. Its right end has the only spring shackle on the entire car. The two rear springs are double coilovers. While the forward ends are attached to the tubular cross member, the rear ends are mounted above and below the rear axle through a special bracket which eliminates axle twist and chatter.

"Winged Power." Continental's exclusive system designed for restful driving and riding comfort. The engines of Continental's three cars are mounted at two points in front and one in the rear, at the transmission. The latter is an rubber saddle which eliminates all engine vibration at this point. The two front mountings are coiled springs with live rubber cores. These two mountings are sufficiently elastic so as to permit the engine to rock slightly on its power axis.

"Axleflex," Independent Springing Terraplane And Hudson Feature. New Models to Be Larger but Not to Sacrifice Performance. In 1934, information that "Axleflex" independent springing of the front wheels will be available on Terraplanes and Hudsons in 1934 is confirmed by Roy D. Chapin, president of the Hudson Motor Car Co., has just made his first official statement regarding that company's plans for the coming season. Bigger and more luxurious cars, with retention of all the performance ability demonstrated by Terraplanes during the past year, has been the objective for 1934, according to the Hudson executive.

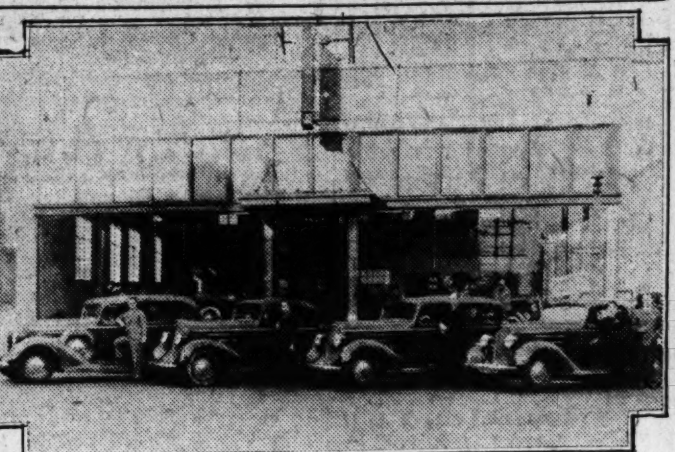

Saying that the Terraplane won a larger percentage of its first year market than any other new car in the past 10 years, and that the Hudson Co., preparing to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary in 1934, stands fourth in the industry in number of cars in service today, Chapin's statement continued:

"For 1934, we are producing the finest line of automobiles in the history of the Hudson Motor Car Co. They will make their debut at the New York Automobile Show. While it is too early now to disclose the more minute details of these cars, we can state that although they will be longer, bigger and roomier in every respect, they will have conveniences and luxuries never before offered in cars at anywhere near their price, but no performance ability has been sacrificed. Our adoption of Axleflex independent springing is typical of the advancements that have been worked into every phase of performance and riding comfort."

Gasoline High in Australia. Gasoline in Australia costs the motorist 45 cents a gallon; tax alone is 15 cents.

For Brewery Service. Five Model 25-A Federal trucks recently delivered by the Falstaff Brewing Corporation by Phil H. Brockman's Federal Truck Co. They are of 2 1/2-ton capacity, and have brass knobs bearing the Falstaff emblem, on the stakes.

Chevrolet Promises Radical Style and Engineering Changes

Greater Speed and Operation Economy in New Cars, Which Are in Production.

Chevrolet is now in production of new 1934 models, M. E. Coyle, general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., announces.

Radical styling and engineering changes, with increased speed and economy, are promised. Independent front wheel suspension, providing a cushion ride with "knee action" springs, recently announced for all new General Motors models by President Alfred P. Sloan Jr., the most extensively improved annual model since the car was stepped up to six cylinders in 1928, according to Coyle.

"Manufacturing operations are being pushed with all possible dispatch to get a full quota of regular Chevrolet employees on the payroll with a minimum of delay," Coyle said. "As soon as sufficient display cars to stock the company's 10,000 domestic dealers are in the field, the public showing will be held."

In the first 10 months of 1933 the company built 609,000 units, 55 per cent more than in the full 12 months of 1932.

Cities Service Co. Puts 'Power Prover' In Another Station

The Cities Service Co. station at Grand and McDonald has made available to motorists the latest service station development, the Cities Service power prover.

The power prover is a machine which analyzes exhaust gases of running motors and scientifically measures the amount of fuel a car is burning. An expert mechanic schooled in motor maintenance adjusts the car so that all the pep and power an engine generates is usable.

To make a test the mechanic inserts a tube from the power prover into the exhaust pipe of the car and a sample of the gases is drawn into the analyzer, where it is cleaned, mixed with a definite amount of fuel and burned. The amount of fuel a car is wasting is instantly reflected on the dial. Readings are taken at idle and high speeds so as to make an accurate cross check of the car's performance.

Guided by the dial readings, the mechanic starts adjusting the motor, following a comprehensive 12-step tuning routine. Many of the precision tools used are new and exclusively developed by Cities Service research engineers.

Pontiac Field Men To See New Models At Detroit on Dec. 11

Two hundred field executives of the Pontiac Motor Co. will meet Monday, Dec. 11, at Detroit, for their first glimpse of the 1934 Pontiac straight eight.

All regional area zone managers and the members of their staff have been summoned to Detroit by H. J. Klinger, new president and general manager for Pontiac, and A. W. L. Gilpin, new vice president and general sales manager.

A two-day convention will open Monday at the General Motors proving ground, Milford, Mich., where the visitors will inspect and drive the new Pontiac.

No details of the car have been divulged beyond the recent statement of A. P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, that the 1934 product will employ "knee action" wheels.

Immediately after the Detroit session, similar meetings will be conducted in the regional office cities as follows: Detroit, Dec. 13; New York, Dec. 14; Chicago, Dec. 15, and Memphis, Dec. 20.

The reason so few automatic radiator shutters are being used these days is that their places have been taken by the universally used thermostat.

For Its Speed Wagons. Lower prices are announced by the Reo Motor Car Co. for its 1 1/2-ton and 2 1/2-ton six-cylinder Speed Wagons. The former model is now priced at $290 and the latter at $345 for the chassis, at Lansing.

These prices, according to Richard H. Scott, president and general manager of Reo, are the lowest at which Speed Wagons, powered by Reo-built Ford Crown engines, have ever been offered.

Reo's commercial line includes, also, heavy duty models of 2 1/2-ton rating, priced at $1245 up, 2 1/2-ton series priced upward from $1785 and the big 8-cylinder 4 1/2-ton model at $2595 up. Gross load capacities range up to 32,000 pounds, with Reo's largest 8-cylinder tractor-trailer combination.

The stroke of the Essex Terraplane 6 is longer than that of the Terraplane 8. The one is 4 1/4 inches, the other 4 1/2.

Pierce-Arrow 12-cylinder engines are set at an angle of 80 degrees.

Chrysler Executive Sees U. S. Car Design Outstripping European

Says Models at Auto Shows Will Make Foreign Autos Seem Out of Date

"America will have to look to her own engineers and designers for the fundamental improvements that will produce the kind of ride motorists have a right to expect," says Joseph W. Frazer, general sales manager of the Chrysler Sales Corporation, after a trip to Europe during which he visited the Paris salon and the Olympia automobile show, London.

"There is no question in my mind," said Frazer, "that there must be a redistribution of weight before we produce the real motor car. Leading American engineers are agreed that two have gone about as far as we can with the conventional design. Future progress will have to begin with proper weight distribution."

"Although the European designers have been most receptive to the roots of the problem, they are entitled to credit for excellent progress in streamlining on custom-made body jobs. Undoubtedly the streamlining now found on the higher priced cars, which was decided upon for better performance rather than economy, will soon find its way to the production cars."

"The newer trains and boats have definitely adopted streamlining as a great step toward increased speed at decreased cost. The public no longer has to be sold on this idea, but will soon be demanding the same economies in private transportation. Designers of trucks and buses have done more in revised weight distribution than designers of private motor cars. The fellow who has to make a profit is the most receptive to any idea that will result in economies."

"I look for American cars to dominate the European market and for that matter the world markets. The outlook for them never was better."

"I was prepared for much more startling changes in design and engineering than I saw in Paris or London. Giving our foreign friends credit for definite advances in some directions, particularly streamlining and independent spring suspension, I still believe that some of the new cars to be shown by American designers at the New York Motor Show, where he held a similar position. He also was city manager in Philadelphia."

Ford Truck That Set Cross Continent Record Here Friday

The Ford V-8 trans-Continental freighter that crossed the continent from Atlantic City to Los Angeles in 71 hours and 29 minutes elapsed time, carrying a 4000-pound load, will be displayed at the Ford Motor Co. branch in St. Louis, 4100 Forest Park avenue, all day Friday.

This freighter made the run in the fastest known time for a truck and bettered passenger train time across the country by several hours.

It was driven by four men from a Ford dealer establishment in Philadelphia, and was accompanied by Glenn Walde, official observer for the Keystone Automobile Club of Pennsylvania.

The freighter proved that cross-country travel with a pay-load in a vehicle powered with a V-type eight-cylinder motor is feasible, says M. N. Johnson, St. Louis manager for the Ford Motor Co. "Only two quarts of oil and 322 gallons of fuel were used in the 9945 mile trip," he remarked.

Nothing was spent for repairs as the truck functioned steadily throughout the run.

The public is invited to see the Ford V-8 freighter during the day it is in St. Louis and talk to the drivers and observer concerning their experience," Johnson said.

Akron Salesman Wins Dodge Contest Prize of $1500 Check

A check for $1500 was presented by A. Vander Zee, general sales manager of Dodge Brothers Corporation, to C. Cox, a salesman of De Witt Motors Co., Akron, O., winner in the recent Dodge and Plymouth sales contest in which salesmen of 3000 Dodge dealers set their merchandising ability against one another.

When the scores had been counted, Cox was ahead of all his rivals, with 176 retail sales in nine weeks. Add to the $1500 grand prize the commissions on 176 sales plus seven valuable merchandise prizes, and Cox did fairly well by himself in two months.

Distributes Borim For Cleaning Radiators

Borim radiator cleaning compound is being distributed here by the H. E. Smythe Co. This compound is said to remove rust and other foreign substances.

Tests made for three years are said to prove that it also will remove rust, if put into the radiator of a new car. Radiators can be cleaned with it without removal from cars.

Borim has been under development for a period of years.

Auto Accessories Increasingly Popular as Christmas Gifts

Automobile accessories are becoming increasingly popular as Christmas gifts, according to H. S. Hall, local manager for the Western Auto Supply Co. Such gifts cover a wide variety of ornamental as well as useful purposes for a car owner.

Among the auto accessories suitable for presents, Hall says, are radio sets, tires, seat covers, heaters, new type electric horns, cigar lighters, radiator ornaments, cushions, clocks and mirrors.

SCOUT LEADERS CHECK STATISTICS OF TROOPS

Seek to Ascertain Whether Units Will Qualify for President's Award.

Scoutmasters of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council are gathering statistics on their troops this month to see whether their troops will qualify for the President's achievement award and to determine the troop's rank under the new quarterly rating plan.

The President's award, a streamer given annually to troops throughout the country, is based on membership figures and attendance at meetings. The quarterly rating takes into consideration these factors, plus the number of hikes taken by a troop and the percentage of advancement in rank made by the individual scouts.

Half of the new members taken in during the year must have been 12 years old at the time of enrollment in order that the troop may qualify for the President's award. This is in line with the scout 10-year program, which has as its aim the enrolling in the Scouts of one out of every four boys who will come of voting age in 1940.

To get the President's award, a troop must also have registered at least 80 per cent of its new members, must have held at least 36 troop meetings during the year, and must have had an average of 60 per cent in attendance at the meetings.

The quarterly rating plan is based on a point system under which all troops getting more than 60 out of a possible 100 points get a rating. These are divided into four groups.

Boards of review at which scouts and scoutmasters qualify for the various awards will be held this month as follows: Dec. 19, South District at Fanning School, West District at Ben Blewett Jr. Intermediate School, North District at Ashland School, and Suburban District at Webster Groves High School. Dec. 20, Central District at Gallaudet School.

In addition, every troop is urged to have a troop court of honor during the month, to aid the scouts in qualifying for advancement.

Radical Changes In Auto Design Said By Foy to Be Near

De Soto President Predicts Cars
Looking Entirely Different From Today's.

The public can look for radical changes in automobile styles and designs in the near future, according to Byron Foy, president of the De Soto Motor Corporation, who predicted today that the automobile of the future would be "entirely different from any cars on the roads of America today."

"Styles in motor cars, like styles in everything else, change with the development of the public taste," Foy said.

"The ideal motor car of the future will not only look utterly different from the present-day automobiles and be infinitely smarter, it will be built unlike any car that has gone before. A complete change in style and body shape will allow greatly improved seating arrangements and a really scientific distribution of weight that will result in amazing riding ease."

"The work that has been done to date in the streamlining of air planes and railroad trains is setting the stage for the introduction of truly streamline motor cars. The present-day automobile spends an amazing amount of its power churning in the streamlining of air currents. The car of the future will be streamlined—not in name only—but truly streamlined to an extent that the resistance to the flow of air will be absolutely minimized."

McCuen and Ralston Further Promoted by Olds Motor Works

C. L. McCuen and D. E. Ralston, recently appointed general manager and sales manager, respectively, of the Olds Motor Works at Lansing, Mich., have been further promoted.

McCuen becomes president as well as general manager. Ralston assumes the duties of vice-president and general sales manager.

McCuen joined General Motors in 1926 as a member of the engineering staff of the division of which he is now president. From May of 1932 until his recent appointment as general manager for Oldsmobile, he was technical assistant to the general manager of the Oldsmobile and Buick divisions.

Ralston went to Oldsmobile from the Chevrolet organization, which he joined in 1918. Before being transferred to Oldsmobile he was assistant general sales manager for Chevrolet.

Tire Dealers Meet Tomorrow Night To Discuss Their Code

The Greater St. Louis Tire Dealers' Association will meet in the Melbourne Hotel at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening when the proposed retail tire dealers' code will be read and discussed.

E. H. Wayman, First Assistant City Counselor, will be the principal speaker. According to Emmett Golden, managing director and counselor for the Greater St. Louis Tire Dealers' Association, President Roosevelt will sign the retail tire dealers' code on Dec. 14. Jesse Johnston, president of the Johnstons Brothers Tire and Service Co., is president of the local tire dealers' association.

Troop Notes

North District.

The Rev. E. W. Menzel, former scout commissioner of the Central Provinces of India, will give an illustrated lecture on "Scouting in India" before Troop No. 33 Friday night at St. Peter's Evangelical Church, St. Louis and Warne avenues. Scout Joseph Vollmar will show motion pictures taken at the World Jamboree at Godollo, Hungary, last summer. All troops of the North District have been invited by Scoutmaster Grover R. Caspar.

Central District.

The last meeting of the year of Central District Council will be held at 7:45 p. m., Tuesday, Dec. 12, at the home of Foster Brown, 3616 McKee avenue.

South District.

Troop 38, Bryan Mullaphy School, is on a hike this week-end to its camp on the Alton road. The troop left yesterday and will return tonight. Scoutmaster Max Thomas is in charge.

Troop 141, Alhambra Grotto, demonstrated the curing and tanning of leather in the scout department of Stix, Baer & Fuller last Friday and Saturday. The next meeting of the troops will be held next Sunday at Silica, Mo.

Troop 141 has reorganized and is now meeting Thursday nights at McKinley High School. At the last meeting 18 scouts reported, and two patrols, the Beavers and Rattlesnakes, were formed. The troop is planning a hike next week and will hold its first court of honor on the month. F. J. Velten is scoutmaster, and Wilbur Velten assistant scoutmaster.

Order of the Arrow.

A meeting of Shawnee Chapter of the Order of the Arrow will be held at 7:45 o'clock Tuesday night at Union Avenue Christian Church, Union boulevard and Enright avenue. New by-laws will be adopted.

Man and Son Killed in Crash.

By the Associated Press. MATTOON, Ill., Dec. 2.—George Miller, 60 years old, of Neoga, died in a hospital here late today, the second fatality as the result of a truck accident. Miller's son, Andrew, 21, was crushed to death by a steel beer barrel when a truck in which he and his father were riding overturned as the driver, Ernest Donner, Centerville, attempted to pass a car about five miles south of here. Donner said the Miller's were returning home after registering for civil works administration jobs at Shelbyville.

Warrenton, has been active in the work of reorganizing the bank there. He will spend much of his time here hereafter, but his family, which lives at 7035 Waterman avenue, University City, will not move back to Warrenton before next summer.

Alger Engel and George C. Dyer were elected vice-presidents of the new bank.

Hukriede, a former Republican member of Congress, who once defeated the late Champ Clark, has held the marshaling for 10 years, and his term would not expire until 1936. Late Senator Bennett C. Clark asked the Department of Justice to make an inquiry, with a view to rendering the marshaling vacant. He cited the fact that a prisoner escaped from Hukriede's prison, and was shot and killed the next day in an attempt to escape from there.

The prisoner who escaped from Marshal Hukriede was Stanley Anderson, known as "The Swede," who lived through a train window near New Orleans, where the Marshal was taking him to be tried for killing a prohibition informer. He was caught by Louisiana State officers, and was shot and killed the next day in an attempt to escape from there.

Chemical Society Meeting. The St. Louis Section of the American Chemical Society will meet at the St. Louis University School of Medicine, 1402 South Grand boulevard, following a dinner at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. The annual election of officers will be held.

MARKET RESPONSE TO NEW LET GOLD PRICE

Rumor of an Impending Stabilization of the Dollar With the Sterling Bloc, Undoubtedly Served as a Check, Review Says.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Resumption of gold-price lifting found financial markets unresponsive this week.

Although the yellow metal was lifted 25 cents an ounce to $34.01, the most substantial advance in more than a fortnight, the dollar failed to decline in the foreign exchange market, and commodity prices on the whole made virtually no progress.

Rumors of an impending stabilization of the dollar with the sterling bloc, although greeted with laughter by President Roosevelt, undoubtedly had an influence in keeping the dollar from declining further, foreign exchange dealers said, for speculators seemed anxious to cover short positions in dollars.

Proponents of the gold price theory were undismayed by the failure of exchange rates or commodity prices to respond, explaining that an immediate adjustment of prices to the gold value was not to be expected. Furthermore, it was reiterated that gold control was but one of a number of measures adopted by the administration to lift commodity prices.

Recent nervousness over the Government's credit appeared largely to have vanished, and fluctuations in Federal securities narrowed. Usually well-informed Wall Street quarters said that while conditions were probably unpropitious for the sale of long-term bonds, the Treasury would have no difficulty in meeting its Dec. 15 maturity of more than $200,000 with new short-term issues.

A drop in the wheat market tended to depress commodity price indices, and seemed due chiefly to appearance of much needed rains over the winter crop area. This state showed net losses for the week of 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel. Cotton futures ended the week virtually unchanged. Silver was a little stronger, although with faint discussions of possible action at the forthcoming session of Congress to stabilize the metal. It showed a net gain for the week of 1/2 cent.

Stocks Extremely Dull.

The stock market turned extremely dull, and ended the week almost unchanged, as measured by averages. Transfers in the stock exchange, reflecting in part the Thursday holiday, were only 4,611,424 shares, little more than half of last week's. The bond market was also quiet, and price averages showed small aggregate changes from a week earlier, although small net advances were numerous.

The Bank of France's weekly statement showed a loss of about $600,000 in gold, the largest for any week since the post war stabilization of the franc. Opinion was still mixed as to whether France could hold the gold standard for some time, although the volume of gold exports was small.

Argentina, which has been pegging its currency for two years at approximately 60 per cent of its gold parity, abandoned the control, and let it fall about 20 per cent further, thus adopting a policy, designed to help her wheat growers. Whether this will have a depressive effect upon the world wheat market remains to be seen, but as understood here, the Argentine Government intends to prevent such an effect, by buying grain from the farmers, and holding it back to prevent dumping, so the farmers may get the full benefit of the depreciated currency. The Argentine position differs from that of the United States, since it sells a large part of its crop in the world market, while America has reduced its production to a domestic basis.

Dull Market Saturday.

Stocks merely drifted at week-end session, going through the motions of a market and making inconsequential changes. The tone, however, was firm.

Dollar improvement in foreign exchange, which was quiet, coincided with maintenance of the treasury gold price at $34.01 an ounce. U. S. Government bonds again rallied and their improvement strengthened the tone of the general investment list. Wheat weakened.

The fact that the dollar's gold level, on the basis of Washington's daily statement, was left unaltered after its advance of the week, hardly seemed significant, since there has been nothing to indicate that the present monetary policy of the administration was to be changed. Nevertheless, some indications of Wall Street opinion, looking

WHEAT HAS 2-CENT LOWER RANGE IN CHICAGO TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Disturbed by financial conditions and by a lack of buying power, report of rain in Kansas and Nebraska and continued decline over dollar led to a decline of over 2 cents on the local market, with close only small fraction up from low.

Liverpool closed 1/4 to 3/4 lower.

Winnipeg started out 1/4 off and lost more early. The close was 1/4 down 1/4 to 3/4.

Local wheat receipts, which were 25,000 bushels, included 9 cars and local 3,400 bushels, compared with 72,000 last week and 109,200 last year.

Oats receipts, which were 2,000 bushels, compared with 8,000 last week and 15,000 last year.

Wheat was 2 1/2 cents lower and corn 1 1/2 cents lower.

PWA FUND CALLS FROM MISSOURI NOW $38,574,540

Last Week's Total of Applications Was $13,186,953 Covering 93 Loans and Grants.

RUSH IN LAST WEEK OF NOVEMBER

Office Force Swamped With Work Before Deadline Was Extended From Dec. 1 to Dec. 15.

In the last week, Missouri communities have applied to the Federal Public Works Administration for 93 loans and grants for a great variety of improvements estimated to cost $13,186,953.

The loans sought amount to $9,148,650 and grants $2,754,758, plus $17,834 in instances where the requests for loans and grants are not divided. Thus the total asked of the Government is $12,221,243.

This brings the total number of applications for loans and grants filed with Hugh Miller, State engineer of the PWA, since his office was opened in August to 216. They represent improvements to cost $57,185,706. The total of loans and grants sought in all the applications is $38,574,540.

It is Gov. Park's intention to apply soon for $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 for building State penal and reformatory institutions. Whether this program will be carried out depends on the passage by the Legislature of a bill to submit a State bond issue, and on the voting of the bonds by the people. The Governor desires to file the request as a matter of preparedness. It is likely that a considerable volume of additional applications from Missouri communities will be received before Dec. 15, which Miller has set as the deadline.

Miller thinks Missouri may yet pass the goal of at least $100,000,000 set for a public works program. This includes direct allotments to the State Highway Commission for road building and certain outright Federal expenditures.

Most of State Represented. Virtually all sections of the State are represented in the list of applications to date, although many cities, towns and counties have made no requests. Comparatively few of the applications have been finally approved by the PWA at Washington so far.

The first application reached Miller Aug. 21. It was from Kennett, for sewers. The volume began to increase two weeks ago, when it was expected Dec. 1 would be the deadline. The 93 applications arriving in the last week swamped not only the office and professional staff, but even the office space in the Buder Building. Every application, including blueprints and other details, must be in quadruplicate. The engineers and office force worked every night in the week except Thanksgiving and some of them worked on that holiday. They toiled late last night to get the flood of requests in shape for technical consideration. The number of engineer aids has been increased.

Among the applications reaching the office yesterday was one for a $5,400,000 sanitary sewer system in St. Louis County. It was accepted tentatively, due to the controversy in the county between the County Court and the County Organization for Business Recovery. This request was from the latter group, which has civic backing.

St. Louis Applications. Five applications were filed by St. Louis during the week, for improvements to cost $2,295,865. These include two sets of major street paving jobs; a viaduct to carry Hampton avenue over Manchester avenue, two railroads and the River des Peres drainage works; elimination of the Washburn grade crossings at Waterman boulevard and De Baliviere and Hamilton avenues, and elimination of the Missouri Pacific Kingshighway grade crossing. Details of these plans have been published recently. Applications from St. Louis County towns were: Kirkwood, sewage disposal plant and outfall sewers, $38,000 cost, $27,740 loan, $10,260 grant; University City, traffic lights, $226,500 cost, $186,800 loan, $39,700 grant; Shrewsbury, sewers, $180,843 cost, $65,000 loan, $48,720 grant; Webster Groves, sewers, $627,207 cost, $500,000 loan, $127,207 grant.

Pacific, Franklin County, applied for a $57,520 loan and $18,980 grant for sewers and a waterworks extension to cost $76,500.

Camden County applied for $866,280 for a highway bridge over a section of the Lake of the Ozarks below Kendrick Hollow. The request is for a $526,843 loan and a $139,437 grant.

Many rural and small town districts applied for funds for building schools. A number of towns seek money for municipal electric, water and sewer systems. Among other types of improvements proposed in requests of the last week are: Gymnasium and armory; park swimming pool and assembly center at Webb City, city hall at Richmond; land reclamation of a New Madrid County district; courthouse for Dade County; swimming pool building for Northeast Missouri State Teachers' College at Kirksville; road; jail for Carroll County; park improvements; two viaducts and a park and swimming pool at Carthage; municipal cemetery at Carthage; community building at Rich Hill.

The State Advisory Board of the PWA passed last week the following applications: Cape Girardeau, Fredericktown, Monett and Stanberry, municipal electric plants; Kirkwood, sewage disposal plant and sewers; Carthage and Houston, waterworks; Eureka, Niangua and Wardell, schools.

NRA CITES 100 CLEANERS ON CODE VIOLATION CHARGE

Says Those Who Fail to Justify Actions at Hearing Dec. 11 Will Face Prosecution.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Threatening prosecution, the National Recovery Administration today notified more than 100 dry cleaners that they were charged with violating their code by disregarding minimum prices fixed for their trade areas. They were informed that a hearing would be held Monday, Dec. 11, and that those who failed to justify their actions would have to deal with the Department of Justice.

This was the first time NRA has sought court action. It has removed a few Blue Eagles, and a number of violators have been brought around through persuasion. While announcing the move towards discipline, NRA acted also to help hotels which complain they cannot operate under the wage and hour schedules of the newly adopted code for their trade.

Johnson Stays Provisions. Administrator Hugh S. Johnson signed an order staying application of wage and hour provisions on condition that all hotels try to conform to the fullest extent possible until Jan. 1, that those which do not carry out code terms file by that date petitions substantiating the contention of undue hardship; and that by the same date the industry shall have established a code authority able to administer the pact.

At the same time NRA pointed out, as an example of effective code operation, the newly approved order of the cotton code authority under which all production by cotton mills during December will be reduced 25 per cent. Already it is forbidden to install new machinery without an NRA permit. Now, with sales of cotton goods in a seasonal slump, the available business is to continue to be shared among the mills. These have been running two machine shifts of 40 hours a week each. They will have to come down to a total of 60 hours weekly, still on two shifts since 40 hours is the limit to which employees may be worked.

To Help Profitless Charges. The dry cleaning code violation hearings will begin the day before NRA starts another series of public sessions on complaints of profiteering. Dealers and customers alike will have an opportunity to protest against alleged overcharges and NRA hopes to establish definitely whether codes have been used for outright gouging or whether they have caused disproportionate price rises for the benefits obtained. Included in the list of dry cleaners charged with violation of the code were: The Broadway Hat Cleaners, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Royal Cleaners, Jefferson City; eight firms at Kansas City, Mo. and the Herrin Dry Cleaners, Herrin, Ill.

The cleaning hearings, conducted by Johnson, will continue until all complaints have been passed on. The evidence to be used has been gathered by investigators of the Federal Trade Commission, working with NRA's deputy administrator, H. B. Ludlum. Each man charged with violation has been sent a letter informing him of the hearing, and giving opportunity for defense with the added warning: "In your absence such action will be taken as the facts in the case warrant."

NRA officials said in many cases it believed the violations were not intentional but due to misunderstanding of the individual's obligations under the code. But in many others the investigators have picked up advertisements and letters flaunting the code violation. It will be up to these defendants to make good their contention that the minimum prices established for their territory are excessive and unreasonable, or face prosecution.

The minimum prices now in effect range from 65 cents to 95 cents with the exception of California where a code adopted under State law fixes a $1 minimum. These levels were approved by NRA subject to further study and a hearing on Dec. 18, to determine the actual effect of the new minimums in operation.

FATHER DROPS SUIT TO ANNUL SYLVIA SIDNEY'S ADOPTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The father of Sylvia Sidney, motion picture actress, agreed today to her adoption by her stepfather in withdrawing a Supreme Court action to set aside the proceedings.

"I brought this action because I desired to prove to Sylvia by means of testimony adduced in open court," said Victor Kosow, the father, "that circumstances not of my making had been the source of our unhappy estrangement."

Kosow's explanation was incorporated in a stipulation signed by his attorneys and counsel for Miss Sidney and her stepfather, Dr. Sigmond Sidney, who married Kosow's divorced wife.

Neither money nor promises, the stipulation said, had been given Kosow for withdrawing the suit. In an answer to the original suit, Miss Sidney charged her father brought the action after she had refused to give him $18,000.

Kosow married Miss Sidney's mother in 1909, and the actress was born the next year. Her mother divorced Kosow in 1915 and four years later married Dr. Sidney.

CAULFIELD DISCUSSES A In Legal Profession He Heads See

PART TWO

Thinks Courts Could A Their Power to En Standard

BY SAM J. SHELDON
Of the Post-Dispatch

TURNING their inquisitorial powers up of Missouri are engaged in an extensive study of the legal profession. They are making this study of the through a commission appointed by the Governor because they think the bar has fallen in esteem, but because they wish to guard members whose practices tend to degrade the profession.

As chairman of the Commission, former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, also formerly a Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, discussed the various aspects of the inquiry, particularly from the standpoint of the public welfare, an interview for publication in the Post-Dispatch.

ation-Wide Movement. The Missouri inquiry, he said, is an incident in a nation-wide movement for the courts to reassert, in a positive way, their inherent powers to control the practice of the law. The Supreme Court appointed the commission at the request of the executive committee of the State Bar Association, and authorized it to make thorough study of the practice law in Missouri and make recommendations for its regulation.

The Court's action, Gov. Caulfield explained, rests upon the long-established principle that the lawyer is an officer in the court, and as such may be required to conform to rules of professional conduct laid down by the courts. In his opinion, the majority lives up to the high standards set by the profession itself in its various codes of ethics, meriting the trust and confidence of the public.

The bar stands ready, he thinks, to cleanse itself of the evils that may creep in and tend to bring it into ill repute. To this end, it is his opinion that as a practical matter it would be well for the courts to take clearly to themselves the function of hearing complaints and correcting abuses that may arise within the profession.

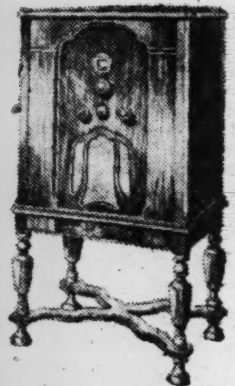

disturbing Conditions. Although he believes the standards of the bar are as high as ever and that most lawyers are guided by a high conception of duty, Gov. Caulfield recognizes certain disturbing conditions which have come with the times, among them: A disproportionate increase in number of lawyers. Keener competition, leading to unethical means of obtaining business. Encroachment in the field of law practices by certain lay agencies. Entrance into the profession of persons of unworthy character.

competition Increasing. As to the overcrowding of the profession, with stimulation of competition, Gov. Caulfield pointed to a recent address by Judge Frank E. Atwood of State Supreme Court before the Kansas City Bar Association. Judge Atwood said: "There is today an increasing suggestion of the bar which threatens its moral collapse. It is not to say that making a living is merely incidental to a lawyer's primary duty to render public service, but under highly competitive conditions that make realization of that incident improbable if not impossible to all, for many the primary duty is either never in or is out of the picture."

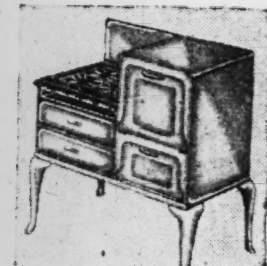

"Deviation from right standards is inevitable, frequently resulting in a disgraceful and menacing liaison between members of the bar and leaders of highly organized crime."

In that address Judge Atwood noted census reports showing that from 1920 to 1930, when the population increased 16 per cent, there was an increase of 31 per cent in number of lawyers. The result was one lawyer to every 1,000 persons in 1930 compared with one to every 862 in 1920. The

Gov. Caulfield's opinion of the standards of the legal profession is based on a study of the profession in Missouri and other states. He believes that the courts should take a more active role in regulating the profession, and that the bar should be held to a higher standard of conduct.

Caulfield Discusses Abuses In Legal Profession Which Group He Heads Seeks to Remedy

Thinks Courts Could Aid by Exercising Their Power to Enforce Ethical Standards.

BY SAM J. SHELTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

TURNING their inquisitorial powers upon themselves, the lawyers of Missouri are engaged in an extensive self-examination. They are making this study of the state of their profession through a commission appointed by the Supreme Court of Missouri, not because they think the bar has fallen from its high place in public esteem, but because they wish to guard it against a minority of its members whose practices tend to degrade it and bring public reproach upon it.

As chairman of the Commission, former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, also formerly a Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, discussed the various aspects of the inquiry, particularly from the standpoint of the public welfare, in an interview for publication in the Post-Dispatch.

Nation-Wide Movement.

The Missouri inquiry, he said, is an incident in a nation-wide movement for the courts to reassert, in a positive way, their inherent powers to control the practice of the law. The Supreme Court appointed the commission at the request of the executive committee of the State Bar Association, and authorized it to make a thorough study of the practice of law in Missouri and make recommendations for its regulation. The Court's action, Gov. Caulfield explained, rests upon the long-established principle that the lawyer is an officer in the court, and as such may be required to conform to rules of professional conduct laid down by the courts. In his opinion, the majority lives up to the high standards set by the profession itself in its various codes of ethics, meriting the trust and confidence of the public.

The bar stands ready, he thinks, to cleanse itself of the evils that may creep in and tend to bring it into ill repute. To this end, it is his opinion that as a practical matter it would be well for the courts to take clearly to themselves the function of hearing complaints and correcting abuses that may arise within the profession.

Disturbing Conditions.

Although he believes the standards of the bar are as high as ever and that most lawyers are guided by a high conception of duty, Gov. Caulfield recognizes certain disturbing conditions which have come with the times, among them these:

A disproportionate increase in number of lawyers. Keener competition, leading to unethical means of obtaining business. Encroachment in the field of law practices by certain lay agencies. Entrance into the profession of persons of unworthy character.

Competition Increasing.

As to the overcrowding of the profession, with stimulation of competition, Gov. Caulfield pointed to a recent address by Judge Frank E. Atwood of State Supreme Court before the Kansas City Bar Association. Judge Atwood said:

"There is today an increasing suggestion of the bar which threatens its moral collapse. It is the fact that making a living is merely incidental to a lawyer's primary duty to render public service, but under highly competitive conditions that make realization of that incident improbable if not impossible to all, for many the primary duty is either never in or is soon out of the picture."

"Deviations from right standards is inevitable, frequently resulting in a disgraceful and menacing liaison between members of the bar and leaders of highly organized crime."

In that address Judge Atwood noted census reports showing that from 1920 to 1930, when population increased 16 per cent, there was an increase of 31 per cent in number of lawyers. The result was one lawyer to every 100 persons in 1930 compared with one to every 362 in 1920.

In the same period the number of doctors increased only 6 per cent.

Lay Encroachment.

As to the encroachment on the profession, Judge Atwood said: "Contributing causes of this economic demoralization have been lay encroachment upon what has heretofore been regarded as exclusively the lawyers' field of activity; the development of a social philosophy creating liability without fault determinable by boards and commissions without the aid of lawyers; and the settlement of controversies by arbitration without resort either to bench or bar."

"Such causes may be minimized or removed by cutting down the expenses, uncertainty and delay incident to court action which undoubtedly provoked some of them, and by a better understanding of the scope of service that should be entrusted exclusively to lawyers—not primarily that they should enjoy the benefits of a monopoly but to the end that the public should be assured of prompt, inexpensive and efficient justice."

Suggests Probation Period.

Gov. Caulfield discussed the entrance of unworthy persons into the profession, making the suggestion, without committing himself to it, that perhaps admission to the bar should be subject to a period of probation, permitting a review of the new lawyers' record at the end of a year and again at the end of three years. "Our educational standards have been commendably raised," he said. "Under the system of examinations in Missouri it is practically impossible for an applicant to gain admission unless he is properly qualified in his knowledge of the law and fundamental subjects. But the examinations do not enable the board to tell the character of the applicant. The most brilliant student may be lacking in moral qualifications."

"The applicant who swears to uphold the honor of the courts and of his profession may intend all the time to resort to low and dishonorable methods in order to build up a lucrative business. The examining board cannot read his mind. A few such men who do wrong as lawyers can cast great discredit upon the bar if the bar does not take steps to cleanse itself."

"Lawyers as a whole have pride in the standing of their profession. Their compensation comes in part from the high esteem in which they are held by their fellows. The law is not a big money-making profession. There are some lawyers who deservedly reap large rewards for their superior knowledge and ability, but as a whole their money return is comparatively small. Their greater incentive is the respect and confidence of the public and the opportunity which is theirs to render unselfish public service."

Richards Case Cited.

Gov. Caulfield said that in his opinion the maintenance of high standards in the profession would be encouraged if the courts would set up their own machinery for hearing complaints and correcting abuses. Their power to regulate the professional conduct of the members of the bar is exclusive and unlimited, he declared, pointing out that this has recently been reaffirmed by the State Supreme Court. (In the Richards case.) The exercise of this power by

OTTAWA, Dec. 2.

OTHER peoples may have marched faster and farther toward recovery than Canada, but, if so, the fact is not revealed by the indexes of world industry. What these show is that in the matter of employment, trade and general economic improvement, Canada's advance, more particularly in the last two months, has equaled, if it has not exceeded, that of any other country.

The peak of unemployment, which came during last winter, saw 900,000 Canadians without work. Since April 1, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, more than 300,000, or one-third of all those unemployed, have been reabsorbed by industry.

So, that, taking account of new employment given by the public works programs of the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal governments, it is a safe estimate that the country's unemployment figures have been practically cut in two.

The physical volume of business in Canada today is 15 per cent greater than one year ago (the corresponding figure for most countries is more nearly 10 per cent). This, however, includes all business, and does not give a true or adequate picture of the improvement made in key or major industries.

A Year's Progress.

What that improvement has been may be judged from the following figures by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, comparing October, 1932, with October, 1933:

| Production. | Increase. | Decrease. |
|------------------------------|-----------|-----------|
| Newsprint | 19% | |
| Car and trucks | 148% | |
| Electrical energy | 16 1/2% | |
| Beef | 23% | |
| Steel | 67% | |
| Construction contracts | 69% | |

| Trade | |
|--------------------------|------|
| Exports, total | 37% |
| Wheat, flour (bu.) | 22% |
| Automobiles | 22% |
| Lumber | 216% |
| Nickel | 581% |
| Imports, total | 12% |
| Raw cotton | 63% |

Nor are these isolated figures. The bureau's index shows wholesale prices advanced by 5 per cent, with copper 18 per cent higher, beef hides 56 per cent higher, pulp, 8 per cent, wheat 26 per cent. It shows also that total cheque payments have advanced 17 per cent, stock prices (excluding mines) 24 per cent, gold mine stocks 90 per cent.

Car loadings show a sustained improvement, this despite the fact that there has been a curtailment of wheat exports, with a consequent decline of railway carriage of grain. At the same time there has been an enormous increase in canal traffic. The Sault Ste. Marie canals conveyed 8,453,000 tons of freight in September, compared with 3,807,000 tons during the same month last year.

The courts, particularly by the Supreme Court, would greatly facilitate the enforcement of ethical standards, he said, and would be welcomed by the bar. It was his view that the Court should designate permanent commissioners who would have authority to call in lawyers and require them to answer to complaints. Such hearings would not necessarily be pub-

Prime Minister of the Dominion of Canada

000 tons during the same month last year. The Welland Canal carried 1,373,000 tons compared with 1,292,000 tons; the St. Lawrence canals 1,129,000 tons compared with 1,061,000 tons. The bulk of this traffic was in iron and steel and manufactured products.

Lumber's Big Gain.

Perhaps the most striking improvement of all is that made in the lumber industry, one of the Dominion's greatest. Aided by the Empire preferences secured under the Ottawa agreements of last year, lumber operators shipped 112,000,000 board feet of planks and boards in September, this as against 35,000,000 board feet during the same months last year, and employment in the logging industry has increased by 126 per cent.

For the first time in three years timber operations in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, are sending men to the lumber camps in large numbers, and in September, according to a statement by Premier Bennett the other day, British Columbia sold and shipped more lumber than in any month in its history.

The truth is that in every major field of economic activity, in employment, in production of manufactures, in mining development, in domestic and international trade, in increase of commodity prices and in construction, Canada is experiencing a rapid and sustained recovery, with a consequent confidence on the part of both the Government and public that the depression has been conquered.

Government Keeps Out.

A notable feature of this recovery is that it has been achieved with a minimum of state interference with business. From the outset of the depression, the Bennett Government took the stand that, apart from a program of public works to check unemployment, its chief duty was to adjust the country's trade balances, to meet its international obligations to the letter of the contract, to maintain the integrity of its money by avoidance of inflation and to preserve the national credit.

It held that, with these steps taken, plus agreements with Empire and other countries to foster export trade, no need existed to meddle or interfere with private industry, that in the ordinary course of events and through its own initiative business could be left to work out its own recovery.

This policy was adhered to, and successfully. An unfavorable international trade balance of $150,000,000 in 1930 (the unfavorable balance with the United States was $300,000,000) has been changed to a favorable balance of nearly $100,000,000, this through a judicious use of tariff measures and the securing of export markets.

Benefits of Treaties.

Under the Ottawa agreements, which secured Empire preferences for a wide range of Canadian products, exports to the United Kingdom and British Dominions of forest, mineral and agricultural products have increased enormously.

A trade treaty with France, put into effect last June, increased exports to that country by 91 per cent.

A treaty with Germany produced an almost equally beneficial effect; and, in fact, there was an increase of Canadian exports in the case of more than 30 countries.

The direct result, of course, was an increase in the country's production in practically all lines, with increased work and wages for Canadian workers, and a corresponding increase in purchasing power.

England's departure from the gold standard struck a hard blow at Canada. One of its first results was that the Canadian dollar fell to a discount of 15 per cent in New York, this imposing a tremendous additional burden upon the Dominion and Provincial Governments in meeting interest and principal payments on United States borrowings.

High Credit Standing.

The situation was met by an embargo on private gold shipments, the Government buying the output of all Canadian mines and using it to meet its New York payments. As a consequence, all Dominion and Provincial obligations were met promptly and according to the letter of the contract, this contributing as nothing else could toward world confidence in the country's credit.

As a result, Canada, three months ago, was able to float a loan in the British market upon the lowest terms in a quarter of a century, and the Government's Conversion Loan was heavily over-subscribed.

Pursuing this moderate course, the Canadian Government has not been free from pressure to adopt more radical measures. For two years it has had to withstand demands for "economic planning" and "social planning" and "nationalized credit," for interference with business and industry.

Upon his return from the World Economic Conference in London last summer, Premier Bennett was met by demands from all sides for an NRA for Canada, for at least a Canadian copy of the plans being carried out by President Roosevelt. His reply was that in a country like Canada, depending for its prosperity upon export markets, a policy that would increase production costs could only mean disaster; that in any event, he had little faith in too much State interference with industry, and that in no circumstances would he turn to anything that smacked of inflation.

NRA Idea Fading.

During the past month, with business and general economic conditions improving steadily the demand for a Canadian NRA has all but ceased.

The past month, with its depreciation of the United States dollar has seen enormously increased American purchases of Canadian securities, American investments in Canadian mines and plants, the coming to Canadian banks of millions of American deposits.

Moreover, as Sir Henry Drayton, former Dominion Minister of Finance, pointed out the other day, the rise in American prices must mean indirect Canadian benefit through the checking of competitive exports from the United States.

In the main, however, the bulk of the Canadian people are not now much concerned with the United States experiment. In the light of the demonstrable improvement of the past few months, they have become content to work out their own salvation through the old methods of a minimum of State interference with the individual and with the operations of industry.

Distillers Ruefully Accept Code Putting Control of Production And Price in Government's Hands

Liquor Interests Had Expected to Name
'Czar' to Direct Industry, Pin Hope for Change on Congress.

BY RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.

CONTAINING drastic provisions for price and production control and strict Government supervision, the temporary code for the distilled spirits industry, which went into effect Tuesday, is expected to be the model for codes covering the manufacture and distribution of other alcoholic beverages, and perhaps other products.

The distilled spirits code was the "hard liquor" production. If any distiller should want to increase his plant capacity, he must convince the administration that there is a consumptive demand for his additional production. The burden of proof is on the individual distiller. The code, however, permits the replacement of abandoned or destroyed plant capacity which could have been utilized at this time.

Speed, according to administration officials, was the requisite for the distillers' code because they wanted the nation protected in some way against a deluge of liquor that might be loosed this week when the twenty-first amendment voids the Volstead act. President Roosevelt announced in signing the code that it would be operative only until Congress had enacted liquor control legislation.

Representatives of the distilling interests declare that the code was forced upon them and that while they will sign it with a few reservations, notably that it is temporary and that they do not waive their right of judicial review, they say that their only hope is in Congress. They expect to be able to persuade Congress that the code provisions are too severe.

Price Control Labels.

Consumers are not likely to find fault with the price controlling and false labeling provisions of the code. All prices, wholesale and retail, shall be posted and subject to veto by a Government Board, and no price shall be so high as to encourage, directly or indirectly, the sale of "distilled spirits in violation of the law," or "be oppressive to the consumer."

Under "unfair methods of competition" the code forbids false advertising, misbranding, misleading bottles and violation of the food and drugs act.

Although saying nothing for quotation, the distillers are alarmed at the code. They had hoped to control their own industry by a "Czar" and a code authority of 10 representatives of the industry. They thought they had the approval of Government officials to this plan until they learned that the code was on its way to Warm Springs. Then they found out that instead of a dictator of their own choosing, there would be a Federal supervisory body of five Government officials known as the Federal Alcohol Control Administration authorized to approve or reject all the proposals of the code authority.

Under the temporary code, the FACA will be the supreme authority. At its head will be a director, who will take the individual place that the "Czar" was supposed to fill.

A Monopoly in Sight.

The industry was given five days in which to submit a plan for the selection of the 10 representatives on the code authority. If after that time the industry fails to submit such a plan, or if the plan does not meet with administration approval, the administration has the power to establish its own plan for control of the industry. Members of the code authority are subject to the approval of the administration and subject to removal at the discretion of the administration.

The provisions in the code for control of plant capacity and production are in line with the Rooseveltian proposal to limit the "free use of money," meaning the Government control of capital intended for unwarranted production. The distillers have not opposed these provisions to any great extent, believing that these provisions give them a virtual monopoly.

May Allot Quotas.

Should the administration hold that even the present plant capacity is too great and that distillers are accumulating excessive stocks, which might lead to excessive competition for sales, the administration is empowered to limit production and distribution of the "hard liquor," and to allocate quotas among members of the industry. This is outright Government control of production and if the powers are used, will mark the end of laissez-faire or open competition among distillers and distributors.

Hearings are now being held on a code for importers of alcoholic beverages and the Government is seeking to impose import quotas on this group.

Under the heading, "Prices and Terms of Sale," the distillers' code provides for indirect but effective control of prices, together with full publicity regarding them.

Every member of the industry is required to make available to trade and ultimate buyers all prices charged in the various steps of distribution. If the code authority finds that these prices are too high, it can declare them ineffective. If the administration thinks that the code authority has not done its duty by the trade and the ultimate consumers, the administration can declare the prices ineffective. Posting or publishing of a false or misleading price list is prohibited.

Indirect Price Fixing.

Thus, while the Government agency is not authorized to establish prices, it can by its veto power over prices fixed by the industry, effectively determine indirectly what the price of distilled spirits shall be.

In the distillers' marketing agreement, now being drawn up, the Government is likewise seeking to tell the industry what ingredients it shall use in the making of whiskey. This has precipitated a row between the State and Agricultural Department over the proposed bar on molasses and imported cereal grains. The State Department is against any restrictions on imports, while the Department of Agriculture is firm on the use of American cereal grain in the manufacture of whiskey. It is likely that the agreement will confine the raw materials to "cereal grains," which will prohibit the use of molasses but permit the use of some imported rye and barley.

A majority of the distillers have indicated that they will accept this compromise.

Somewhat ruefully, the distillers are accepting without public outcry the virtual Government control of their industry contemplated by the code and the forthcoming marketing agreement. They realize that their position is not strong enough to gain public support, but they are working with the brewers, who also have a code, and with the drug and patent medicine industries, which are afraid of Government control under the proposed pure food and drug act sponsored by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Tugwell.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Keeping Chicago's Trainers Freed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN I visited the world's fair last summer, the Hall of Science, which contained that part of the exhibition showing the advance of medicine, made the deepest impression upon me. Your editorial suggesting a Federal inquiry into Chicago's suppression of news of the anemic dysentery epidemic recalls vividly Ibsen's play, "An Enemy of the People." You may remember the story. A Swedish town's principal industry is a new mineral spring bath, built at considerable expense. The doctor's advice concerning construction of the new bathhouse is ignored because of the added expense, and the pipes unfortunately do tap sewage water, injurious to health. Despite the pressure of his father-in-law, who is the Mayor, and influential friends and relatives, who are also heavy stockholders in the health resort, the doctor suffers poverty, ostracism, physical violence and disgrace because he insists upon making public the simple fact that the town's chief industry, the health resort, is not only no cure, but positively harmful. As the curtain rises on the third act, a window in the doctor's home is broken. The doctor is on all fours retrieving a rock that had just been hurled through the window, and rolled under a couch. His good Sunday suit is in tatters, as a result of an attack while on his way home from church. The town was virtually unanimous in branding the doctor an enemy of the people. A visiting neighbor is shocked at his appearance. Walter Hampden, playing the role of the doctor, says things are not as bad as the condition of his clothing would indicate, but that he had just learned an important lesson: "If you ever fight a battle on behalf of the people, never wear your best Sunday trousers."

The people of the nation who, by their attendance, made the world's fair a successful financial venture, and some of whom contracted and may spread anemic dysentery will, I imagine, deeply appreciate the solicitude for the crease in the Sunday trousers of Chicago doctors, newspapers and others guilty of suppressing the facts.

What better evidence could we ask of a century of real progress?

JOSEPH M. KLAMON.

Liquor Control.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE sale of liquor in original packages from responsible business establishments would need little supervision. Sold to be drunk at the places of sale, especially in restaurants, it will get beyond control and convert the places into dissolute saloons. The licensed public drinking places should be provided only on the premise of necessity and convenience, not for any other reason or influence, and should be regulated and patrolled.

A better plan would be to establish beer halls and liquor dispensaries under direct supervision of a commission, conducted by salaried dispensers and with patrol. Local opinion regarding liquor traffic cannot be rightfully refused, but in many communities this plan of strict supervision should be preferable. The supports of the old saloon have been partially removed by the experience under the eighteenth amendment. We should build a rat-proof foundation for the new system.

OCTO KOCHITZKY.

Consolation for the Bankers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OUR bankers are terribly upset over the monetary ideas of the administration and the prospects of inflation. These "sacred custodians of the life savings of widows" are worried sick because they are even asked to recognize the purchase of Government bonds. Most of us will not be surprised to learn that the "funds of widows and orphans" constitute such a great portion of their business of late.

It seems to me we have never before heard so much about widows and orphans and little holders of life insurance policies. It is simply wonderful to know that they have at last gained their place in the sun. I have seen some of the bonds these pious guardians of the little fellow have sold widows. I was recently asked by an heir of a widow to check the values of a list of such bonds, and, by the way, finding a Government bond on the list was like locating the taxable income of a Wiggin, and the value of the balance (unlisted) would make the inflation shrinkage of a Government bond look like a post-war German mark. As consolation for these poor gentlemen bowed down under the great responsibility of giving financial advice to "widows, orphans and little policyholders," they will probably not be asked again to give it.

"FOLKS, OUR DOLLAR IS BEING RUINED."

To Senator Patterson.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE just read where Roscoe Patterson remarked, on his recent visit to St. Louis, that he was undecided whether he would be a candidate for reelection. By all means don't disappoint us, Senator! Having viewed your record in the Senate in the past two years on everything progressive and worth while, nothing would give us greater pleasure than to see you headed for oblation.

HORACE.

THE BATTLE OF THE NEW DEAL.

As an outgrowth of the Senate's security investigation, which has held the stage in Washington off and on for many months, an effort will be made in the next Congress to establish Federal control over the New York Stock Exchange and all other exchanges. It is believed by Senator Fletcher, author of the proposal, that ample legal authority exists, citing the Government's taxing and general welfare powers, as well as its authority over the use of the mails. President Roosevelt approves the proposed act and has urged its presentation to the next Congress.

Four years have passed since that Black Thursday in 1929, when the speculative orgy, which had lifted stock prices to fantastic heights, came a cropper. The focal point of the orgy was the New York Stock Exchange, whose directors and members not only were unwilling to check it, but spurred it on. It is almost impossible to grasp the vast implication of the stock collapse which, in turn, as says the great English economist, John Maynard Keynes, became the chief contributing factor to the American depression.

Not the New York Stock Exchange alone, but the people at large, were in the grip of a psychosis, as the people of England were gripped during the South Sea Bubble and the people of France in the Mississippi Bubble. It was thought possible to get rich, not by working, but by buying engraved certificates whose value magically increased from day to day. To tell in such a world of unreality was to defy all of the lessons of human wisdom, but it was nevertheless what we did.

It is, therefore, foolish to place all the responsibility upon the New York Stock Exchange and the other exchanges, which acted as the media for our madness. But they do bear a certain special responsibility. The bankers and brokers were looked upon as the Delphic oracles of our age, yet, instead of furnishing sober and intelligent leadership, they, too, lost their heads. Worse, many were corrupt. Many played shamelessly off other people's money, to use the phrase of Louis D. Brandeis. As a class, even when their motives were above reproach, they were as blind and stupid as was the country.

What measure of control will be undertaken has not been disclosed. It must be assumed, however, that some of the most objectionable practices, such as "pools" and "trading syndicates," designed in many instances to fleece the public, will be prohibited. Will marginal trading be abolished? It is so effectively discouraged in London as to have almost disappeared. There are other British exchange regulations, discussed in the Post-Dispatch of July 31, which we seemingly might import, with happy results.

In no sense, therefore, is it an act of petty reprisal that Senator Fletcher and other congressional leaders, after listening to the shocking confessions of the Dillons, Wiggins, Sinclairs and Clarkes, have decided that the country must safeguard itself against a recurrence of 1929. It is a step glacial in significance. If it were not true that, out of 1929, should arise the star-eyed goddess of reform, then we are incapable of self-government and self-discipline.

Like the Securities Act and many other aspects of the New Deal, suggested control of the stock exchanges illustrates, not a movement for regimentation of the American people, but a determination to take arms against those forces in our civilization which would otherwise destroy us. We are placing a check on greed, dishonesty, corruption and exploitation, the Four Horsemen of the modern Apocalypse.

So profound a movement cannot proceed without causing the galled jade to wince. Those who have sat in the seats of the mighty will not be dispossessed without a struggle. Those who have bated on the carcass of the American people cannot be torn away without using drastic measures. Already, the targets of the New Deal have set up a counter-barrage to confuse the minds of the people and to discredit their leaders. Let no one be deceived. What we are witnessing is a battle to restore the national character, to drive the money changers out of the temple, to remake the United States in the terms of those fine traditions that made our country great.

THE 10 GREATEST LIVING AMERICANS.

Rabbi Newman of New York has selected the 10 living Americans who, he thinks, deserve to be described as "greatest." He begins his list with President Roosevelt and names second Justice Brandeis of the Supreme Court. The eight others are: Jane Addams, founder of Hull House and peace worker; Norman Thomas, Socialist leader; Dr. John Dewey, educator, philosopher and publicist; Eugene O'Neill, dramatist; Sinclair Lewis, novelist; Edwin Markham, author of "The Man With the Hoe"; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Jewish leader; and Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan, California zoologist and recipient of the 1933 Nobel prize for medicine.

In view of recent standards, the most striking thing is the conspicuous absence of captains of finance and industry. Ten years ago, any such list would have included Ford, Morgan, Rockefeller and, perhaps, others from the business world. Indeed, as recently as 1930, former Ambassador Gerard needed 64 names to list the "rulers of America," including, as well, such figures as Inoué, Mellon, Raebok, Young and the Du Ponts. But that was three years ago. The American people have learned a lot in the illuminating interval, and one thing, we trust, is a new standard for measuring men. Rabbi Newman's list is a signpost along the way.

IMPRISONMENT ACCORDING TO EACH CASE.

Prison reform in Illinois, long wanting there as in most other states, is under way. Gov. Horner has placed Rodney H. Brandon, director of the State Department of Public Welfare under his Republican predecessor, in charge of carrying out changes in the operation of penal institutions required by enactments of the last regular session of the Legislature. Under these measures, which were sponsored by the late Senator Clifford J. Vogelzang of Taylorville, the old disordered system, if it could be called a system, gives way to a plan of classification and segregation such as penologists have urged for years. The new arrangement provides that all persons sentenced to prison shall first be received and studied by alienists at the prison in Joliet, which becomes what might be called a diagnostic clearing house. From there, the normal first offenders will be sent to Stateville, near Joliet, normal juveniles to Pontiac, women to Dwight, and the mentally abnormal to Menard, near Chester. Incurable criminals will remain in Joliet. This plan is calculated to make the operation of the institutions more economical, while at the same time affording incarceration which takes into account the condition of each offender. It is a reform such as might be expected during the administration of a chief executive with Gov. Horner's reputation as a humanitarian.

PROPHET OF THE NEW DEAL IN BANKING.

The Chase National Bank had its Wiggin.

It now has its Aldrich. Wiggin exemplified the old deal at its worst. Aldrich appears as the prophet of the New Deal. Mr. Aldrich has outlined a banking code which, if written into the law and enforced and conscientiously observed, will eradicate practices which he correctly describes as "Indefensible."

First of all, Mr. Aldrich proposes that the Glass-Steagall Act be so strengthened as to enable it to accomplish one of its principal objectives, namely, the complete separation of commercial and investment banking, the prevention of interlocking managements and the further prevention of interlocking managements between commercial banks.

The law, as it stands, falls of that purpose, in his opinion. It is possible for one person, he points out, to serve as a director of any number of commercial banks, so long as none of them is a national bank. There are other loopholes through which interlocking managements of commercial banks can, in effect, function, not in the unlimited flagrancy of old, to be sure, but sufficiently to defeat the intent of the law. Again, a provision of the act, which he cites, will permit an interlocking directorate between an investment bank and a commercial bank, something wholly contrary to the design of Congress.

Can't you see these crevices, is Mr. Aldrich's advice. There are other practices which experience has shown to be inimical alike to banking and to public policy, and, as such, should be forbidden by law. It is a sweeping bill of injunctions, this Aldrich code.

Bank officers shall not participate, directly or indirectly, in syndicates offering securities to the public.

Executive officers shall be required to tell Reserve Bank directors about outside interests and incomes.

Securities affiliates are legally on the way out, but Mr. Aldrich would give them an extension of time in which prudently to liquidate their assets, or hold them until "prudent disposition" could be made. (One of Mr. Aldrich's early official acts as president of the Chase bank was to abolish the bank's security affiliate.)

"Policy" loans, being loans granted because of the borrower's connection with a depositor, should be reported to that depositor.

Securities dealers should be forbidden to accept member bank funds for deposit.

Those Aldrich thou-shalt-nots might almost be compressed into the phrase, "No more Wigginism." The former head of the Chase bank, as the Senate committee's inquiry disclosed, was addicted to many of those vices. Speculative syndicates were a hobby which Wiggin pursued with diligence, ingenuity and originality. His outside connections yielded him handsome returns. Wherever there was a plum tree, Wiggin was there; sometimes passively waiting for the fruit to drop; not infrequently expediting the harvest by violently shaking the reluctant boughs. So, while Shakespeare may have been right in observing that the evil men do lives after them, yet it is also true that the ways of the unrighteous now and then indicate straighter, clearer paths to those that follow after.

It may be said, perhaps, that Mr. Aldrich has come down from Sinai, with a fine armful of tablets. Well, the banking business, which had taken on the complexion of a racket, needs a Moses. Moreover, this is no counsel of perfection, offered by a theorist, but the considered reforms of an experienced, successful man, fully aware of his responsibilities as a banker and a public servant, who concluded his recommendations with the declared purpose that the Chase National Bank shall be "governed at all times by the standards" proposed.

LOOKING AHEAD.

One month from today, Congress will be reassembled. What will transpire during the coming session no one knows, but every sign indicates that it, like the special session, will be historic. Senator Norris of Nebraska expects a turbulent time, and he is a veteran warrior whose 30 years' service in Washington qualifies him to forecast the intensity of the battle. Intrenched greed, which feared to raise its voice during the momentous days of March, April and May, is marshaling its forces for attacks on the progressive laws enacted at that time. A campaign is on to weaken the Securities Act. Senator Dickinson of Iowa has announced that he will introduce a bill to repeal the NRA. Senators Schall of Minnesota, Hatfield of West Virginia, Patterson of Missouri and other avowed opponents of the recovery program can be counted on to do all they can to undo the New Deal. Judging by its comment during recent weeks, the Tory press will be on their side.

If it is true to say that critical days are ahead, it is none the less true. The public opinion which disowned the old order a year ago may need to make itself even more articulate in the months to come if we are to preserve the social gains which have focused on us the eyes of the world.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF THE KINGFISH.

It was with a good deal of anticipatory relish that we picked up the autobiography of Huey P. Long, entitled, strangely enough, "Every Man a King." Instead of the more appropriate "Every Man a Kingfish." Surely, this would be a literary adventure. It would be a political edition of Rabelais, with the grinning Huey exuding salty comments on every page, pillorying the great, revealing the astounding secrets of his own curious career and, in general, casting about in the reckless, untamed (but not always, cf. Sands Point) manner that the country has been accustomed to associate with him.

This advance impression seemed about to be borne out when, on the first page of the volume, the eyes alighted upon references to Benvenuto Cellini and Cardinal Masarin. Alas! The first page turned out to be a merely ornamental preface to Huey's political quarrels and achievements in the State of Louisiana, with a little lagniappe about the Senator's campaign for the redistribution of wealth in the United States.

Long reveals himself as a third-rate demagogue, thereby confirming the view of him already generally accepted. He has gifts, to be sure. How else could he have dominated Louisiana politically? But his vanity, ruthlessness and overweening personal ambition, plus his unspeakable vulgarity, are calculated to injure every good cause he espouses.

IT WILL TAKE SOMETHING MORE THAN SILK HATS, BOYS.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

History of a New Type

OVER HERE: 1914-1918. (Our Times; Volume 5). By Mark Sullivan. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

IN reading even the greatest of standard historical works, the careful student is compelled to keep in mind the author's point of view, determined largely by social outlook and temperamental bias. It is necessary to ascertain, and to remember constantly what thesis the author, whether consciously or not, has undertaken to elaborate; for it is astonishing how obliging the most stubborn facts may seem to be when the matter of arrangement and emphasis is left to the narrator with a theory to support.

One of the most valuable histories of our day, Wells' "Outline," may be read with safety only by those who constantly bear in mind the fact that the author's driving purpose was to restate the world story from the proletarian viewpoint. So read, the work casts a brilliant illumination upon many dark spots of history; and the implied thesis serves as a powerful integrating force that brings into one vast pattern of meaning the chaotic details of human experience. But to read it without constantly remembering the author's thesis must result in a biased view of the human adventure.

For some years now, Mark Sullivan has been writing a new type of history, in which the foregoing remarks do not apply. It is a type of history that could not possibly be written of the remote past; for what we have in the five volumes of "Our Times" now published is the tremendous story of the United States during the present century, conceived in the spirit of the modern newspaper at its best. The author has no thesis to support; rather, he approximates the ideal reporter, who records the vital moment as it flies and leaves the meaning of it all—any—to some vastly more comprehensive understanding than his own, or to the guesser whom some wishful thinking renders bold.

There is occasional editorial comment and discussion, but, being retrospective, it is not burdened with the necessity of interpreting facts in the interest of a program or policy; it is wholly by way of disinterested illumination, and the facts are there for any man's interpretation should it seem the author errs.

To read this story of our experiences here in the United States during the four years of the World War is to relive those years almost day by day, and with a heightened sense of the vital meaning of the moment that could not have been ours at the time. The familiar events unfold, the familiar attitudes, enthusiasms and follies are recapitulated, the familiar personalities come and go upon the stage, making again the familiar utterances; and it is all as fog-like as when we were living in it; only that now the light of what was then the future broods upon the fog, creating disillusioning transparencies where all of it, for most of us—and even for the leaders of our world—was then opaque.

Here is great tragedy, heightened by all the unconscious clowning that there was; here is great comedy, heightened by all the high heroism that there was, but comic still, for all the blood and tears and terror. One may take it as it pleases him to take it. At the opening of the book, the author has set the familiar lines of Southey:

"But what good came of it at last?"

"Why, that I cannot tell," said he;

"But 'twas a famous victory."

One turns again to the familiar doggerel when the record ceases as through weariness. "Twenty-five miles of noise," we read, hailed the return of the first two ships of soldiers. The London Daily Mail would pay a fortune to the first aviator who should fly the Atlantic. Certain ladies and gentlemen had written novels that were being widely read, and hailed no doubt as the "greatest" and "most" Bainsfather's comic war pictures were made into a play. The war was over, and everything would soon be quite all right again. Soon the Versailles conference would demonstrate just how much—if anything—had been learned at so great a cost, and certainly it would not be very much.

Out of any book that was worth writing—and this one decidedly was—some one idea or mood emerges, and lingers long even after the details of the book are forgotten. What seems to emerge from Sullivan's vivid history of the war years may be suggested in a few questions:

In times of great stress, is it the prime qualification of leadership to be misled? If, by some strange freak of fortune there should be one who really understood what was happening, one whose view of the forest was not obstructed by the trees, would that one not be automatically excluded from leadership by virtue of his comprehensiveness and prophetic vision? Do we seem, by any chance, as children in a kindergarten dedicated to the principle that only by making the maximum number of mistakes may we learn enough to enter the first grade in some hypothetical cosmic school later on?

NOW WITH HIS LOVE. Poems. By John Neale Bishop. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

ARCHIBALD MACLEISH, celebrated poet, says of this volume of verse: "This is the soundest work John Bishop has done— which means work as sound as any in our generation."

A portion of the first page, not essentially different from the other pages, reads as follows, under the caption, "Speaking of Poetry":

"The ceremony must be found that will wed Desdemona to the huge Moor."

It is not enough—to win the approval of the Senator or to outwit his disapproval; honest Iago can manage that: it is not enough. For then, she will be found when the ambassadors of the Venetian state arrive again smothered. These things have not been changed, not in three hundred years."

In a world as wonderful as ours, and in view of the present tragic predicament of the human race, it is difficult to understand how a man of any vision whatever could feel justified in delivering himself such utterance; how a publisher of a standing could sponsor it; and how a poet could give it superlative approval.

THE BIRD OF DAWNING. By John Neale Bishop. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

HERE the British poet laureate tells us of the brave tale of the days of the China clipper ships, 70 years ago. When the story opens, the annual race for London is on between the crack ships of the tea fleet, and the Black Gauntlet, local hero, is rolling in the ominous evening silence before a mounting storm, somewhat "the extremest northern verge of the North East Trades." Her captain is evidently a trifle mad, as a result of loss of sleep and nervous strain. "Cruiser" Trewhell, the second mate, is the hero.

Night has fallen and the storm is raging when a steamship collides with the Black Gauntlet, and disappears immediately in the howling darkness. The sailing ship, sinking rapidly, Cruiser, in charge of the boats, manages to get away with 32 men, but the Captain, determined to die with the ship, delays the launching of the lifeboats, with the result that all the crew of the crew is lost, save one man, who, rescued after the ship has taken her final plunge, Cruiser's boat is fearfully crowded. In the excitement of the last moments, sufficient food and water have been taken aboard, and the nearest port is 700 miles away, which may mean as much as 20 days of torture.

The tale promises at first to be one of suffering from hunger and thirst; but after several days, a ship is sighted. She is "The Bird of Dawning," one of the contestants in the race, and her crew has deserted her while only three feet of water in her hold and the pumps jammed. There is evidence of a rescue attempt to sink her, the reason for which is revealed in the last chapter. Cruiser, his 16 men determine to bring the ship to London and win the race if possible. The do, and how they do it is a tale worth reading indeed.

THREE WENT ARMED. By Jack London. (The Dial Press, Inc., New York City.)

THIS romance of the eighteenth century, with South America for its principal setting, might be classified as another swash-buckling yarn but for the rather grand manner of the author, which is not an accident, but the natural result of his sense of the greatness of life lived in that age. In the opening lines, the reader feels lifted to a higher, headier air. The characters are one Conrado de Escobar, a romantic Spanish gentleman and master of the sword; Capt. Guillet Riccio, a pirate, and a man of Rabelaisian leanings. Each, after the fashion of his own dreaming, seeks an impossible ideal, to learn at last that this is the only goal, that the quest itself is the end.

SWANSON WANTS NAVY BUILT UP TO TREATY STRENGTH

Secretary Says in Report to President It Is Time to Abandon 'Lead in Disarmament by Example.'

JEOPARDIZES PEACE

Declaring for Orderly Program, He Points Out That 'Balanced Armament Fortifies Diplomacy.'

The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Abandonment of America's "lead in disarmament by example" and adoption of an orderly building program to make the United States navy "second to none" was urged by Secretary of Navy Swanson today in his annual report to President Roosevelt.

It was one of the strongest pleas made by a naval chief in recent years for a fleet of the full power permitted by existing naval treaties. "Since the World War the United States has been a leader in the disarmament movement," Swanson said. "We still continue most earnestly to strive for a reduction of armament among the Powers by agreement on a relative basis."

"The time has come, however, when we can no longer afford to lead in disarmament by example," he said. "The Powers have not followed our example, with the result that the United States now finds its relative naval strength seriously impaired."

He added that of the signatories of naval treaties the United States alone had not undertaken an ordering building program designed to bring the navy to the full force permitted by agreement.

"Our weakened position does not serve the cause of peace," he said. "It jeopardizes it, because balanced armament fortifies diplomacy and an important element in preserving peace and justice, whereas weakness invites aggressive, war-breeding violation of one's rights."

Referring again to America's example of disarmament, Swanson said it did not constitute an irony, but was an "extraordinary" expense of the World War building program when great outpouring of money gave little additional strength to the navy since the vessels were ready for service before the war ended.

Swanson expressed his approval of the existing 5-5-5 program of Great Britain, the United States and Japan under the Washington naval treaty and about 5-5-5 under the London pact.

There are two methods by which the ratio may be attained. First, reduction of naval strength on the part of other nations to our level or, second, by our building up the story ships, the annual race for London is on between the crack ships of the tea fleet, and the Black Gauntlet, local hero, is rolling in the ominous evening silence before a mounting storm, somewhat "the extremest northern verge of the North East Trades." Her captain is evidently a trifle mad, as a result of loss of sleep and nervous strain. "Cruiser" Trewhell, the second mate, is the hero.

Night has fallen and the storm is raging when a steamship collides with the Black Gauntlet, and disappears immediately in the howling darkness. The sailing ship, sinking rapidly, Cruiser, in charge of the boats, manages to get away with 32 men, but the Captain, determined to die with the ship, delays the launching of the lifeboats, with the result that all the crew of the crew is lost, save one man, who, rescued after the ship has taken her final plunge, Cruiser's boat is fearfully crowded. In the excitement of the last moments, sufficient food and water have been taken aboard, and the nearest port is 700 miles away, which may mean as much as 20 days of torture.

The tale promises at first to be one of suffering from hunger and thirst; but after several days, a ship is sighted. She is "The Bird of Dawning," one of the contestants in the race, and her crew has deserted her while only three feet of water in her hold and the pumps jammed. There is evidence of a rescue attempt to sink her, the reason for which is revealed in the last chapter. Cruiser, his 16 men determine to bring the ship to London and win the race if possible. The do, and how they do it is a tale worth reading indeed.

THREE WENT ARMED. By Jack London. (The Dial Press, Inc., New York City.)

THIS romance of the eighteenth century, with South America for its principal setting, might be classified as another swash-buckling yarn but for the rather grand manner of the author, which is not an accident, but the natural result of his sense of the greatness of life lived in that age. In the opening lines, the reader feels lifted to a higher, headier air. The characters are one Conrado de Escobar, a romantic Spanish gentleman and master of the sword; Capt. Guillet Riccio, a pirate, and a man of Rabelaisian leanings. Each, after the fashion of his own dreaming, seeks an impossible ideal, to learn at last that this is the only goal, that the quest itself is the end.

He added that the signatories of the naval treaties of 1922 and 1930 had not undertaken an orderly building program designed to bring the navy to the full force permitted by the treaties.

Referring again to America's example of disarmament, Swanson said it did not constitute an economy, but was an "extravagance." This was illustrated, he said, by the expense of the World War building program when a great many of the ships were of little value and the navy was in a state of disrepair.

He said the navy was ready for the future, but it was not ready for the present. "We must build up our navy to the level of the other great naval powers," he said. The first method is the one which the United States has followed. It has been followed by the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and under the Washington naval treaty and about 5-5-5 under the London pact.

Tests on Mummies of Pre-historic Americans at Washington U. Prove 'Modern' Diseases Ancient Similar Experiments Have Shown Cave Man Suffered From Joint Ailments and Dinosaur Had Meningitis.

The Americas of 1000 B. C. are being explored by Washington University scientists. Under the microscope, in the tissues of Americans who died from three to 30 centuries ago, Dr. H. A. McDermock and Dr. G. D. Williams of the School of Medicine are tracing records of life and death among the ancients. Their work, as they told St. Louis Medical Society in a recent meeting, is part of a study of pre-historic diseases by many scientists, which has shown that some ancient people suffered from disease commonly—and mistakenly—attributed to "the wear and tear of modern life."

After four years of work in this field, they are entering on a study of the oldest known Americans. Of 12 mummies just received for examination from Peabody Museum of Harvard University, several are "Basket-makers" thought to have lived in the Southwest 2500 years before Columbus crossed the Atlantic.

Relics of the Basket-Makers. The Basket-makers preceded the Pueblo Indians whom Europeans found in the same section. They differed in physique. They were "long-heads," as distinguished from the "round-heads" of the Pueblo Indians. They lacked the Pueblo's skill in pottery, and they had not learned, like the Pueblos, to use the bow and arrow. Instead, they were spear-throwers, users of the atlatl, a notched stick which served as an extension of the throwing arm. The spear was set in the notch, and thrown as country boys of today throw apples from a pointed stick.

They were recognized about 1915 by archeologists digging in the floors of caves of the Pueblos. The bodies, preserved in the dry sand, had been wrapped in blankets made of rabbit skins. A basket over the head and another over the lower part of the body had been sewed together, placed in a basket tray and covered by another large basket. The entire mummy was wrapped in a dog, somewhat like a collar, was found with the Basket-makers.

Archeologists believed these cliff-dwellers were the oldest people to have lived in the hemisphere. Their antiquity offers Dr. Williams and Dr. McDermock an opportunity afforded by no other Indian remains for exact knowledge of the diseases which prevailed in pre-Columbian times. In this sort of examination, the hope is to find an understanding of the disease of ancient man. Ancient literature and art, and more directly, skeletal remains, offer other fields.

Findings Aid Doctors. Egyptian medical papyri, even Greek records of comparatively modern times, contain much material on disease, but in general the descriptions of the disease is vague and the greater space devoted to the awesome lists of remedies. Art offers a better field, particularly in the carvings of deformed persons found in Egyptian temples and tombs.

In these statues and frescoes, modern scientists have been able to identify some of the most up-to-date diseases. Through them, for example, the dwarfs which were favorites of the Egyptian court, approximating the modern standing of bat boys—have been diagnosed as suffering from a disease, fairly recent in modern science, which prevented proper growth of the bones. Best known of them was Chnoum Hotep, keeper of the King's wardrobe in 2700 B. C.

Many more diseases of course, may be identified by their effects in soft tissues than in the skeleton. Bone diseases are comparatively few, and their effects are not always sufficiently distinctive for absolute diagnosis. But modern science has found evidence in ancient skeletons that most of the common diseases of today were prevalent in ancient times, that there has never been an epoch in which man was not troubled by toothache, that arthritis was common in the time of the Pharaohs, that chronic joint disease crippled the cave man and the cave bear which lived in the caves before him, and that even a dinosaur in the Yale museum had survived fractures of the skull and two ribs to die later—thousands of years ago—of a brain abscess or meningitis.

March 4 Limit for Filing South Side National Claims Receiver, in Issuing Notice, Says This Will Not Mean Bank Will Be Liquidated.

Notice to creditors of the closed South Side National Bank that claims against it must be filed by March 4 was given yesterday by the receiver, Edwin S. Coombs. This action, he said, did not mean that the bank would be liquidated, but the filing of claims would expedite reorganization.

Passbooks, certificates of deposit or other evidence of claims should be presented when the claims are filed. The receiver will accept claims each week-day from 10 a. m. until 2 p. m., except Saturday when the closing time will be noon.

The bank, owned by the Lafayette South Side Bank & Trust Co., which is being reorganized, has been closed since March.

cient man until Sir Marc Ruffer, professor of pathology and bacteriology in the Cairo school, worked out a method of preparing the specimens for laboratory study.

Treating Mummified Organs. The mummified organs come into the laboratory in an unrecognizable state, so brittle that they are likely to crumble into a black powder in the fingers. Soaked in softening fluids for two weeks to two months, they return to natural shape, but are of so granular a texture that they must be suspended in the solution on little wire platforms, so that they will not fall apart. They are treated in other fluids to harden them for handling, and then may be cut in very thin slices for examination under the microscope.

Sometimes the effects of disease can be seen with the naked eye. As the liver of a Greenland mummy resumed its normal shape in the softening fluid a few weeks ago, small kernels of calcium were visible on the surface. By X-ray they were shown to be the calcified remains of a parasite known as liver fluke, common among fish-eating peoples. Other workers have seen gall stones in Egyptian mummies, so numerous that the gall bladder looked like a bag of marbles.

With the microscope the scientists have examined the aorta of six mummies and in each case were able to identify the elastic strips. Bits of calcium in two of them indicated hardening of the arteries, the malady popularly associated with the stress of modern life. Most body cells or disease germs have lost their substance in the course of hundreds or thousands of years, but the microscopic framework of the tissue remains. This may be found the ravages of disease. Herein lay the evidence of arterial sclerosis, and by similar means scientists elsewhere have found evidence of tuberculosis, cirrhosis of the liver and heart disease.

The outstanding discovery of the work at Washington University in the last year was the identification of fish tapeworm eggs in the intestines of a Greenland mummy. Dr. Thomas Pyle, formerly with the United States Bureau of Animal Industry.

In this sort of examination, the hope is to find an understanding of the disease of ancient man. Ancient literature and art, and more directly, skeletal remains, offer other fields.

COMMUNITY COUNCIL SOCIAL WORK SURVEY

It Will Embrace the Relationship of Welfare Agencies to Needs of Area.

A social work survey of St. Louis and St. Louis County, embracing the relationship of welfare agencies to community needs, will be made by the St. Louis Community Council.

The survey will be conducted under the leadership of Dr. C. C. Stillman, director School of Social Administration, Ohio State University; Harry Lurie, executive director Bureau of Jewish Social Research, New York, and the Rev. John O'Grady, director National Council of Catholic Charities. It will take about three months.

Organization has begun of a staff recruited from national and local social work agencies. Headquarters will be maintained at 613 Locust street.

Four basic fields of activity will be considered. They are problems of dependency; community health programs; educational activities, and financial and co-ordination of welfare activities.

A welfare plan committee will be appointed consisting of 50 civic and welfare workers. The survey will attempt to disclose opportunities of strengthening the present social work program by pointing out duplications and weaknesses.

Date of beginning the survey has not been announced.

CANADA BUYING MORE RAW COTTON AND FEWER TEXTILES

Cloth Imports From United States Drop One-Half; Ottawa Agreement One Reason.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Department of Commerce reported today that during the first nine months of 1933, Canada's imports of American raw cotton and curtailing its imports from the United States of cotton manufactures. The report of the department from Consul Damon C. Woods, Toronto, showed that during the first nine months of 1933, Canada's imports of American cotton totaled 209,486 bales, valued at $9,483,000, compared with 192,709 bales valued at $7,267,000 in the corresponding period of last year. Imports in September, 1932, were 75 per cent greater than in the corresponding month of 1932.

While Canadian cotton imports from the United States have thus lately increased, receipts of American cotton products have been cut one-half, the value of September receipts being $188,258, against $368,445 in September, 1932.

The department believes, however, that the development is due to the tariff protection accorded Canadian mills on some cotton fabrics; an increase in the volume of such imports from British sources resulting from lower British preferential rates under the Ottawa agreements of a year ago; installation in Canada of branch plants of United States mills, and on some items to increased American prices, which have not been balanced by the higher exchange value of the Canadian dollar.

RELIGION AND HEALTH MISSION AT CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL

Meetings to Be Conducted by the Rev. Franklin Cole Sherman of Cleveland.

A mission on religion and health will be conducted at Christ Church Cathedral next week by the Rev. Franklin Cole Sherman of Cleveland, director of the American Guild of Health. A meeting will be held at 8 o'clock every evening from Dec. 10 to 15, inclusive. Afternoon meetings are to be announced.

The American Guild of Health was formed to restore the ministry of healing as an inherent part of the pastoral office of the church. Its principles include the exercise of healing by spiritual means "in complete loyalty to scientific principles and methods."

A committee of Episcopalian ministers, headed by Dean Sidney E. Sweet of the cathedral, is in charge of the mission.

W. D. COLLINS' ESTATE LEFT IN TRUST FOR HIS MOTHER

Wife, Said to Have Been Provided for Before His Death, and Children Get $1 Each.

The will of William Douglas Collins, retired leather dealer, who died Nov. 14, was filed for probate yesterday. It leaves his estate in trust for the benefit of his mother, Mrs. C. F. Collins. Upon her death, his sister, Mrs. Charles H. Morrill, is to receive the income and upon Mrs. Morrill's death the principal is to go to her children. The value of the estate was not given.

Mr. Collins left $1 each to his wife, Mrs. Jane Brown Collins; his son, Douglas Ford Collins; his daughter, Mrs. John Jay Johns and John and Barbara, Mrs. John's children. A member of the family said Mr. Collins had made provision for his wife before his death. The will was dated Dec. 5, 1927. The Mercantile Bank of Missouri and Bank of St. Louis were named trustees, while the trust company and Morrill were named executors. The trust company is declining to serve.

URGES LOCAL CHECK ON AMEBIC DYSENTERY

Dr. Zentay Gives Advice to Visitors to Chicago — Cases Here Under Control.

St. Louisans, especially those who have visited Chicago, were advised by Assistant Health Commissioner Zentay yesterday to consult their physicians on the appearance of any persistent intestinal disturbance, since 17 cases of amebic dysentery have been reported in the city.

Although Health Commissioner Bredeck last month, following the isolated warning from Chicago of an epidemic recognized there in August, urged physicians to report all cases coming to their notice, it was feared other St. Louisans might have the disease unknown to their physicians or even to themselves.

The symptoms, Dr. Zentay explained, are diverse and not readily recognized even by physicians except on laboratory tests, which the Health Division is ready to make on their request. The disease has sometimes been mistaken for appendicitis.

Persistent abdominal pain or diarrhea are particular signs for which St. Louisans who had visited the Chicago fair were advised to be on the lookout, especially if the symptoms were associated with constant loss of strength and weight.

City Epidemiologist Chopra reported the disease here well under control, except for the possibility of unknown cases. The 17 known patients, all of them up and about, are taking the proper steps toward recovery.

The disease can be spread only by disregard of common cleanliness, Dr. Chopra says. Proper washing of the hands by food handlers is regarded as the key to its control, and the city's supervision in that respect is receiving special attention.

It is an insidious disease, he said, its first symptoms appearing from five to 94 days after infection, but generally in about a month. The warning published in newspapers Nov. 11—the day before the Chicago Exposition closed—reported 79 cases, including seven deaths in Chicago and 34 cases but traceable to Chicago hotels.

ekamp for a Gift and Card Shop.

By Berry Moore

Joseph L. Werner, director of the Missouri Trust Co., has acquired
the three-story structure,
"A Syllabus of Plane Algebraical Geometry," at the corner of 16th and 7th streets.
The three-story structure,
modernistic front, occupies
a lot of ground which is included in the purchase. It is under year lease to the House of Finkelstein, manufacturer of women's clothing. The purchase was made by William Drost, president of the Drostens Jewelry Co. The contract in Werner's purchase
was not announced.

Several leases in this block have been recorded recently. A three-story building 20x70 feet at No. 421,
on 7th street, was owned by the Thomas Dunn estate, and leased early in September by Charles Renekamp, dealer in lingerie and gifts, through Mercantile Commerce Bank &
Co. for five years on a percentage basis. These terms were a major measure, the lease ultimately calling for a minimum rent
of $10,000, according to George Steff, manager of the Mercantile Commerce real estate department.

The bank is executor and
trustee of the Dunn estate.

Other has made several purchases in downtown St. Louis.
He has included the west half
of the seven-story Rice-Stix block
on 10th and 11th streets, and from 10th to 11th and from 11th to 12th streets, owned by the May Investment Stores Co. This lease, executed in September, provides for a minimum rental guarantee with a percentage on the volume of business done by
lessee, a client of the Apex
Co. The building is contained by the Waigren Drug Co.
on the south side of Olive between 11th and 12th streets.

Several large companies are mentioned as prospective lessees of the block. The building is owned by the Franklin-American Trust Co. in the seven-story
building at the southwest corner of 10th and Locust streets. These buildings have a large frontage on 10th street, and a large frontage on Locust street. The building is owned by the Franklin-American Trust Co., which is being liquidated
by the First National Bank. The floor and basement comprise 18,500 square feet. Several retail concerns have sought
the revision of the space available
in the First National Co. prefers
it entire to one tenant.

It is property, recently placed on the market, has been attracting the attention of both speculators and investors. It is a large frontage on Locust and Seventh. The floors are occupied as offices. The building is under the management of Thomas F. Stevens, real estate officer of the First National Co.

"Double Door"

FOR SHUBERT AND LITTLE THEATERS

"Solid South"

Society Meller, Still Running in New York. Second Play to Be Offered on the New Oberfelder
Circuit — Group at Artists' Guild to Run Lawton Campbell's Comedy for 11 Nights.

AFTER a pleasant week of "Dinner at Eight," which was well received by the audiences at the Shubert Theater another troupe of players, under the direction of Arthur Oberfelder, moves in tonight with "Double Door," a society meller by Elizabeth McFadden, which is still enjoying a run in New York
at prices more than double the dollar top scale of the Oberfelder plan.

Also during this week the Little Theater will begin an 11-day run of Lawton Campbell's comedy drama, "Solid South," which is to open at the Artists' Guild Theater on Tuesday night and continue through Saturday evening in a series of performances for subscribers. Then, on next Monday evening, Dec. 11, the play will be thrown open to the public for a week.

The cast provided for the road
tour of "Double Door" is headed by Jessica Newcombe in the role of Victoria Van Bret; a most unsympathetic part said to be portrayed splendidly by Miss Newcombe.
Others in the company include Patricia Barclay, Eddy Elliott, Suzanne Jackson, Esther Gaylord,
Henry Norell, Derek Fairman, Ivan
Miller, Mal Murray, E. J. Blunkall,
S. G. Davidson and Carl Emory.

"DOUBLE DOOR" as a melodrama is workmanlike and well written with situations
so contrived that the climax is expected to give the most hardened customer of the theater a rather chilly feeling in his spine. The central character, Victoria Van Bret, is a cold, harsh domineering woman. Living a cloistered life for many years as trustee of a vast estate, and unaccustomed to opposition, she has at last become the victim of her brooding. Her only aims are to keep the family intact—a family that consists of herself, her sister, and a younger brother—and to keep the family
fortune equally tightly held.

"Double Door" is not a thriller throughout and would hardly be properly classed among the mystery-melodramas except for the existence of the huge secret room where the scheming woman uses to achieve her ends.

The play begins a single week's run tonight with matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

WITH its first play of the se-son, "The Devil Passes," the Little Theater met with great success and now, due to the necessity of presenting two special benefit performances for which the house has been sold out in advance, the group, for the first time
in the history of the organization, will open its forthcoming play two days before the regular scheduled time.

"Solid South," this second offering, takes a subtle poke at some old-established Southern traditions.
Director F. Cowles Strickland is by no means unfamiliar with the comedy. He has produced it twice before with his own companies in Boston and in Stockbridge, Mass.
The play, a comedy-romance dealing with an old Southern family
and its broken-down head, Maj.
Pollansky, was seen on Broadway
during the 1930 season with Richard Bennett in the leading role.

Included in the Little Theater
cast are Blanche Flournoy, Elmina Roessler, Mary Wickenhauer, Mildred Barry Carpenter, Eric Applewhite, Elliot Bergfeld, Harold Stark, Noel Grady and William Scully.

KATHARINE CORNELL made her first appearance on any stage in Shakespeare in the Er-anger Theater, Buffalo, last Wednesday night, when she acted Juliet in the Romeo of Basil Rathbone. She presented her own version of the tragedy, which restores some scenes not included in recent American productions of "Romeo and Juliet" and the drama is being given, with only one intermission.
Guthrie McClintic staged the play and Woodman Thompson, adapting certain features of the Elizabethan theater to modern usage, designed the settings and costumes.

Then last night in Buffalo, Miss Cornell revived Rudolf Besier's
"The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Flush returned to the stage on this occasion to appear in his original role. This week Miss Cornell will be seen in the Shakespeare and Besier plays in the Davidson Theater in Milwaukee, after which she will visit Madison, Wis., Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth before reaching Seattle Christmas week, during which she will add G. Bernard Shaw's "Candida" to her repertory.
Later in the winter, probably during February, Miss Cornell is to bring these three plays to St. Louis for a week's engagement at the American Theater.

Rethberg Soloist

For the Symphony
On Week's Program

German Singer to Be Heard on Bill
Which Will Include Dr. Howard Hanson's Newest Work, Which Gets Its First Hearing Here.

THE first visit to St. Louis of Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra and the first performances here of Dr. Howard Hanson's newest symphony, are features of the program Vladimir Goldschmann has prepared for the regular symphony concerts at the Odeon next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. Mme. Rethberg will sing one of the best-known of all German arias, Agathe's "Leise, Leise Fromme Weisse," from "De-Frieschütz," and two of Schubert's songs. The purely orchestral part of the program will include besides
Dr. Hanson's symphony, Beethoven's
"Carneval Roman" overture, Paul Dukas' orchestral poem, "La Peri,"
and two excerpts from Rimsky-Korsakoff's musical fairy tale, "Le Coeur d'Or," the Introduction and
"The Marriage Procession of King Dodon."

Dr. Hanson's symphony, "The Romantic," is his second, and the composer himself conducted his first "The Nordic" here with the Symphony Orchestra, which also presented, under the baton of Eugene Goossens, his symphonic poem "Pan and the Priest." The composer is one of the foremost figures in the realm of creative music in America. Director of the Eastman School of Music, he yet finds time for the creation of symphonic works. He recently collaborated with Richard L. Stokes, former music critic of the Post-Dispatch, in an opera, "Merry Dodon," for which Stokes furnished
the dramatic poem.

Mme. Rethberg made her first St.
Louis appearance last season as recitalist for the Civic Music League.
She will contribute to the Symphony program this week three of her own favorite numbers, the Agathe aria, and Schubert's
"Gretchen and Spinnrad," and
"Der Erlkoenig."

Mme. Rethberg was born on the border of Saxony and Bohemia
and at the age of 7 had learned the entire "Winter's Journey" song cycle of Schubert. At 17 she was sent to Dresden for studies, and within two years was offered a contract as prima donna of the Dresden opera. European successes followed and she came to America to become leading dramatic soprano at the Metropolitan, where her success has been most brilliant. Success as a recital and symphony soloist has followed.
Mme. Rethberg has a repertoire of 106 operatic roles at her command and over 1000 songs.

Revue Burly Show

For World Theater

Fred Hurley's Frolics, a revue type burlesque show, is this week's presentation at the World Theater
at Grand and Delmar. Mignonne-tte, "The French Doll," Joan Barlow, beauty contest winner, and Katinka and Yvonne, specialty dancers, are headlined on the program.
Others in the cast include Nickles
and Dimes, fast dance team; Lou Mason, Ruby Wayne, Pauline Hunter, Helen Clayton, Darline O'Hare,
the Four Harmonizers and several other variety acts. Specialty production numbers embracing the entire cast include "Dream Train," a unit requiring several intricate mechanical effects, and "Indian Fantasy," featuring Edna Trout-man and Howard Barger. Paul Workman, Charles Williams, Bud Brownie and Hy Heath are the principal comedians on the bill.

Jack Pearl and Jimmy Durante in
"Meet the Baron," Loews.

Donna O'Day, Dancer.

In Show at Garrick

Donna O'Day, interpretive dancer of the modernistic, is featured with "Twinkle Toes," the new burlesque show which opened at the Garrick Theater yesterday. "Twinkle Toes" is a fast dancing show with four comedians, three "straight" men, and 11 principal women. There is, also, the regular chorus of 16. A new vaudeville olio has been booked for the occasion.

Kirkwood Plays Tonight.

The Kirkwood Little Theater will present two one-act plays tonight
at the Solari Guild Building, Argonne and Filmore. The offerings will be "Death Says It Isn't So," by Haywood Brown, and "Columbine
in Business" by Rachel Lynn Field.

Charles Laughton in "White Woman," Grand Central.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Nie

"The World Changes," at the Ambassador, had been one of the first of the small-town-her-makes-good-in-the-big-city films, it would have been looked upon as something of a great historical document. As it is, even now, it is a fine and true story of the rise of the most packing industry in Chicago with Paul Muni growing old rather gracefully as he sees his children and his grandchildren go to the devil as they scatter the millions which he squeezed out of pigs and long horns—and a few bankers here and there. It goes back to covered wagon days, Gen.
Custer and Buffalo Bill, and comes on down to the panic of 1929, when old Orin Nordholm buys back the family good name in the stock market and then, his life work ended, tumbles over and dies. There are other tragedies in the story for Orin's wife passes away in a wild outburst of insanity and their oldest son, kills himself before his father can come to his financial rescue. Also a granddaughter is left waiting at the church by an
impoverished nobleman who runs
out when the money disappears, so
that the entire story, while it has
a few lighter moments is rather sombre, but always interesting.

Muni, a master of make up, does well by the part of young and old Orin and Alline MacMahon scores
real hit as his mother who outlives him. "The World Changes" is a finely made and genuinely worthwhile cinema.

Some Real Thrills.

"THE INVISIBLE MAN" at the Missouri, is certainly the most ingenious horror film
left waiting at the church by an
impoverished nobleman who runs
out when the money disappears, so
that the entire story, while it has
a few lighter moments is rather
sombre, but always interesting.

Jungle Judgment.

CHARLES LAUGHTON, the English star who has shown Hollywood something about real acting, turns the trick again in "White Woman" at the Grand Central. It who gets in his way. By some oversight he forgot how to bring himself back to normal and not until he dies does his body resume its regular state. Some great trick photography helps the thing along immensely and while the picture is almost too horrible and cannot be recommended as a bed-time
story for children it is a fascinating meller for grown ups.

Jessica Newcombe in "Double Door," at the Shubert.

Claire Trevor in "Jimmy and Sally," at the Fox.

Leo Miller in Recital.

Leo C. Miller, pianist, will give a recital at Washington University,
in the Women's Building, Tuesday,
at 7 p. m., to which the public is invited. His program will include compositions by Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, Chopin, Liszt, Wagner and several modern composers, Copeland, Debussy, Granados and Ganz.

Doctors Can Love.

WE HAVE never been quite able to understand Ann Harding's reputation as a great actress. To be sure, she does a fine, workmanlike job in all of her screen assignments but, somehow,
the inspired spark never entirely lights up. It is the same way with her in "The Right to Romance," a really good picture at the St. Louis Theater. She is a famous woman surgeon who is devoted to her work and married to Robert Young, who is not serious about her profession or anything else, much, except football and things like that. Ann wanted romance, but didn't know just how to go about it while her husband knew how to dig it up elsewhere. He and a girl friend crack up in an airplane and Surgeon Ann makes them over as good as new and then goes away with an older man who had been waiting for her a long time. It's an entertaining picture, well made and well played.

Lighter Moments.

dies and near tragedies which

Webster Guild Play.

J. B. Priestley's "Dangerous Corner," a three-act drama, is to be presented by members of the Webster Groves Theater Guild Dec.

Mr. Munchausen on Deck.

UN in several parts of the world provides our old friend Jack Pearl, of radio fame, with a chance to get a lot of laughs in
"Meet the Baron," at Loews. He has the very excellent help of Jimmy Durante, Zasu Pitts, Ted Healy and Edna May Oliver and while the picture is for comedy purposes
only it accomplishes that aim nicely. Loews, going in now for double features as an answer to the Grand avenue attack, also has Richard Dix, Madge Evans, Una Merikle and Stuart Erwin in a serious story about a man who went to prison which gave his wife a chance to play around. A couple of killings bring the affair, called
"The Day of Reckoning," to a happy conclusion.

Wientge Players in Meller.

The Wientge Players will give the three-act mystery play "The Yellow Shadow" at Lambkin Temple, 1068
South Kingshighway on Wednesday night. In the cast will be Lucille Bloom, Lillian Brown, Margaret Cryts, Fay Kickham, Leonore
Schweizer, Louis Gabard, Allen
Humphrey, Morrison Parker, Bryson Rash and Willis Wylie.

Alice Really in Wonderland

Little Charlotte Henry, Who Will Be the Star,
At Christmas Time, of Lewis Carroll's Classic Story as Retold by the Movies, Finding Out, at First Hand, What the World's All About—Selected for the Role From a List of Nearly 7000.

BY H. H. NIEMEYER.

LEWIS CARROLL'S ALICE is finding out what Wonderland really like after many years. She is, in fact, making a hurried trip across the country and just the other day we met her here in St. Louis and found her, even in what might laughingly be called the semi-private life of a budding cinema star very much as Lewis Carroll pictured her nearly 70 years ago—a lovely, unspoiled girl. She was a very real Alice when Lewis Carroll wrote his Wonderland story.
Today the Alice of the Movies, real too, is Charlotte Henry and Christmas time she is to burst upon the screen

the possibilities of the tale having been discovered
by Hollywood.

It was this book written for children of average from 7 to 10, that made the author famous the world over. As Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, the son of an English clergyman, the author had published, along about 1860, two volumes
"A Syllabus of Plane Algebraical Geometry" and
"The Formulas of Plane Trigonometry." These are mentioned now in case the movie magnate care to look farther into the works of the English writer with a view to putting them into the cinemas. Then, in 1865, under the pseudonym Lewis Carroll, the expert on mathematics turned out "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." Instantly, to all intents and purposes, Charles Lutwidge Dodgson passed away and Lewis Carroll was the man of the hour—and of many, many succeeding hours.

It was an open secret in England that Alice was not entirely a creature of the author's imagination but was the daughter of another minister, Dean Liddell. In 1923, 30 years after Lewis Carroll's death, Alice Liddell sold the original manuscript of the book to an American collector for $75,000. And now the movie moguls hope, and will probably get their hope, too, to make 10 times
that amount out of the picture.

Hollywood was spurred into making the film
by the success which Eva Le Gallienne had with a stage version which, by the way, she is to present
here in St. Louis during the coming winter.

Public as possible and managed to be seen by a good many.

According to a Hollywood more or less reliable publicity man, when Paramount decided to make a film from "Alice in Wonderland" the first problem was the selection of a suitable Alice. Possibly the picture ever made in Hollywood had so vast a ready-made audience and it was of prime importance that the many millions of "Alice"
fans should approve the heroine.

The studio's first act was to contact drama critics, directors and the public at large as to their idea of what type of person should play the role.

Back came a deluge of replies. Some favored an established star. Mary Pickford, Janet Gaynor, Helen Chandler, Mary Brian but a few of these mentioned. But the huge majority of replies indicated a wish to see an "unknown" in the role.

More than 6800 actual applications were received for the part.
From photographs submitted, and in some cases, personal interviews, the studio selected some 40 girls for screen tests. As far as possible these were made at the studio. Others throughout the United States, England and Canada, were made by the Paramount newswire organization. Two were photographed here in St. Louis.

None of the girls tested seemed to meet all requirements. The search was reopened. Twelve more youngsters were given tests.
Then Charlotte Henry, who had been knocking at the doors of all of the Hollywood studios for a couple of years and getting almost parts to do, once in a while, applied for a trial. She was given a test one Monday afternoon, along with four other applicants. Executives saw the test on Tuesday, and asked her to return the following day for a longer, and more decisive tryout.

Miss Henry and one other girl spent the entire day making the final test. On Thursday the executives saw these, and on Friday selected her for the title role. She started work the following Monday.

W HAT kind of a girl is she? Well, she's 17, and the sort of girl that you look at and then say, "why, of course, she's a perfect Alice." Not appearing a day over 12, at least in her Alice makeup, she's just like the little girl who lives next door.

She doesn't care much about parties—yet; and she hasn't any boy friends—also yet.

She adores detective stories, particularly those of Leslie Charteris and E. Phillips Oppenheim. But she doesn't read the weird adventures of Dr. Fu Manchu and his cohorts.

History was her favorite study in school, and she rattles off names and dates with astonishing rapidity. Algebra had her baffled, so she avoided geometry. Bing Crosby is "all right," but Rudy Vallee is her favorite radio star.

Five minutes, or less, after you meet her you call her, not Miss Henry or Charlotte, but Alice for she looks as though she had just stepped out of one of the original drawings which the English artist, John Tenniel, made for the first edition of Lewis Carroll's book. Her hair is a bit longer, and a bit better trimmed, too, than Tenniel's heroine but otherwise she is an amazingly fine copy.

Born in Brooklyn, which has furnished a lot of young stars for the screens, Charlotte had a little experience on the stage in New York playing a child part in "Courage." Two years ago she went to Hollywood and worked in a couple of pictures appearing as Lena, before Lena grew up, in a quickie production of "Lena Rivers." Also she was one of the little girls in "Huckleberry Finn" and then she did some work with a stock company in San Francisco—just enough experience to give her the right amount of assurance.

"I don't know what I'll do next," she said the other night. "Paramount is talking about letting me play Lucy Mary in 'Mrs. Wier-se of the Cabbage Patch' but they are going to wait and see how I make out as Alice. I want to play dramatic roles, some day, but I guess I'll be playing kid parts for a long time—if I'm good as Alice."

She "swims a little, but not very well," and used to play golf
"but don't ask me my scores," and walks considerably for exercise.
She read "Alice" when she was a little girl, and liked it immensely but hasn't looked at it since.

JOSEPH L. WERNER BUYS BUILDING AT 416 N. 7TH STREET

Three-Story Structure With Modernistic Front Is Now Occupied by House of Finkelstein.

WAS OWNED BY WILLIAM DROSTEN

421 in This Same
Block Was Recently
Leased by Charles Ren-nekamp for a Gift and Card Shop.

By Berry Moore

Joseph L. Werner, director of the Missouri Trust Co., has acquired
building at 416 North Seventh street. The three-story structure, with modernistic front, occupies 35 feet of ground which is included in the purchase. It is under long-term lease to the House of Finkelstein, manufacturer of woman's dresses. It was owned by William D. Drosten, president of the W. Drosten Jewelry Co. The construction in Werner's purchase
is not announced.

Several leases in this block have
been recorded recently. A three-
story building 20x70 feet at No. 421,
owned by the Thomas Dunn estate,
was leased in September by Charles Rennekamp, dealer in savings cards and gifts, through Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. for five years on a percentage basis. These terms were a preliminary measure, the lease ultimately calling for a minimum rental of $10,000 according to George Streiff, manager of the Mercantile Commerce real estate department. The bank is executor and trustee of the Dunn estate.

North, Inc., has leased quarters
No. 408, a six-story building at north-east corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets, owned by the May partments Stores Co. This lease,
executed in September, provides for a minimum rental guarantee with a percentage on the
volume of business done by
lessee, a client of the Apex
Jewelry Co. The building is contained in the space available
on ground floor of the Locust street corner is occupied by a Walworth store.

Werner has made several purchases in downtown St. Louis.
He has included the west half
of the seven-story Rice-Stix block
on Tenth to Eleventh and from Washington avenue to St. Charles street, and the east half of the four-story Union May Stern building on the south side of Olive between Eleventh street and Twelfth street.

Several large companies are mentioned as prospective lessees of the fourth and basement, formerly occupied by the Franklin-American Trust Co. in the seven-story
building at the southwest corner
of Seventh and Locust street. These include a retail drug chain with fourteen stores, Walgreen Drug Co., and a 10-cent store chain with quarters in Detroit.

The building, formerly owned by the Mercantile Bank, is now owned by the First National Bank of St. Louis, which is being liquidated. The building is 18,500 square feet. Several retail concerns have sought
leasing of the space available
in the First National Co. prefers
it entire to one tenant.

The property, recently placed on the market, has been attracting the attention of both speculators and investors. It has a large frontage
on Locust and Seventh. The floors are occupied as of
now. The building is under the management of Thomas F. Stevens, real estate officer of the

MAN TRYING TO SAVE MINER

Wounded Colorado Mine Worker Dead Beside Worker.

SEVER, Dec. 2.—Robert Boyle, manager at a Littleton Valley
Col. mine near here, died today in an unsuccessful effort to rescue the miner, Kendrick,
who was killed in a cave-in.

Boyle was recovered by wearing oxygen masks.
Boyle's position inside the mine was such that he was unable to get out.
Boyle was charged today
with the 21-year-old murder of J.
Griffin Harnage, pioneer cattleman, slain near here Oct. 6, 1912. Under-sheriff Grover Bishop said he would return Saturday morning. Later was accused of the slaying of J. Griffin Harnage, a rancher who had been actively hunting down cattle rustlers, Cherokee County officers said.

FLOOR OF FRANCIS BUILDING LEASED

Isaac T. Cook Co. Acts for General American Life Insurance Co.

The General American Life Insurance Co. has leased for a long term approximately 3,000 square feet of floor space on the seventh floor of the Francis Building at 1531
Washington avenue, through the Isaac T. Cook Co.

The printing department of the insurance company will be moved to this space in order to make room
in the General American Life Building, Fifteenth and Locust streets, for the Federal Farm Credit Administration which has leased
the first six floors of the building.
The Cook company represented the insurance company in this transaction, and the Francis-Perry-Ruth Realty Co., the lessor.

James Lee, who formerly operated
large restaurants in both Kansas
City and Jefferson City, Mo., has leased the storeroom at 217 North Ninth street, in the Frisco Building
for a restaurant.

The Central Furnace & Stove Repair Co. has taken a new long term
lease on the first floor and basement of the building at 3935-39
Olive street. The Cook company represented the lessor, and the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust
Co., the lessee.

James Lee, who formerly operated
large restaurants in both Kansas
City and Jefferson City, Mo., has
leased the storeroom at 217 North Ninth street, in the Frisco Building
for a restaurant.

The plan contemplates exchange of the present securities for first-mortgage income bonds, which will pay interest up to 5 per cent, if earned.

There will be no new first mortgage placed ahead of the lien of the income bonds, as has been the case in other reorganizations, and all legal fees and expenses of reorganization are to be paid by the present owners, instead of the bondholders.

Title to the property is in the name of the Apartments Holding Corporation, which acquired it from Central States Life Insurance
Co. in February, 1930.

Net earnings in excess of the maximum interest rate, 5 per cent,
are to be used to retire bonds by

REFINANCE PLAN PROPOSED FOR 10-STORY APARTMENT

Bond Holders Committee of Adlon, 3436
Russell Bl., Suggests Exchange of Securities Without New First Mortgage.

A refinancing plan for the Adlon Apartments, 10-story structure at 3436 Russell boulevard, has been proposed to the holders of its $250,- 000 in defaulted first mortgage bonds by a bondholders' committee headed by the Rev. Dr. Luther E. Todd, secretary of the board of finance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

For the present, all net earnings
in excess of taxes and interest are to be applied to reduction of the principal. The plan contemplates that when the principal has been reduced to $200,000, 80 per cent of net earnings are to be used for that purpose, and provides for progressive reduction if the amount of net earnings which must be used to retire bonds down to 50 per cent when the principal is reduced to $125,000.

The plan is similar to one worked out by the same committee for the Wiltshire Apartments, 725 Skinker boulevard, which was put into effect early this year.

market purchases at the lowest available price, or by calling bonds at par. Operating and maintenance expenses, excluding insurance, not to exceed $18,000 a year, and should they be greater, no further charge will be made against net earnings, but the owners will pay the difference.

Isaac T. Cook, receiver for Fidelity Bond & Mortgage Co., which sold the bonds, is to serve as trustee
at a fee not exceeding $50 a month.

The plan is similar to one worked

MINERS, WIVES STONE GUARDS

Crowd Dispersed by Tear Gas at Nemacolin, Pa.

NEMACOLIN, Pa., Dec. 2.—Tear gas bombs thrown by guards of the Buckeye Coal Co. today dispersed a crowd of several hundred miners and their wives threatening to storm the home of a nonunion worker.

Between 300 and 600 persons gathered about the house of John Klingensmith. Klingensmith was not at home but his wife and 7-year-old daughter were. When leaders of the crowd started up steps of the home 10 company deputies dashed up with clubs and tear gas.
They were stoned and in retaliation used the tear gas. Authorities said 28 were treated after the clash, including several of the deputies. None was seriously hurt.

The miners have been demanding election of a committee to negotiate a wage and working agreement contract with the company, as most other steel company-owned mines have done. The company,
however, has kept its diggings closed since the walkout several weeks ago.

Resolution Against Taxes.

BASIN, Wyo., Dec. 2.—A resolution to "pay no more taxes until there is a more equitable distribution of the tax burden" was adopted at a meeting of taxpayers here. Several prominent men of the community who said their taxes had never been delinquent voted for the resolution.

HUNTING FOR SLAYER WHO ESCAPED PRISON

Convict Medford Wood, Who Killed Policeman Grogan
in 1925, Gets Away.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 2.—Police departments throughout the State continued today to broadcast descriptions of Medford Wood, 28-year-old life-terminer, who escaped
Friday afternoon from Prison
Farm No. 2, across the Missouri
River from the penitentiary.

Wood, who was convicted in St.
Louis in 1925 of the murder of Patrolman John H. Grogan during a holdup, was a trusty at the prison farm. He had been gone for some time before he was missed.

Grogan was killed when he attempted to arrest Wood and six other young men who had just held up the J. S. Collins Printing Co., on the sixth floor at 1531
Washington boulevard. Harvey
Hammett, an agent of the Humane Society, who was passing, rushed to Patrolman Grogan's aid and was killed also. All of the murderers were caught and Wood and three others were given life terms. The remaining three took lesser sentences.

Wood was an ex-convict at the time of the murder, having been paroled from the Booneville Reformatory after serving a few months of a five-year sentence.

James L. McQuie, secretary of the Kirkwood Building & Loan Association, has been appointed a member of the United States Building & Loan League Committee on Legislation, it was announced yesterday.

McQuie, formerly president of the Missouri State League of Building & Loan Associations, will take up his work on the Advisory Committee immediately. The committee, which reviews State legislation, distributes suggestions to legislators for the improvement and standardization of building and loan laws throughout the country.

Hurley Left $100,000 to Charity.
By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The will of Edward N. Hurley, disposing of an estate of several million dollars and bequeathing $100,000 to charity, was made public tonight by Attorney Andrew J. Ryan. Among the bequests were $25,000 each to Notre Dame University at South Bend, Ind., and Knox College at Galesburg, Ill., the funds to make up permanent endowments, the income of which would be used to help pay expenses of worthy students. The major portion of the estate went to his four children.

MAN FOUND BURNED TO DEATH IN HOUSE

Charred Body Discovered by Firemen at Finney Avenue Blaze.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Trapped by a burst of flame,
which followed an explosion, an unidentified man was burned to death in a vacant house at 3709
Finney avenue at 12:40 a. m. yesterday.

The blast blew window glass into the street 30 feet distant from the front of the house and flames leaped from the windows of the second and third floors. One first floor room was also ablaze when the first firemen reached the scene.

The flames roared through the roof and burned so fiercely that it was more than 30 minutes after the alarm was sent in that firemen could reach the second floor. In a hallway near the stairs they found the charred body of the man.
The features were burned beyond recognition, and the clothing had burned away, except for shreds.
Underneath the body was a charred electric flash lantern.

District Fire Chief John Brady reported the blaze appeared to have followed an explosion of gasoline fumes. A five-gallon can,
which smelled of gasoline, was found in the basement. Brady estimated the damage at $300, with $100 damage to an adjoining residence.

Charles Menchinskas, 4109 Fairgrounds place, owner of the property, and Joseph Baltrusaitis, the agent, were unable to identify the body at the morgue yesterday.
They said they could not account for the man's presence on the premises. The property had been vacant about a month, the last tenants being Negroes.

17 SOUTHERN ILLINOIS CITIES SEEK CUT IN UTILITY RATES

To Appeal to Commerce Commission With C. I. P. S. Co. as Principal Target.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 2.—Seventy-five officials representing 17 Southern Illinois cities have voted at a special meeting here to start action in an effort to obtain lower public utility rates.

The officials decided to appeal to the Illinois Commerce Commission.
The following cities were represented at the meeting: Anna,
Christopher, Buckner, Elkville,
Hurst-Bush, Johnston City, Marion, Seaser, West Frankfort, Carter-
ville, Cambria, Clear Springs, Carbondale, Stokely, Freeman, Golconda and Makanda.

Principal subsidiaries of the C.
I. P. S. which will be investigated include the Western Union Electric Co. and the Illinois Commercial Telephone Co.

FUR DEALERS LEASE 113 NORTH MAIN ST.

New York Firm to Occupy Improved Quarters for Buying of Pelts.

The four-story and basement
building at 113 North Main street has been leased through Martin &
Breit Real Estate Co. to William F. Rubs, Inc., wholesale dealers in furs with headquarters in New York City. This is a new firm entering St. Louis to make a specialty of buying all kinds of raw furs. It has important connections in other large cities of the United States.

Owing to the revival in the fur industry and the number of the Western states liberalizing game laws and permitting the selling of furs, St. Louis will benefit a great deal by shipping of furs from the country sections.

The building has been modernized
throughout, new floors, electric elevator and burglar alarm system having been added. The entire building has been painted inside and out.

The lease was made for the account of Rogers Investment and Realty Co., Martin & Breit representing both parties in the transaction.

MAX POLLACK LEASES STORE
AT 212 N. SEVENTH STREET

Martin & Breit report having leased to Max Pollack the storeroom at 212 North Seventh street
for restaurant purposes.

Pollack is installing a new and modern front and will place new and modern fixtures.

The lease was made for the account of the Hempted Realty Co., represented by Martin & Breit. Morris Altheimer represented the lessee.

ILLINOIS EMPLOYEES REINSTATED

Civil Service Board Rules Their Dismissals Were Political.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 2.—The Civil Service Commission today ordered A. L. Bowen, Director of Public Welfare, to reinstate two State institutional employees which it found were discharged for political reasons. Reinstatement of Harry Spritham, an industrial foreman,
Alton State Hospital, and Sadie Oun-driets, a housekeeper, Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, Quincy, was ordered.

Appeals of 15 others were denied.
The commission ruled that Ernest
J. Abt, East St. Louis, was not removed from the post of tax commissioner clerk for political reasons.
Reinstatement was denied Columbus McElwee, attendant, Alton. Appeals were dismissed for Robert Thompson and Earl Edwars Hooper, attendants, Alton.

TEMPERANCE APPEAL TO YOUTH

Olympians Urge President to Issue Proclamation on Subject.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Issuance of a proclamation by President Roosevelt pointing out that the repeal of the eighteenth amendment "must not be accepted by youth as a recommendation of intoxicating liquors or encouragement to complicity in their use" was advocated today by the Olympians, the young people's branch of the Anti-saloon League.

This suggestion was contained in a statement urging District of Columbia police to devote part of their services tomorrow to warning young people against intoxicants. "The supreme tragedy of repeal," the statement said, "would be the development of the drink habit among young people deceived
by repeal publicity to believe that intoxicating liquor is safe and harmless."

RODEMYER TO ADVISE ON APARTMENT CODE

St. Louis Realty Man Accepts Invitation to Hearing in Washington.

M. H. Rodemyer received a telegram yesterday from C. L. Hey-niger, secretary of the Industrial Advisory Board of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., asking him to serve as industrial adviser preliminary to the hearing on the apartment managers' code to be held next Tuesday.

Rodemyer wired his acceptance
and will depart for Washington
today. He will represent the property owners and employers of labor
at the hearing, at which wages,
hours and practices will be determined. He was chosen as one of only two men under consideration to act in this capacity.

Rodemyer is president of the M.
H. Rodemyer & Co., which has under its management some of the largest apartment buildings in the city. He is a member of and a former director of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, and has been on a number of important committees in connection with civic affairs. His company is a member of the Building Owners & Managers Association.

Hearings have been set on various proposed codes filed with NRA
by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, as follows: For office building management business,
Dec. 4; for apartment building management business, Dec. 5; for real estate brokerage business, Dec.
6 and for real estate mortgage business, Dec. 7.

TO OCCUPY 1816-20 N. MAIN

The Central Waste Material Co., recently incorporated to handle all kinds of iron, metal, rags and cotton goods material, has leased the three-story building at 1816-20
North Main street. The Martin & Breit Real Estate Co. arranged the lease.

The building contains a sprinkler system, electric elevator and heating plant and is fully equipped for the handling of merchandise of this character.

PAN-AMERICAN SESSION
OPENS IN URUGUAY TODAY

Communists Deported for Agitating Against It; 100 Delegates Arrive for Conference.

By the Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 2.—One hundred delegates from North, Central and South American nations are here for the Pan-American conference on economic and peace questions, which will open tomorrow.

Among the subjects expected to be taken up are the Gran Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay and the monetary and debt situations.

The Foreign Ministers of Chile, Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Panama and Uruguay are present in person. Montevideo newspapers did not appear today because printers and newsboys declared a 24-hour strike in sympathy with 40 Communists who were deported for agitating in favor of a strike against the conference.

For the first time women are delegates to a Pan-American gathering. Sophonisba Preston Breckinridge is an American representative and Senora Vireno Delmichele is a delegate from Uruguay.

Pierre Paul, delegate from Haiti, said his presence at the conference was not justified unless an obligatory principle of non-intervention should be adopted. He attacked the "imperialistic policy" of the United States and said that while it would withdraw Marines from Haiti in October, 1934, it would retain control of the customs for 11 years.

LITVINOFF REACHES ROME; TO MEET MUSSOLINI TODAY

Russian Cheered by Crowd on Arrival at Italian Capital From United States.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Dec. 2.—Maxim Litvinoff, Foreign Minister of the Soviet Union, was cheered by a large crowd on his arrival here tonight by train from Naples, where he landed early today after a voyage from New York. He was met by Fulvio Suvich, Under-Secretary of State, and other officials, and took up quarters in the Russian Embassy.

Litvinoff will hold a conversation with Mussolini at noon tomorrow and will dine with the Premier in the evening. He expects to start for Moscow Tuesday.

The Vatican City organ Osservatore Romano, speculating on the subjects of conversation between Litvinoff and Mussolini, lists as "facts" dominating the present situation these points: First, disarmament conversations are being continued outside Geneva; second, Russia has completely re-entered the orbit of international collaboration, and, third, German-Russian relations are cold and must be bettered.

Postmaster-General Farley and his wife who crossed on the same ship with Litvinoff remained in Naples.

FRANCE'S NEW GOVERNMENT

WINS ON TWO VOTES IN TEST

Chautemps Declares Against Separate German Agreement; Unemployed Parade After Rally.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—Premier Camille Chautemps' six-day-old "public safety" Cabinet was given a brief lease of life in its unsteady budget-balancing job by two votes of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies today while rumbles of "work and bread" unrest reached the Capital.

He announced that he rejected the idea of any separate agreement between France and Germany and that all decisions on disarmament and Franco-German relations must be made in association with other Powers.

Shouts of "chose the date of the suicide!" greeted Chautemps' suggestion that debate begin Thursday on the fiscal problems.

Meanwhile, hunger marchers from Northern France, joined by more than 6000 sympathizers from the Paris region, filled the frigid air of suburban St. Denis Stadium with verses of the Internationale.

The marchers paraded in the freezing weather demanding "work and bread" while police massed like troops guarded the Chamber of Deputies and the entrances to Paris.

94 PERSONS KILLED BY AUTOS

IN MISSOURI IN OCTOBER

834 Injured in Month—696 Major Accidents Have Been Reported.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 2.—Automobile accidents took 94 lives and resulted in injury to 834 persons during October, the monthly accident report of the State Highway Department shows.

There were 696 accidents of major nature during October, distributed as follows: St. Louis, 65; Kansas City, 44; St. Joseph, 30; Jefferson City, 14; other towns, 202; State highways, 326, and county roads, 11.

Twenty-four persons were killed instantly and 70 died from injuries as the result of automobile mishaps, the report shows.

During the month, 459 persons were injured on highways, and 43 were killed on State roads.

NOTRE DAME SCORES TWICE IN FINAL PERIOD,
DEFEATING ARMY, 13-12, FOR YEAR'S BIGGEST UPSET

THE peaks of boxing are not nearly so great as its depths. Only those fighters who have attained to both can tell you that. Now and then, when some great and almost forgotten celebrity announces a "comeback" readers say "that's just hokum; he's through." And so he is.

But a boxer starting a career, at least has a real hope of arriving somewhere.

There is more chance of an average man becoming champion than there is of a "has-been" regaining his prestige.

All right—that brings us to Earl Mastro, once esteemed not only for his boxing but for his "has-been" regaining his prestige.

Princeton Crushes Yale, 27 to 2

CRISLER'S
YOUNG TEAM
IS UNBEATEN
AND UNTIED

By Edward J. Neil
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 2.—Glory such as the Tigers of Princeton haven't known in 10 long years, revenge sweeter than anything Old Nassau ever has known, rode today through the huge Yale Bowl on the backs of a mighty band of sophomores as the Tigers whipped the Bulldogs, 27 to 2.

With perfect precision, stunning power, the youngsters who picked up Princeton's hapless cause two years ago with their new head coach "Frits" Crisler, smashed down Yale's battered eleven, piled up more points than any Princeton team ever before has scored on the Elis and completed the 1933 season unbeaten and untied. Thus, they wiped away the memory of the classic 60-year-old series, the 51 to 14 slaughter Yale inflicted two years ago.

Not since 1922, when huge Stan Keck and his mates were met by the loose, has Princeton raged through a season without defeat or tie. Not since 1928, when Princeton won, 12 to 2, had the Tigers conquered Yale. And only in 1925, when they counted 25 points to the Elis' 12, in 1924 when they won, 20 to 0, and in 1926, when the score was 24 to 6, have the men of Nassau gone on such a scoring spree as a scant but hilarious crowd of 40,000—little more than half filling the great cement bowl—saw today.

With Army defeated by Notre Dame in New York, the final conquest of the season left Princeton alone among the East's undefeated and untied eleven. Only Rutgers, of an enemy list that included Brown, Navy, Columbia and Dartmouth, was able to score a touchdown against the Tigers. An automatic safety scored when John Kil-

St. Louis Flyers Open
Home Season Tonight,
Opposing Kansas City

A rebuilt St. Louis Hockey Club, in which four new players combine with a half dozen stars of last year's squad, opens the home schedule at the Arena tonight, opposing the Kansas City club, champions of the American Hockey Association. Last Thursday night, at Kansas City, the teams played to a 1-1 score, failing to break the tie in two overtime periods of 10 minutes each.

The introduction of four new men is one of the results of a change of ownership of the St. Louis franchise. Dr. E. G. Wainwright of Toronto, former hockey player, took over the club less than three weeks ago, appointed Al Hughes coach and brought in the new material. In the game at Kansas City, the first test for the new organization, every one of the four: Goal-ender Mickey Murray, Defense Man Joe Matte and Forwards Paddy Paddon and Gordon Teel, displayed exceptional skill. All are young men, and all well built. Matte is the most rugged, a larger man than Leo Carbol, his defense mate who starred with the team last season.

Alex McPherson, "Shrimp" to hockey players and fans, will be in the game tonight and that fact alone encourages the Flyers in their hopes for victory. McPherson underwent an operation about a month ago. He was eager to play at Kansas City but Dr. Wainwright held him on the sidelines to insure his appearance tonight. After a workout yesterday, "Shrimp" declared himself in excellent condition.

Coach Al Hughes and Wainwright expect Ralph Renne to join the club before game time. He is playing with Syracuse but St. Louis has entered a claim for his services and it is expected that he will be here to share the defense burden with Carbol and Matte. At Kansas City there were only two "spares" and as a result every player on the club was extended far beyond the reasonable limit

ZEKIEL WINS BY HALF LENGTH IN JEFFERSON PARK HANDICAP

MERRILL ON, THE FAVORITE, RUNS SECOND; MODESTO IS A POOR THIRD

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 2.—Zekiel, consistent son of Zev, which sports the silks of Frank Sembe, kept his local score perfect when he won his second consecutive purse in the Frank J. Reyes Handicap at six furlongs at Jefferson Park here this afternoon. Jimmy Hunter, the sensational Canadian jockey, earned a double astride the well-backed winner, which scored a half length to pay $5. Mrs. J. Grossman's Merril On was an easy second, three lengths in advance of Mrs. S. F. Murphy's Modesto.

Desert Races for Football

Although the weather was ideal, the crowd was not a patch of that on Thanksgiving day, when about 10,000 attended. The Tulane-L.S. U. football game was a strong rival attraction.

Merril On, which stole a long lead in the Thanksgiving Handicap only to quit badly, was unable to match Zekiel's speed. Hunter shot the latter to the front and opened up four lengths in the first furlong. Merril On easily outfooted the others and at the end was gaining rapidly on the third leader, whose time was 1:12 1/5. Modesto just beat out Euxine for the show. Merril On was a slight choice over the winner.

Tight Finish in Fourth.

The tightest finish in the fourth race, three horses passing the judges noses apart. Walter D. just lasted to win, with Captain Red second and Seb in the third. The latter dropped out of contention after showing early foot, then came again in the final quarter and almost got up. Walter D. disposed of Seb in the first half mile and held on gamely when Captain Red and Seb came along with a closing rush on the outside. Walter paid $7.60.

Sugar Creek Five Plays Y. M. H. A.

Nelson Hower, 6-foot 4-inch Washington University center of last season, will be the Sugar Creek's starting lineup, probably at a guard position, when the Central A. U. Leaguers oppose the rebuilt Y. M. H. A. basketball squad tonight at the Y. M. H. A. gymnasium, 724 North Union boulevard. His old teammate and captain, Henry (Red) Graves, also will see action for the Sugar Creek.

It is probable that Bob Weir, 6-foot 7-inch former North Dakota University center, will be at the pivot position for the opening tipoff, with "Rags" Wilcox, 6-foot 2-inch all-Big Ten star from Iowa University, at one of the forwards and either Greves or Johnny Corcoran at the other. Kingsley Wentge and either Hower or Vanninger, the latter a product of the Trenton, Ill. Independents, will man the guard positions.

Cochran Harry Regret, well pleased with the showing of his "Y" squad, has eight men available for the various berths. They are: Ben Perlmann, Isadore Bernstein, Manuel Brown, Isadore Handler, Sammy Unell, Howard Butts, Marvin Edelman and Dave Goldberg.

MINNESOTA FOOTBALL SHOWS UNOFFICIAL NET PROFIT OF $185,000

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 2.—The athletic financial records of the University of Minnesota stood in black ink tonight with football showing an unofficial net profit of $185,000.

Prepared for a probability that economy will be a major discussion subject at the annual Big Ten meetings Friday and Saturday at Chicago, Athletic Director Frank McCormick, of Minnesota, who after these sessions will be equipped with new schedules for a full year of sports, will make no plea on Minnesota's part for economy, he said.

The late football season, which produced a net income of possibly $400,000 greater than last year, which showed a net income of $146,000, was particularly comforting to Minnesota officials.

And Minnesota, which has not been in debt since the field house was cleared several years ago, may construct a new sports building, costing $350,000. A 30 per cent grant from the Federal Government, plus cash on hand, would require the university to go into debt only around $185,000. It was reported that the Minnesota gridlers this year played before approximately 160,000 home fans and 95,000 away to bring the total to an unofficial 255,000.

Increase at Ohio State.
By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 2.—Ohio State University's football team played to 287,024 persons during the last season, a total of 112,806 more than attended the games last year. Even with a considerably reduced admission price this year, receipts were greater than during the 1932 season, when a higher price was charged.

LA PRESTA WITH GUNNERS TODAY FOR CONTEST AGAINST TULSA

With Benny La Presta, fast-stepping St. Louis University gridiron prodigy, in their battleship, Coach Gwynn Henry's St. Louis Gunners will attempt to score their eighth consecutive victory and their tenth of the season this afternoon when they battle the clever Tulsa University All-Stars in the professional football contest at Public Schools Stadium. The kick-off is set for 2:30 o'clock.

Benny will be making his first appearance in St. Louis as a professional. After he played his three years of varsity football at St. Louis University, he went to the Boston Redskins of the National Professional League. He played a prominent part in the Redskins' success this season, alternating at quarterback and fullback.

A high-point scorer in college and in the league, La Presta, who is a tricky broken field runner, is expected to be of valuable service to the Gunners. The ex-St. Louis University star will line up at half-back alongside Dick Fraham, the team's outstanding blocker.

Moses a Quarterback.
Charles "Big Boy" Johnson, the Gunners' chief touchdown maker, will, as usual, be stationed at full-back, and Don Moses, whose injured foot, has about healed, will return to quarterback. Moses, who coached the Gunners' football team last Sunday, is expected to lead the team's offense.

In addition to Moses, one of the heretofore ailing Gunner guards, Leonard McGirl, will be back in harness. He and Homer Reynolds will start at end and Charles Malone, who played in the Tulsa game last Sunday, will be back in the line. The Gunners also have two complete backfields. The other quartet, composed of Joe Spudich, John Bredenstein, Blake Workman and Cowboy Kyle, is rated highly by Henry and will be used as the game progresses.

The Tulsa team, which is expected to be a strong contender, is led by Coach "Glenn" Henderson, Tulsa University football coach, who coached the Tulsa team last Sunday. The Tulsa team is expected to be a strong contender.

Turkeys Scarcer Than Deer.

MISSOURI'S wild turkey hunting season is on and will not close until Dec. 31, but the statement comes merely a ho, hum attitude on the part of many sportsmen. This is because turkey hunting has been something of a myth in recent years. Turkey shooting expeditions for the average hunter pay very few dividends.

Last year two St. Louisans drove all the way to Gainesville, Fla., to hunt for turkeys. They returned with a turkey, but the hunters were disappointed. The turkey was not the one they had hoped for. The hunters were disappointed.

BABE DIDRIKSON, DUQUESNE TEAM FAMOUS ATHLETE, WILL PLAY PICKED TO APPEAR HERE ELEVEN, DEC. 10

Mike Nyikos, basketball coach at St. Louis University, has been named referee of the cage game in which Babe Didrikson, outstanding girl athlete, will appear tomorrow night at the Washington University Fieldhouse. This was the announcement of Wm. O. De Witt, Cardiac treasurer, who has been placed in charge of the game here by Promoter Ray L. Dean, manager of the Babe's present cage tour.

De Witt stated that he had received the assurances from Dean that both Miss Didrikson and Jackie Mitchell, the girl southpaw pitcher who hurled for the House of David against the Cardinals last summer, will be in the starting lineup against the local all-star combination.

Besides this pair of feminine stars, the following will appear in the All-Americans lineup: McIntyre, forward, Iowa State; Bob Shafer, 6-foot, 6-inch center, West Virginia State; Lefty Evers, guard, Kansas Aggies; Dick Butzer, guard, Loyola of Chicago and Darrell Darby, forward, University of Kentucky.

The St. Louis All-Stars will have Herschel Martin, 6-foot 4-inch forward Oklahoma Aggie star at center; Rollie Hemley, Browns' catcher, at forward with Ham Strong, former Billiken captain; and Jack Joyce and Joe Lintz, both at the guard positions.

Dean stated that he would be willing to pit Miss Didrikson against any male athlete in six named sports and is certain the Babe will outclass her opponents. He did not name the six sports, however. Miss Didrikson and her traveling All-Americans play a picked team at Peoria, Ill., tonight and are due to arrive in St. Louis tomorrow morning.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. —Used has the population of the world's rich metropolis become to being gyped, even during years they had little enough to complain about the price of liquor, they are making elaborate preparations to get themselves soaked again. Ruth Wood Oliver Is Married to P. T. Finch
MISS RUTH WOOD OLIVER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Oliver, 13 Fair Oaks, and Parker Thomas Finch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Finch, 6420 McPherson avenue, were married at Herbert L. Finch Jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Clayton Thomas of New York, Duncan C. Dobson, Duncan I. Meier Jr., Richard T. Shelton Jr., Bertram B. Culver Jr. and Joseph Ferguson were ushers.

The ceremony took place by candle light. Tall cathedral tapers at every other pew lighted the center aisle and more of the tapers in branched candelabra were arranged in the chancel against masses of cymbodium fern. The altar rail was covered with greenery and at each side were large clusters of white chrysanthemums. The altar was adorned with white chrysanthemums and lighted with ivory candles.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white uncut velvet fashioned with a high round neckline both front and back. There were sleeves from a low cut armhole that fitted into a long tight cuff. The gown molded the figure and fell in supple folds into a graceful train. Her

Debut Party for Helen Davis, the debut ball of his youngest daughter, Miss Helen Brooks Davis, Saturday evening, Dec. 23, at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church in University Hills. The Rev. Dr. Roy Calvin Dobson officiated. Mrs. William Alexander Roever of Wichita Falls, Tex., formerly Miss Myrtle Oliver, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Lida Arnold of Houston, Tex., Miss Nellie Caldicie, Miss Sarah Hill, Mrs. Walter E. Pauley, Mrs. Duncan C. Dobson and Mrs. Duncan Ivers Meier Jr.

The guests entered the banquet room through French doors from the lounge beneath an archway of chrysanthemums. At the opposite end of the room more of the flowers were banked to the ceiling, almost concealing the mirror which covered the wall, and providing a flowery background for Miss Lamy. Smilax covered the ceiling and walls and garlanded the pillars. The scene was lighted indirectly from behind the glass skydoms, the soft glow adding to the bowerlike effect of the decorations.

Vine-covered balustrades led to the second floor ball room, where dancing followed the dinner. Smilax was festooned over the chandeliers and outlined doorways and window openings. The orchestra played in a garden of palms and feathery ferns built on the stage, which was lighted by bulbs arranged in the greenery.

Social and Civic Activities Of Women's Clubs

REPRESENTATIVES from every federated club of the Eighth District will attend the Christmas party Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at Vandervoort's music hall. Mrs. William H. Sullivan, chairman of child welfare, will distribute gifts to the disabled children.

Mrs. Joseph T. Davis, president of the Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, will give the address of welcome, followed by her message as president.

Christmas carols will be sung by the Musical Research Chorus. The Gregory Studio Players will present Mrs. Frederick Schuerman in the "Ballad of the Harp Weaver" by Edna St. Vincent Millay. Mrs. Edward L. Heilgers will sing "Come Upon the Midnight Clear," with Mrs. G. W. Coffman at the piano. Mrs. Schuerman will give a story by Charles Dickens.

Mrs. Davis has issued invitations to state officers living in St. Louis and St. Louis County and to presidents of each federated club for a council tea Thursday at 2 o'clock at Glen Echo Country Club.

The International Relations Committee of the Eighth District will be guests of the Wednesday Club Wednesday, for "Mars Takes a Sabbath."

Miss Dorothy Detzer of Washington, executive secretary for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, will address the St. Louis branch at a luncheon at 1 o'clock Thursday at the Wednesday Club. For several years Miss Detzer has been engaged in civic and philanthropic work for the Far East, at Vienna, and in Russia. The luncheon is open to anyone interested in the work of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

The executive board of the St. Louis branch is as follows: Mrs. B. F. Miller, chairman; Mrs. Henry Lodge, vice-chairman; Miss Helen Black, recording secretary; Mrs. W. McKim Marriott, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. E. M. Grossman, treasurer. The directors are Mrs. Ernest Jones, Miss Alice Long, Mrs. John Morrison-Fuller, Mrs. Fred J. Tausig, Mrs. Albert E. Tausig, Mrs. Harold Tittman and Miss Paula Wilhelm.

The Wednesday Club will hold two afternoon meetings followed by a tea Wednesday.

At 1:30 p. m. the History and Literature Section, Mrs. Sylvester P. Annan, chairman, will continue its study of "Story Telling Through the Ages." King Arthur and his Knights will be discussed by Mrs. I. W. Coste; Geoffrey Chaucer and the "Canterbury Tales" by Mrs. W. John Harris.

At 3 p. m. the Social Economy and International Relations Section, Mrs. Charles D. Ashcroft, chairman, will give a play by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, "Mars Takes a Sabbath." Miss Alice Long, leader for the day, will draw attention to the general subject for the year's study, "The World Today."

The play is directed by Mrs. F. Ray Leimkuhler and has a cast of 30 members.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

THE marriage of Miss Dorothy Lee Genoway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Genoway of Fredericktown, Mo., to John Merritt Collins, son of Mrs. Hazel Cameron, 5206 Holly Hill, was solemnized Sunday afternoon, Nov. 26, at the Shaw Avenue Methodist Church, the Rev. B. L. Schubel officiating. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Johnson, 123 Selma avenue, Webster Groves.

The bride wore her aunt's wedding dress of ivory satin. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a band of orange blossoms and she carried valley lilies. Her maid of honor was Miss Jane Crow. Her bridesmaid, Miss Rose Lee Griffith, Warren Hageman and John Merle were Mr. Collins' groomsmen. Mrs. E. F. Volkert, the bride's sister, sang during the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Collins will make their home in St. Louis.

The engagement of Miss Wilma Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Moran, 785 Yale avenue, University City, and C. Alford Vegely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman O. Vegely, 115 Mason road, Webster Park, was announced at a harvest party given at the home of the prospective bride's parents Wednesday night. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Kern, 3831 Flad avenue, gave a wedding supper at their home Thanksgiving night for their niece, Miss Elizabeth Buechel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Buechel of Kansas City, whose marriage to Fred M. Harley of Detroit took place in Kansas City that morning.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Kern was decorated with pink flowers and the wedding cake was pink. Mr. and Mrs. John Beardon of Decatur, Ill., were the out-of-town guests at the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Henckler, 3105 Miami avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Virginia Henckler, to the Rev. E. A. Krouse of Jackson, Tenn., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Krouse of Sheboygan, Wis. No date has been set for the wedding.

The wedding of Miss Charlotte Kautzman, daughter of Mrs. Lottie Kautzman, 2875 Hebert street, to Leonard George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert George, 5204 Ashland avenue, took place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Zion Evangelical Church with the Rev. H. F. Tolle reading the marriage service. The church was banked with palms and chrysanthemums. A wedding supper for the bridal party and a reception were held at the Northwestern Hotel.

The bride wore ivory satin and a veil which was arranged from a cap of rose point lace and trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried small white roses. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, John Kautzman, was attended by Miss Dorothy Wehmer, Miss Lydia Feerber and Miss Atholene George, the bridegroom's sister. Mr. George's groomsmen and ushers were: Vernon Langwish, John Kautzman, A. Mannan and William Koenig.

Mrs. Margaret Lahey, 1518 Yale avenue, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Christy, University City, became the bride of William Duffy of Gillespie, Ill., Saturday morning at St. Luke's Church with the Rev. Joseph A. McMahon officiating. A wedding breakfast at the Coronado Hotel followed.

Mrs. Duffy was gown in pansy blue velvet fashioned along princess lines and trimmed with lace. Her hat and accessories were of an eel gray shade. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her matron of honor, Mrs. Leo Mitchell, wore velvet of a golden brown shade and carried tallman roses. Mr. Duffy's best man was Leo Mitchell.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Duffy will live at 5304 Chipewa avenue.

Miss Constance Ruth Lowenstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Lowenstein, 5555 Pershing avenue, and Dr. Silbert Lipschitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lipschitz, 2239 South Grand avenue, were married at 5 o'clock in the afternoon of Thanksgiving day at the Forest Park Hotel.

Rabbi A. B. Halpern read the marriage service in the Colonial room which was illuminated with candles. There were no attendants. The bride and bridegroom stood before an improvised altar of chrysanthemums in autumn tints against a background of palms and smiles. Candelabra filled with ivory tapers stood at each side.

The bride wore a gown of ivory toned satin made on long clinging lines. There was a high neckline and sleeves of the satin puffed to the elbow where there was a long tight cuff. She wore a finger-tip veil of ivory tulle arranged with a cap of rose point lace and carried lilies of the valley. Mrs. Lowenstein wore a gown of pansy shaded uncut velvet.

Leading stores and shops have many gift suggestions in the Post-Dispatch today.

E. Virgil Neal Visits Old Missouri Home

E. VIRGIL NEAL, a native Missourian, whose Chateau d'Azur,
near Nice, is one of the show
places of the French Riviera, arrived at the Park Plaza yesterday to visit relatives for a day on his way back to France after a two-month tour of the United States
with a party of nine persons.

Mr. Neal, a wealthy chemical manufacturer, whose products are sold in more than 100 nations, twice visited Sedalia, Mo., his birthplace. He was there for a week on his way from New York to California six weeks ago, and last week, on the return East, he was there four days.

Accompanying him were his wife
and son, his personal physician, Dr.
J. Vialle of Nice, two secretaries, valet, chauffeur and governess. The

Boston Terrier Club
Show Opens Jan. 14

OFFICIALS of the Boston Terrier Club of St. Louis have completed arrangements for its second annual licensed specialty show at Hotel Claridge, Sunday,
Jan. 14.

This year's show, which will be given under the rules of the American Kennel Club, will occupy the entire mezzanine floor and ball room.

The club will also sponsor a Boston Terrier puppy show which will be held Saturday night, Jan.
13, at the Claridge.

Albert Turner, 2005 Spanish Drive, Webster Groves, is president of the club.

party will depart this morning to visit Washington, and will sail from New York.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS
IN THE CHURCHES

D. degrees from the University of Michigan, and Doctor of Science at St. John's University. She is internationally known as an educator and was a special delegate to the International Congress of Women in Chicago last July. She is also vice-president of the National Christian Council of China. Miss Picken has served in social service
church work, Marathi Mission, Sa-tara, India, since 1914, and is well acquainted with women of all castes. She is supervisor of a child welfare center and dispensary in India. She is divisional commander of 2000 Girl Guides, an organization similar to the Girl Scouts.

The opening prayer will be led by the Rev. Ada Stone Anderson.

All who attend the meeting will have the opportunity of viewing the painting, "The Nazarene," which was exhibited during the recent Century of Progress exposition in Chicago. The picture will be displayed in a special room at the church during the morning and until 3 p. m. that afternoon.

A Decorating Committee consisting of Mrs. Hueston Witherspoon, Mrs. G. O. Wolf, Mrs. E. A. Lussie
and Mrs. A. L. Hewitt will provide tree branches sprayed with white and garlanded with silver blossoms
for the entire interior of the parlors
and dining-rooms used for the Second Presbyterian Women's association bazaar and luncheon, Friday.
The tables for the bazaar are to be arranged by Miss Ethel Culbertson, whose sister, Miss May Culbertson,
will manage an apron table. Mrs.
John W. MacIvor and her committee have been preparing a table of fine linens. Mrs. L. C. Haworth and Mrs. C. H. Franklin will have a book and periodical table, and Mrs. J. D. Hardcastle handmade articles. A "kitchen corner," with accessories for use in the kitchen,
will be a new departure under Mrs.
Fred Baughens and Mrs. Ethel R.
Rosemond. Sachets, waste-paper baskets and leather novelties will be included in Mrs. P. M. Galt's hand-painted articles. Mrs. Sam Thompson will conduct a sale of children's surprise bags; Mrs. Harry A. Pyle will offer dotted, flannel and pottery. There are to be pillows in Mrs. E. H. Hillmer's division, and serviettes under
Mrs. Hamilton Cook. Mrs. W. B.
Robinson's doll collection, with entirely handmade garments, will be very complete. Candy will be sold, all made at home, by Mrs. Walter Mayne and Mrs. Helene Lambert.
Mrs. Alex Robertson will have the food table. In the general arrangements Mrs. John W. Morrison is handling the tickets; Mrs. Adrian Nichols is dining-room hostess, and Mrs. J. W. Howe, luncheon hostess.
The funds are to be applied to the missions, charity and social work carried on in St. Louis and elsewhere by the Woman's Association,
much of this being centered in Greeley Church on St. Louis avenue.

JEFFERSON BARRACKS

Social Items From the Army Post

COL. and Mrs. Walter Krueger will hold their monthly "at home" at their quarters next Thursday from 4 until 6 o'clock. Their friends from St. Louis and the officers and women of the post and their guests are invited.

The first dance of the season was held at the Post Gymnasium Wednesday evening. Thanksgiving decorations were used.

A Dutch treat supper was attended by Maj. and Mrs. Paul R. King, Maj. and Mrs. Frederick Schoenfeld, Maj. and Mrs. Thomas L. Smith, Maj. and Mrs. Edward L. Trett and Capt. and Mrs. William H. Irvine Wednesday evening. The first course was served at the Smiths' quarters and the last at the Irvins'.

Miss Kathryn Huntington, daughter of Mrs. H. R. Huntington of St. Louis, was the house guest of Lieut. and Mrs. William H. Arnold Wednesday evening and Thursday.

Mrs. Edgar L. Olson, who with Lieut. Olson will depart soon for Carlisle Barracks, Pa., was the guest of a bridge luncheon given by Miss Dorothy Krueger Friday. The other guests included Mrs. George E. Steinmeyer, Mrs. John T. Westermeyer, Mrs. Walden B. Coffey and Miss Ida Johnston.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hundley entertained informally at dinner Tuesday evening for Col. and Mrs. Walter Krueger and Mr. and Mrs. James Breckinridge of St. Louis.

Maj. James A. Summersett has returned for duty on the Post. He was formerly district commander at Trout Creek, Mich., of the Ninth Civilian Corps Conservation Corps District.

Mr. and Mrs. William Roettger and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Roettger will be the dinner guests of Capt. and Mrs. Nels L. Soderholm today.

Miss Charlotte Cotton, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert C. Cotton, was the guest of a football party at her home Saturday evening, Nov. 25.

—most appealing to men—the charm and beauty of lovely, well-groomed hair

—and, that delightful degree of feminine attractiveness rarely attained is now easily yours by the use of Lucky Tiger's Three Basic Products—Listed below:

LUCKY TIGER Hair Tonic

Made under our standardized formula for nearly two decades to correct dandruff and to enhance the natural beauty of the hair. A single application stops that miserable itching and usually a single bottle corrects most annoying scalp irritations, giving tone and vigor without discoloration of any kind. Delicately perfumed and always safe and efficient for both adults and children. For years millions of users have endorsed Lucky Tiger Hair Tonic as their popular favorite.

LUCKY TIGER Magic Shampoo

There is always something magical in beautiful well-groomed hair. With women who care (and they all do) the beauty and care of the hair and scalp are of first consideration—all else may be formally correct but if the hair is lifeless, unclean and itchy, with dandruff all the beauty of the face is lost. Here is where Lucky Tiger Magic Shampoo comes in—thoroughly cleanses the scalp, removes dandruff, restores natural color and shine, and leaves the hair soft and manageable. It is a shampoo scientifically correct—no harsh soaps, no free alkalis, no irritating perfumes—just a final hair tonic to give it that beautiful and desired shine and manageability—so delightfully different—Try it just once.

LUCKY TIGER Hair Dressing

The last word in a scientific hair dressing for men, women and children—simple though it is, thousands of dollars were spent in perfecting this product—both chemists and bacteriologists worked for months and months perfecting this super, delicately perfumed, highly refined vegetable oil that is meant to please and exhilarate and never gummy or sticky—and it is marvelous for dry, unclean, lifeless hair and for the care of permanent and marcel waves—a final hair tonic to give it that beautiful and desired shine and manageability—so delightfully different—Try it just once.

ANOTHER PACIFIC ISLAND DISAPPEARS

Sinking of Sarah Ann Adds One More to the List of Those
That Have Gone Down
While Others Have Come to the Surface.

The blazing fires of Kilauea Volcano lava flow in Hawaii may have been burning above or below the sea since the earth began.

By PETRI MONDELL

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SARAH ANN ISLAND, never important in commerce or history, and just a mere dot down along the Equator, has suddenly loomed into scientific importance. It is more important, in fact, in its ending than it ever was during its role as a tropical island, for Sarah Ann Island, which was designated to be the base for expeditionary observations to observe the 1937 eclipse of the sun, has sunk into the Pacific. Not even a shoal is left to mark the spot it once graced.

The 1937 eclipse of the sun will have the longest period of totality of any such eclipse in the present generation, and German astronomical authorities have been anxious to locate an expeditionary observatory to make the most of the scientific opportunities presented. They requested the United States Naval Observatory to make the necessary computations and designate the most feasible base. The Naval Observatory did so, designating Sarah Ann Island and setting the date of eclipse as June 8, 1937.

Vessels of the battle fleet, cruising in the vicinity, about 9 degrees north of the Equator, were requested to drop in at Sarah Ann Island and make an inspection of the terrain, but when they arrived at the location they found the island's "terrain" far below the waves of the Pacific Ocean. It had sunk and no trace remained.

THE hydrographers and chart makers are now busy correcting the pilot charts of the Pacific Ocean, but it is nothing new to them, for the Pacific offers an amazingly flexible and active bottom. No fewer than 30 islands of the Pacific are known to be subsiding and submerging, while a considerable number of submerged peaks are now slowly rising to the surface, soon to become shoals and later islands.

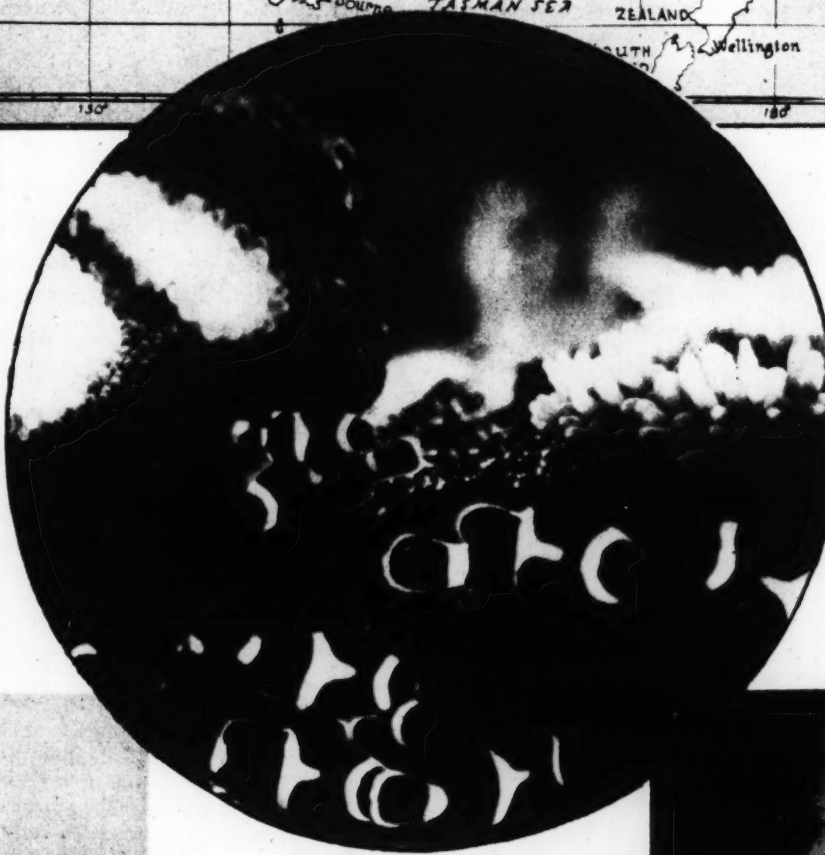

About 230 miles southeast of Hawaii, the United States Navy has located two peaks slowly coming up. If they amount to anything they will become American territory, by right of discovery even before they appear above water. This form of territorial discovery is somewhat ahead of that of the early conquistadores in the Pacific. The employment of the sonic depth finder in an organized, methodical manner by the United States Navy has given it foreknowledge of a number of such developments. It is perhaps just as well, and will probably be used by other nations, for it would be embarrassing, to say the least, for a nation to find a nice new island next door to an important naval base, let us say, and that new island perhaps the property of a competitor.

The Dutch, in past years noticing the gradual lengthening of the beaches on the island of Sumatra, believed the Pacific Ocean was becoming lower. It is now known that Sumatra is one of the fortunate islands which are still rising. Yet, just 600 miles away from Sumatra, Keeling Island is slowly sinking.

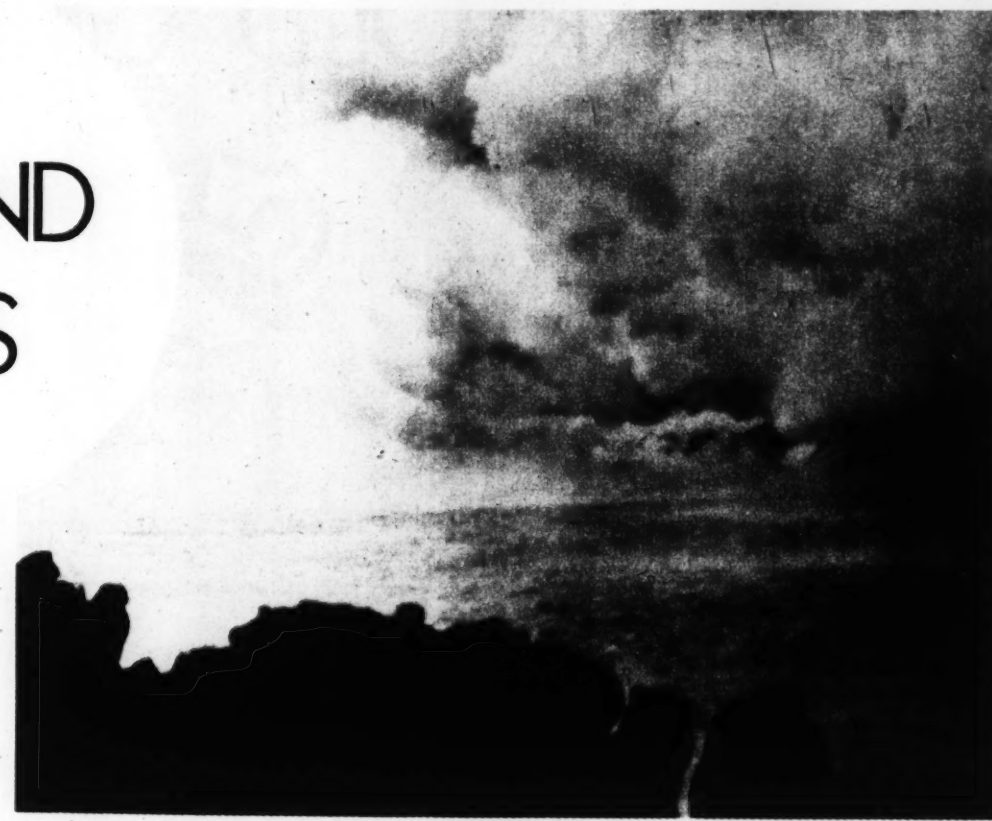

For a number of years, the Navy has been observing the slow disappearance of an interesting island, Necker. This island is now less than a mile in diameter. Stone carvings of an advanced stage of stone art are found on it, and also many stone steps proceeding to well carved shelters. Many evidences of former human habitation are found, yet not an ounce of fresh water exists on the island, which is many hundreds of miles distant from any other piece of land above water. Naval hydrographers believe Necker is perhaps the former mountain eminence of a great island or even a continent, and that now far below the surface of the Pacific the fresh water springs pour their pure water into the Pacific brine.

Many of the Pacific equatorial islands and some far from the Equator are ringed with coral reefs, a circumstance which offers a ready means of proving that land is submerging. Coral insects cannot exist, or build coral, at depths below 150 feet. When Naval divers go down and find coral, as they have found it, at a depth of more than 200 feet, and when Naval sounding lines bring up coral from 1400 feet, as they have done at Funafiti, scientists then know that the land has submerged at least that far. It might seem that 1400 feet is a considerable distance, but when it is remembered that the lowest ocean depth ever sounded—about eight miles—doesn't even rank as appreciable roughness on a scale model of the world, the depth doesn't mean so much, even

The Upolu lava flow in northern Hawaii reaches the sea, showing how a volcanic island is formed from a submerged peak.

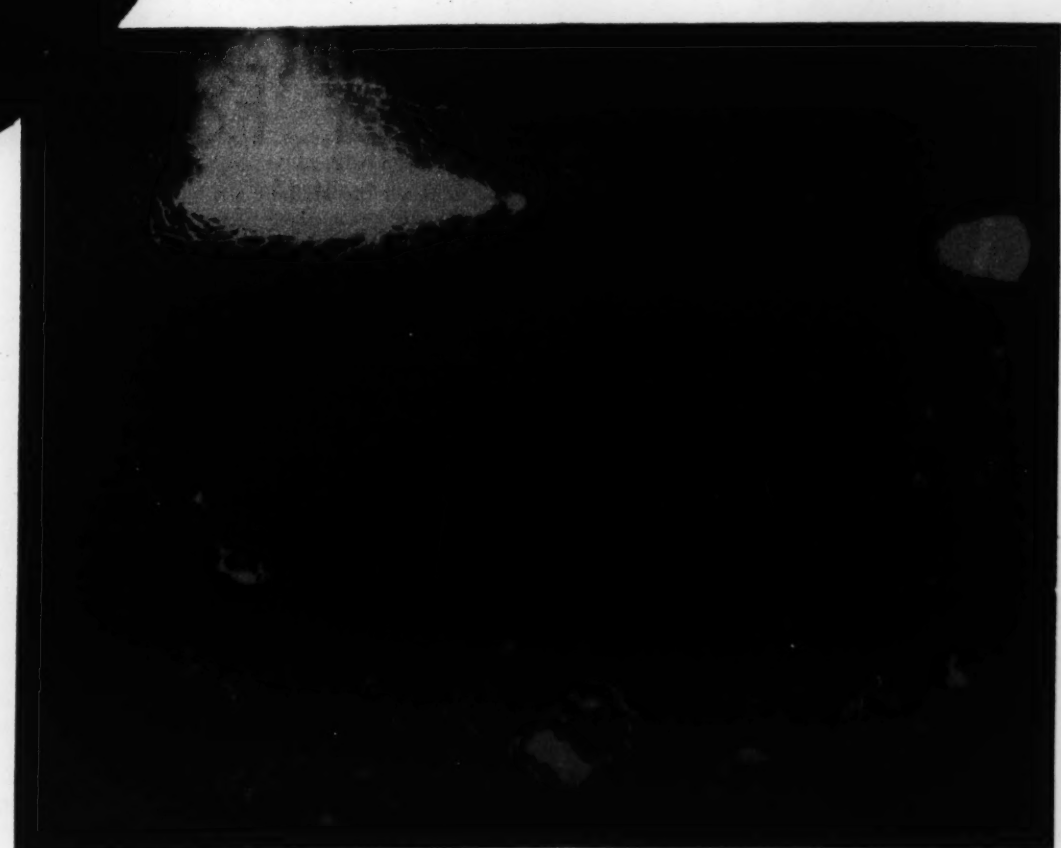

Today, its depths have become so elevated that it is a harbor no longer.

In addition to such islands as Sarah Ann and others, there have been thickly populated islands which have sunk fairly recently.

In 1836 the island of Tuanaki, to the south of the Cook group, disappeared. Up until very recently there were natives and missionaries living who had visited it and lived on it. As a matter of fact, a missionary who relieved a brother missionary was given a full account of the disaster, and he informed Naval officers that natives who had been away from the place when disaster befell, continually cruised over the spot hoping to find some trace of the remains of their families. History records that when the first white men reached the South Sea Islands, they observed several large expeditions of natives setting forth to find lost islands. Since the natives used the Sacred Calabash, only a little less efficient in native hands than the sextant for navigating, and also guided by the stars, many of which they had named, it is now believed by seamen that they knew very well what they were doing. It must be remembered that the natives of the so-called South Sea Islands were doing accurate deep-sea navigation with instruments when Europeans were skirting the coasts in superstitious dread, and when Columbus sailed to America with his crude cross-staff, at which the islanders would have laughed.

THOSE who hold the belief that the crust of the earth is particularly thin in the Pacific area, due, according to one theory, to departure of the mass forming the moon from that basin, have much to support their stand. Above water and below water, the earth's greatest eruptions occur in this area. That at Krakatoa in the Strait of Sunda, in 1883, took the lives of 37,000 people, making the loss of the town of Pompeii, under Vesuvius' flow, pale by comparison. Moreover, 30 cubic miles of material came from the eruption and flowed into the sea! The tidal wave reached the almost incredible height of 135 feet.

In recent years, even as lately as 1930, tidal waves reached the Hawaii and California coasts traveling at the rate of 400 miles an hour. They were not of exceptionally dangerous height, however. A submarine disturbance off the Chilean coast on November 7, 1837, gave birth to a similar wave which reached Hilo, Hawaii, at a speed of 400 miles an hour. When it is remembered that one of the greatest depths of the Pacific starts just 50 miles off the Chilean coast, and that just seaward of that deep is a great reef which is believed once to have been the edge of the continent, (Concluded on Page 7.)

The Strange Case of an 18-YEAR-OLD GIRL WITHOUT a COUNTRY

Dietze von Tyle Came Into the United States Illegally but Can't Be Deported and Her Story Has Made Her a First-Class Enigma to the Newark Police.

Dietze von Tyle.

By JACK ALEXANDER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEWARK, N. J.

AINFULLY aware of the fact that a policeman's sympathy is easily played upon, the Newark roundsmen are doing a lot for Dietze von Tyle but saying little about it. They have found her a job and a home in a nearby community and are keeping her whereabouts secret, because they believe the weird story she tells of her origin and her adventurous and knockabout cruise from Africa to America. They think she is a good kid who, deserving many breaks, has had none. They are seeing to it that she gets at least one. But they recall vividly what suckers a "little petite French stowaway from Grenoble"—actually a Hazleton, Pa., high school girl—made of their brethren, the New York cops, some months back and are bashful when the subject of the exotic Von Tyle girl is brought up.

To date the 18-year-old girl is a first-class enigma. A priest, in whom she had confided her odd misadventures, first brought her to the notice of the police. Having only one solution for such situations, they locked her up on a charge of immorality and tipped off the Department of Justice that a new white slave ring was in operation. As the Federal operatives swung into action, the Newark guardians of order reached the conclusion that they had unwittingly branded an innocent youngster with the scarlet letter. They did their best to undo the mistake. A sympathetic judge gave her a suspended sentence and the police took the girl under their wing and got her out of the public eye.

Now it is the Government's turn to puzzle. While obviously foreign and indigenous to soil on the other side of the world, the girl cannot be deported. The first requirement for deportation on the ground of illegal entry is conclusive proof of such entry. The Von Tyle girl claims to have entered without the usual formalities but no one can be found to corroborate her. So whatever place she came from, she stays here, a girl without a country.

Her story is queer and strange but not at all incredible. Its remarkable details are related in perfect English with a German accent and in the most naive and disarming manner. The girl also speaks French and German. She is 18 years old and slight of build and has brown hair, blue eyes and a fair complexion.

WHEN she entered police headquarters she wore a modest black suit, a small turn-up black felt hat and a stringy black tie. Her face is Germanic in cast but the lips are heavy, the cheekbones high and the eyes dreamy. The peculiar facial set-up lends credence to her story.

Her father (says Dietze von Tyle) was Major Eric von Tyle, officer in the German army and member of a titled family. At the beginning of the World War, Major von Tyle deserted his army, his country and his family—a wife and several children—and sold out to the French who rewarded his perfidy handsomely with the gift of a large farm, or tract, in French Southwest Africa, 500 miles from the coast, near the border between French and British Nigeria. Here, with bountiful crops and plenty of cheap help to harvest them, the ex-officer "went native" and in 1915, when his former mates were at death grips with the Allies, he drank cognac to a new daughter.

The mother died in childbirth and the daughter, Dietze, was never able to discover much about her. As she grew up, she found that her father gruffly parried questions on the subject. Privately tutored by her father from German textbooks he often fingered reflectively, Dietze came to womanhood without seeing another white person. It was not until a year ago, when she had turned 17, that she met a French boy from a farm 200 miles away.

Her father encouraged the romance and the pair became engaged. There was talk of a honeymoon in Paris, after the war, and of shops and boulevards and sidewalks thronged with thousands of white people.

Ex-Major von Tyle was stricken with tropical fever while driving his daughter back home after a visit to the other farm. He died within a few days.

Then Dietze learned that her mother had been a native, an Ethiopian or one of the Moorish Arabs of the district. Stunned and chagrined, she resolved never to see her French sweetheart again. The feeling of shame drove her to furious packing of her belongings and within 24 hours she was seated in the rear of a canoe while two black servants paddled her down the Niger toward the sea.

SHE didn't know where she would go but felt sure the more miles she put between the French boy and herself the better it would be for both. At her feet crouched her Chow dog, Ching Wong Tan, puzzled at her tears. In another canoe the four remaining blacks paddled as an escort. In six weeks the craft tied up at Akassa, a seaport. The girl bade farewell to the servants and shipped aboard a tramp steamer for Havre.

A month later she was living in a cheap room on the Havre waterfront. A wire to her father's people in Germany had brought no answer and the money he had left her had dwindled to about $100. Often, to pass the time and to distract her mind from the terrifying thought that she was a girl with no roots in life, she walked along the quay and drank in the odors of hemp and coffee and jute and spices. Once she clutched a cablegram as she walked. After reading it several times she tore it up. It was from her lover, urging her to come back to Nigeria.

"Why are you crying?" a woman asked her.

The girl told her. "Would you like to go to America?" the woman asked.

Dietze replied that she would but that she had no money.

"There are ways in which you can repay me later," was the reply.

THEY went to the girl's room and got her luggage and then to the woman's quarters. There were three men in the place with small bundles ready to sling across their shoulders. They looked at the newcomer without interest. The boat was leaving that night, the woman said, and they would board it late in the afternoon. She pressed $350 in bills in the girl's hand and told her to hand it over to the captain. Before sundown a motorboat landed them alongside the vessel, out of sight of land. The three men with their bags nimbly climbed the ladder and the dog was lifted on a rope. The girl went up more slowly and handed the captain his money. He accepted it and waved at the woman in the motorboat who swung it about and headed for port.

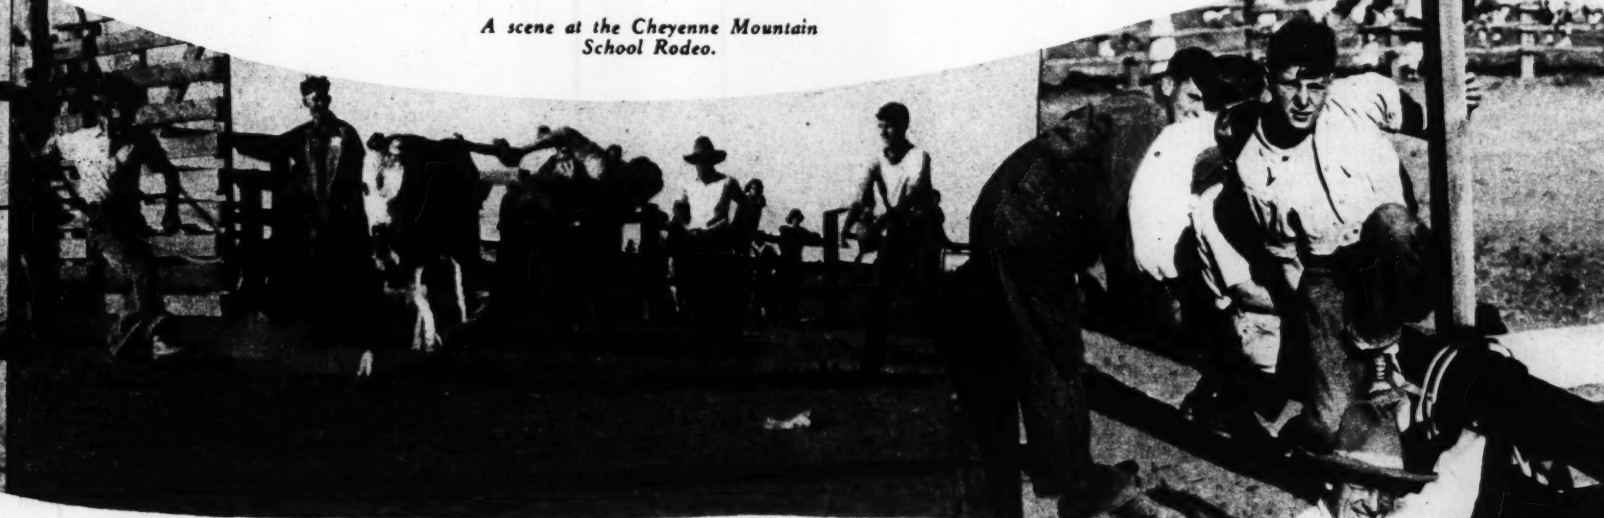

Dietze noticed that the crew was busy repainting the small ship. Up on the bow the name, which ended in "alle," was being deleted and "Angelina" substituted. Instead of sailing at midnight, the "Angelina" waited until dawn, then shoved off.

After two weeks at sea the "Angelina" dropped anchor at what appears, from the girl's description, to have been Montauk Point or Atlantic City. A motorboat took off the girl and the three men and landed them inland on the bank of a creek. It was only a short walk to the highway.

A scene at the Cheyenne Mountain School Rodeo.

The School That Substituted Broncho-Busting for Football

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colorado.

HERE was not a single football casualty in the Cheyenne Mountain Public School here this past fall. Not so much as a turned ankle or a wrenched back, not so much even as a stone bruise. And that, in a high school of normal youngsters, sport crazy as are high school students pretty much everywhere, is some record.

The reason, of course, is that the school didn't have a football team this fall. They went in instead for rodeo sports—bulldozing steers and breaking bucking bronchos.

It was by substituting this branch of athletics for the traditional football that Dr. Lloyd Shaw, superintendent, got for himself a surprising lot of publicity. At least Dr. Shaw was surprised by the publicity for he had considered the change a logical one to make in a school that attempts to relate itself to the environment rather than to some arbitrary pattern.

In this unusual public school the first effort is to teach the student all that it is possible to know about the world immediately around him. Nature study, here in the shadow of the Rockies, has an important place in the curriculum. Each year the senior students are taken on long motor trips through Yellowstone National Park where they study keyers and hot springs and the thousand and one rare phenomena of the park. Each year Dr. Shaw invites a tribe of Indians from the Southwest to set up their camp on the school ground and teach the children Indian dances, rituals and customs. What more natural, Dr. Shaw argued, in this cattle-and-cowboy country, than to introduce the "native" sport?

"There is really nothing very new about it," Dr. Shaw insists.

"After all you may recall that Aristotle sat on a corral fence and watched Alexander the Great tame a wild horse. I consider that a very important educational experience.

"Virtually nothing that a boy learns in football and the other sports of our modern schools is a value to him in later life. We Westerners always will need a knowledge of horses and cattle. Riding a horse is the most natural activity in the world. And I prefer natural sports to those artificially fostered or created by man.

"WHEN you come right down to it, I think there is less danger of the students being injured riding horses and bulldozing steers than there is when they are playing football. Our experience this past season has shown that."

Ironically enough during the autumn rodeo season at Cheyenne school Dr. Shaw was the only person to get hurt. He cracked two ribs showing his pupils how to bulldoze a steer. And this he insists was too minor for notice.

The season included a full-sized rodeo staged by the students and judged by professional judges. The judges were Colonel W. H. Neil, in charge of the United States Army Remount Service at Colorado Springs, and Ray Bell, professional rodeo rider. Perched on the top rail of the corral fence Dr. Shaw announced the events and the winners through a megaphone. He looked like any seasoned cowhand, in a ten-gallon hat, chaps, gay flannel shirt, high-heeled boots and spurs.

Bill Evans came out top hand of the Cheyenne school outfit—to use the language of the professionals in this sport—by riding "Country Butter," a rodeo horse that has in the past bested many rodeo pros. John Love was second in the final ratings for his victory over "Black Beauty." He was spilled in the dust by "Beaver Valley."

The girls, too, took part in this rodeo, with Jean Sinclair first in the principal race for girls—they rode bareback the length of the corral, saddled their horses and returned to the starting post.

The rodeo even made money, enough money so that the school will probably be able to equip a stable of rodeo horses for permanent use in this unusual branch of athletics.

LONDON. FREDERICK FIELD, an English workman who ordinarily would never have been heard of, has just become famous in the annals of British jurisprudence, because, to clear his name of just suspicion, he took the extraordinary and daring step of confessing to a murder he did not commit. It was daring because, usually, when the wheels of British justice begin to turn, it is hard to get out from under. When the Director of Prosecutions gives the sign to go ahead with a case, it is unusual for an accused man to go free.

The worst that happened to Field was to be called a liar. There is no case parallel to it in the history of the British courts.

It all began in a very ordinary way. On October 2, 1931, Field and another man, going into the premises of an

CONFESSED to MURDER to Keep From Being Called A MURDERER

*How Frederick Field Set a

by Admitting the Guilt of a Crime He Didn't

Ex-Major von Tyle was stricken with tropical fever while driving his daughter back home after a visit to the other farm. He died within a few days.

Then Dietze learned that her mother had been a native, an Ethiopian or one of the Moorish Arabs of the district. Stunned and chagrined, she resolved never to see her French sweetheart again. The feeling of shame drove her to furious packing of her belongings and within 24 hours she was seated in the rear of a canoe while two black servants paddled her down the Niger toward the sea.

SHE didn't know where she would go but felt sure the more miles she put between the French boy and herself the better it would be for both. At her feet crouched her Chow dog, Ching Wong Tan, puzzled at her tears. In another canoe the four remaining blacks paddled as an escort. In six weeks the craft tied up at Akassa, a seaport. The girl bade farewell to the servants and shipped aboard a tramp steamer for Havre.

A month later she was living in a cheap room on the Havre waterfront. A wire to her father's people in Germany had brought no answer and the money he had left her had dwindled to about $100. Often, to pass the time and to distract her mind from the terrifying thought that she was a girl with no roots in life, she walked along the quay and drank in the odors of hemp and coffee and jute and spices. Once she clutched a cablegram as she walked. After reading it several times she tore it up. It was from her lover urging her to come back to Nigeria.

"Why are you crying?" a woman asked her.

The girl told her. "Would you like to go to America?" the woman asked.

Dietze replied that she would but that she had no money.

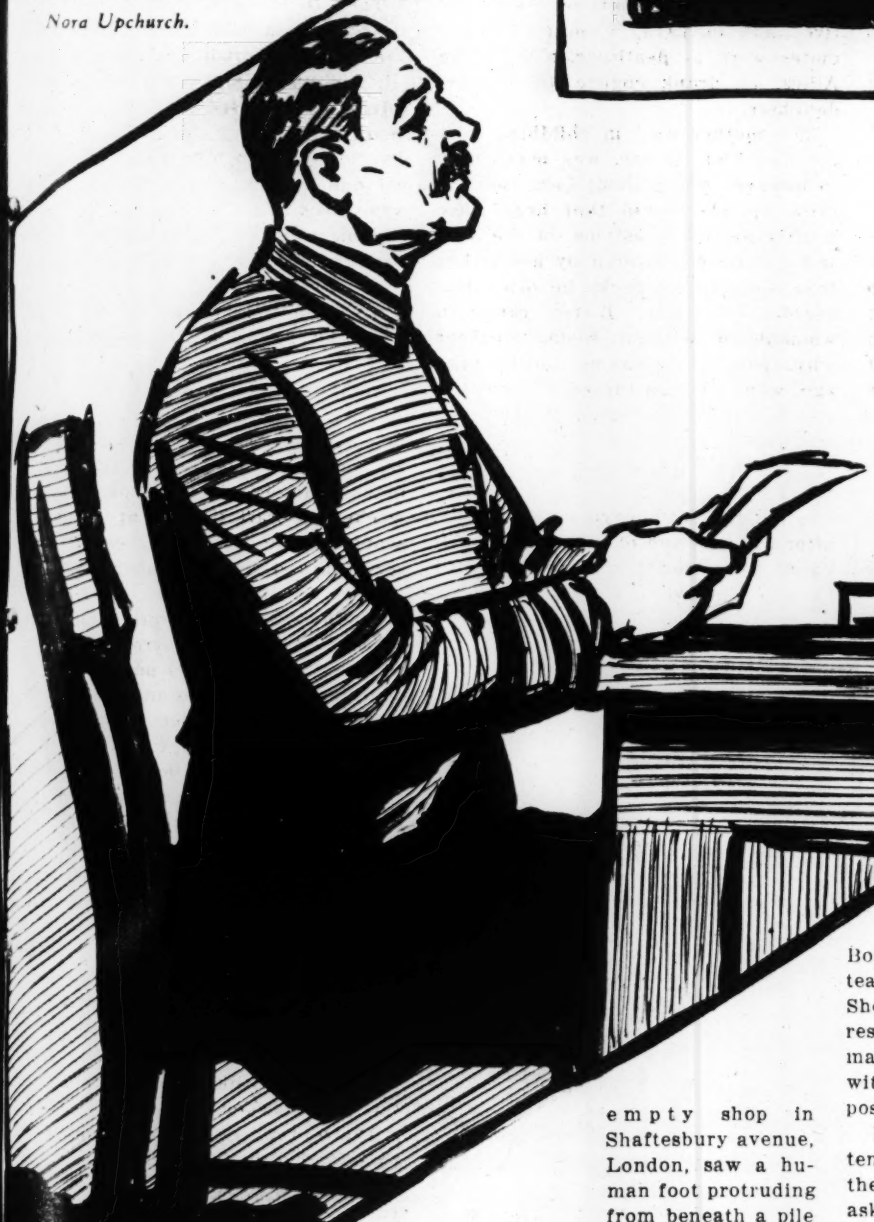

"There are ways in which you can repay me later," was the reply.

THEY went to the girl's room and got her luggage and then to the woman's quarters. There were three men in the place with small bundles ready to sling across their shoulders. REDACTION, he took the extraordinary and daring step of confessing to a murder he did not commit. It was a daring because, usually, when the British justice begin to turn, it is hard to get out from under. When the Director of Prosecutions gives a man to go ahead with a case, it is usual for an accused man to be put in a very ordinary way. On October 2, 1931, Field and another man, going into the premises of an empty shop in Shaftesbury avenue, London, saw a human foot protruding from beneath a pile of old newspapers. They pushed these aside and found the body of Nora Upchurch, a fair-haired attractive-looking young woman about 25 years of age.

She had apparently been strangled to death. A strip of her own dress had been torn away and used to do her to death. A large pocket handkerchief had been stuffed in her mouth. Doctors said she had probably been dead since September 29.

The police at once jumped to the conclusion that robbery had been the motive. The young woman's associates knew that she had left her lodgings with a pocketbook containing about four pounds and some trinkets. The pocketbook was gone and could not be found.

Field himself was at once put upon the griddle by the police. It was obvious why they did it. Field, a sign fixer and electrician, had been doing some work in the premises for the landlords. He had had the keys to the shop. Now he did not have them. He was questioned and re-questioned.

Then the police turned their attention to the life story of the murdered woman. It, too, was just a very ordinary story—the kind that happens in every big city.

She had come to London from up north. She seemed to have plenty of money, though she had no job. She possessed many pairs of shoes, many pretty dresses, and seemed to buy a new hat every week.

People in her lodgings said she was engaged to a sailor in the Royal Navy. She was Lady Bountiful to all sailors, buying them teas and taking them to the movies. She was also a frequenter of night resorts. The police interviewed every man who was ever known to be seen with her, picking up all the facts possible.

Field told the police that on September 29, when he was working in the shop, a stranger came to him and asked for the keys. He presented what Field said he thought was an order from the agents, and Field gave him the keys.

Later the man returned and said he had rented the shop. He was going to open a place for the sale of fancy leather goods. He said he might want some electrical work done and Field asked for the job.

THAT evening they met in Piccadilly Circus and the stranger gave Field two pounds advance pay for the job. Field suggested they go to the shop to decide what should be done, but the stranger said he had left the keys at home. He said he would get them and return later. But he never returned.

Investigating, the police had detained a man. Field partially identified him as the man from whom he got the money. But his story was not believed by the Coroner, who held the inquest, and to whom Field repeated what he had said to the police.

The Coroner told the jury that there was a very serious question before them, and that was whether Field's story was true. If it was, it explained how he came to lose control of the keys, how he came into possession of the two pounds which he had given his wife, and why he was in Piccadilly Circus that night.

The Coroner expressed some doubts about the story. But he warned the jury that in cases of circumstantial evidence the chain must be complete.

There were important missing links. The girl's pocketbook had not been found and the keys were still missing. These constituted a grave weakness in the case.

The jurors remained out just 10 minutes and returned a verdict that the girl had met her death by willful murder at the hands of some person unknown.

All very ordinary. Such murders frequently happen. Men like Field, who had access to the premises where the murder was committed, are frequently suspected. And in the absence of a complete chain of evidence an open verdict is frequently rendered.

But that verdict about "some person unknown" leaves it up to the police to find that person. It means that Scotland Yard goes on digging.

A few days after the Coroner's inquest and verdict, Field was quoted by a London paper as saying:

"I know the police suspect me. I challenge them to charge me."

He said he had given the sleuths every assistance within his power, had told them the whole story of his life from his school days right through six years' service in the Royal Air Force and on down to the present day.

The police did not take up his challenge. He was not arrested. Field tried to lead his ordinary life and get jobs to support himself, wife and child. The police went on sleuthing. The case dropped out of the public mind.

But late in July of the present year the London public sat up and gasped. For it read in its papers that the evening before Field had come to the police station and said:

"I want to give myself up for the murder of Nora Upchurch at the empty shop in Shaftesbury avenue."

The police inspectors said they cautioned him that anything he might say would be taken as evidence against him. He replied, "I want the matter cleared up."

He then made a statement.

Then Field was put on trial for murder. The prosecutor read to the judge and jury the transcript of a "confession" Field had made:

"About 1:30 p. m., September 29, 1931, I obtained from the estate agents the keys to the shop and removed sign boards. I left work about 5 p. m. that day. I went home, had tea, washed and dressed myself and returned to the West End. . . .

"About 10:25 that night I saw her

(Nora Upchurch) in Bear street and she beckoned me from across the road. I went over to her and asked her if she would come over to my place, and she said she would. We walked to the empty shop and I opened the door with the key. We entered and went into a back room. It was pretty dark there, but the light was shining through from the outside."

Here he allegedly described an incident which occurred and continued: "I lost my temper and gripped her around the throat. It appeared to me that, when I was gripping her, she seemed to faint away and fell back out of my hands onto the floor. She did not scream or speak."

"I KNEW that something was seriously wrong and I lost control of myself and cannot remember exactly what happened afterwards. I stayed there for a few minutes and I surmised she was dead before I left her. Before I left the shop, I picked up her handbag and put it in my coat."

Now came surprise number two; the police, though two years had elapsed, had not a shred of evidence against Field outside of this "confession."

Came rapidly surprise number three: Field went into the box and once more told the story he had told in the Coroner's investigation, not the one in the alleged confession. Then followed:

Defense lawyer: Did you see that girl that night?

Field: No.

Defense lawyer: Did you know her personally or had you ever seen her?

Field: No.

Defense lawyer: Did you kill that girl?

Field: No.

Defense lawyer: The finger of suspicion has been pointing at you since that inquest?

Field: Yes.

Defense lawyer: Why did you go and make this untrue statement?

Field: I had no chance at all of proving my innocence. I wanted the whole thing cleared up properly. The whole thing was left in the air. People said, "This man has done it." I could not turn round and say, "I have been proved innocent." I could not do anything or say anything. I wanted to be arrested and put on trial, because by doing so I could have my innocence proved properly.

Justice Swift: It is a peculiar way of proving your innocence to say you are guilty of murder.

Field: It was the only way.

At the conclusion of Field's testimony, Justice Swift asked the prosecution if they thought it possible to convict on the evidence adduced. The reply was in the negative.

Justice Swift then told the jury there was no evidence against Field except his own statement to the police. It was obvious Field was a liar, but they could not find a man guilty of murder because he was a liar. The jury at once found him not guilty.

Now Field could go forward again without a finger of suspicion pointing at him. Future persecution of himself and family would now have to stop. He could assert, with full backing of the court, that he was an innocent man.

The 'CHICAGO of SPAIN' STARTS A CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

A night club in the Barrio Chino of Barcelona—one of the most respectable ones.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

BARCELONA. OT long ago a well-to-do young Englishman named William Lamb and a Spanish pistolero—gunman—walked into a large restaurant in Barcelona and asked to see the manager, explaining that they were salesmen. Walking into the inner office with a gruff "Manos arriba!" (Stick 'em up!) they had proceeded to rifle the cash box when they were interrupted by the arrival of a young cashier who, not having been initiated to the accepted customs of holdup victims, attacked the robbers and drove them off. The cashier was shot dead in the scuffle, and the bandits were captured through the instrumentality of a young scullion, who jumped into their fleeing taxi and attracted a mob by screaming for help.

That was one of Barcelona's first experiences with the senorito pistolero—the gentleman bandit—and it almost ended in a lynching. Young Lamb and his accomplice are now awaiting trial. The old Spanish town has decided that, while it may be forced to put up with an occasional social riot, it has already had its fill of polite crime. Under the energetic leadership of Don Juan Selvas, the quiet young man who is Catalonia's first Governor-General, the city is conducting a vigorous crusade to wipe out the Barrio Chino, an outlaw's paradise which has attracted criminals from all over the world and has brought to Barcelona the doubtful compliment of being dubbed "the Chicago of Spain."

The Barrio Chino, a little triangle of twisting, dark alleys, which fronts on the Mediterranean quay, has 30,000 inhabitants. Its chief industries are crime and vice and it has been unmolested by the police for so many years that its population has grown and flourished. Since the advent of the Republic and woman suffrage, the underworld has even produced a Spanish counterpart to the American "gun moll," which puts quite a strain on the chivalrous police.

The dangers involved in the existence of such a vicious quarter have been somewhat mitigated, however, by the lazy temperament of the Spanish criminal, who likes to take a long vacation after every "job." Were it not for the large number of international crooks who have been attracted by the quarters' immunity from police molestation and the city's easy pickings, the crime wave might never have brought about so strenuous a reaction. But the section had achieved such extensive notoriety that it was responsible for a large tourist trade. Visitors are regularly taken through the Barrio, where guides point out the richest white slavers and the cleverest pistoleros. South American gangsters and Paris apaches had also heard the story and started a mass immigration. And when Buenos Aires decided to dispense with its underworld, a large section transplanted itself to Barcelona. The first attack in the war on crime was cataclysmic. The dope peddlers, counterfeiters, thieves and vice dealers began to think of taking themselves elsewhere—say, to North America. After four days 255 criminal suspects had been arrested on vagrancy charges and the jails were filled to the doors. Governor-General Selvas and his police paused in their campaign. They had somehow forgotten to find a way of disposing of the scum that their new broom swept out of Barcelona's filthy corner. At present undesirables are incarcerated in a remodeled castle in nearby Figueras, but the problem still remains.

BARCELONA, a city slightly smaller than St. Louis proper, is the only Spanish city which has any night life, but it makes up for the rest of the nation by the extravagance and salacity of the entertainment which it provides. At the edge of the Barrio Chino is a short street, the Nou de la Rambla, which houses almost 2000 cabaret dancers and vaudeville artists, women of all ages and types, their sole claim to employment a comely figure. The dance halls are said to be "veritable dens of iniquity," many of them featuring voluptuous fan dances—without fans. Among the cabarets which are especially suspect are several where the dancers are white-sweated young men.

All this is, theoretically at least, at an end. Don Selvas has filled the Barrio resorts with a regiment of stool pigeons, holding that the cheap dance halls are rendezvous of pistoleros and hancha (small time) gangsters, as well as vice dealers. Visitors have been instituted to curb the indecorum of the entertainment, foreign representatives of vice rings have been deported and passersby are stopped on the streets and forced to show their papers.

But vice is not Barcelona's most urgent problem. Being the center of a large industrial area and Spain's chief seaport, the city has been the scene of a long series of labor uprisings, many of them dominated by the extreme anarchist and socialist elements. The National Confederation of Labor, whose members are known as "syndicalists," is a more virulent organization than was the American I. W. W. It has large funds at its disposal and doesn't hesitate to use explosives of all kinds.

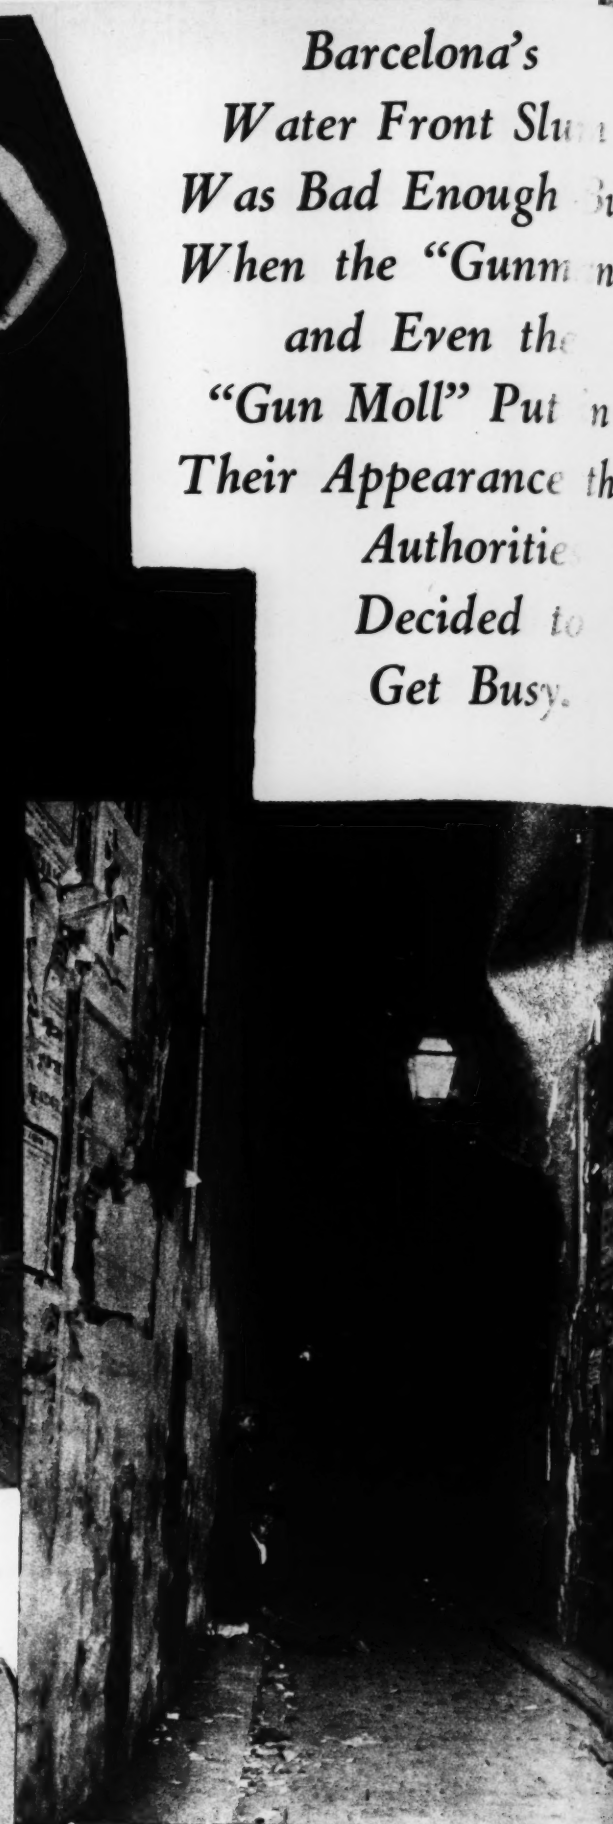

The most recent labor demonstration, which took place last January, was an almost unparalleled instance of organized crime on a generous scale. During the reign of terror some 6000 bombs were found in the city, many of them after they had exploded. Police seized several thousand guns, five miles of fuse cord and approximately two tons of dynamite. Some of the shabbily dressed pistoleros recruted from the Barrio Chino carried as much as 3000 pesetas in bank bills.

There are enough subjects for outbursts to keep the city and the State of Catalonia lively for many years to come. Besides the anti-cap-

Martin Luther's PERSONAL 'ADVENTURES WITH the DEVIL'

Rare Book Found in Texas Describes Them in the Great Reformer's Own Language.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SAN ANTONIO, Texas.

ALMOST coincident with the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, an occasion celebrated by members of the Lutheran Church throughout the world on November 10, there has been discovered here a rare book from the pen of the great reformer setting forth in graphic manner an account of his personal adventures with the Devil. It is the 1566 first folio of the "Tischreden," or "Tabletalk," and is one of the very few copies of this work which escaped inquisitorial flames in Germany when the Protestant Reformation was struggling against heavy odds.

Scarcely less startling than discovery of the book itself so far from its original hiding place are the contents. For the work contains much that was omitted from Hazlitt's translation and speaks of sinister apparitions, other-world specters and all manner of hideous goblins with a seriousness and conviction that in this modern day seems childishly quaint. He tells of horrible monsters, hairy and horny, lying in wait in the dark corners of his room; of the Poltergeisten thundering up and down stairs that were so guarded with chains and irons that no human being could ascend them; of the demon vampire that appeared to a German nobleman and lured him into an unholy marriage, and of encounters innumerable with the Devil, who haunted and harassed him while he was at work translating the Scriptures.

From the yellowed pages famous German characters stride forth again, curiously twisted and embellished, and around all is the musty odor of medieval castles and massive old cathedrals.

It was in the mighty Castle of the Wartburg, renowned in Tannhauser song and story, that Luther had his adventure with the formidable Poltergeisten. In this stronghold, with its heavy walls, deep moats, high towers, making attack by men impossible, Luther sat in his lonely cell one night translating the Bible into the German. Apparently he was lost in a sulphurous dream, for devils with fiery eyes and sharp horns glowered at him from all corners of the room. In the chapter, "Von Poltergeisten," he tells about it as follows:

"As I traveled a way from Worms and was taken prisoner at Eisenach, and conveyed to the Wartburg Castle in Pathmo, I was in a room far removed from everyone, and no one came to me except two noble lads, who daily brought me meat and drink."

"They had purchased a sack of hazelnuts for me, of which I ate daily, and had it locked in a chest. As I went to bed one night, I went into the room, put out the light, and lay down to sleep. Hazelnuts began to strike on the balcony and on the bed, but I did not inquire the cause."

"Just as I went to sleep again, such a noise was heard on the steps as if one were throwing casks, and a thought I knew full well that the stairs were guarded with chains and iron, and no one could come up, still the casks rolled down."

"I sprang up, went to the stair and looked—they were still fastened. Then I spoke:

"Is it you, so be it," and commanded myself to Christ, of whom it is written: Omnia aubeatisti, potestas eires, as Psalm VIII says, and returned to bed."

"There came, some time later, Hans von Berlib's wife from Eisenach, who wished to see me. I removed myself to another room, and she was installed in my chamber. Such a noise was heard that night in her room that she

Mr. Fuchs, the proud father and trainer of the strong man, wasn't home yet from work, but Mrs. Fuchs put her son through his repertoire and enumerated some of the responsibilities of having such a powerful young explosive on the premises.

"Most people call him Baby Samson," she explained, proudly, "but we call him Cyclone, because he wrecks the place whenever we turn him loose. Not long ago he picked up his sister Rosalyn—she's 8—and threw her into the china closet. She had to have a few stitches taken, but Charlie didn't mean any harm by it. He's just full of fun."

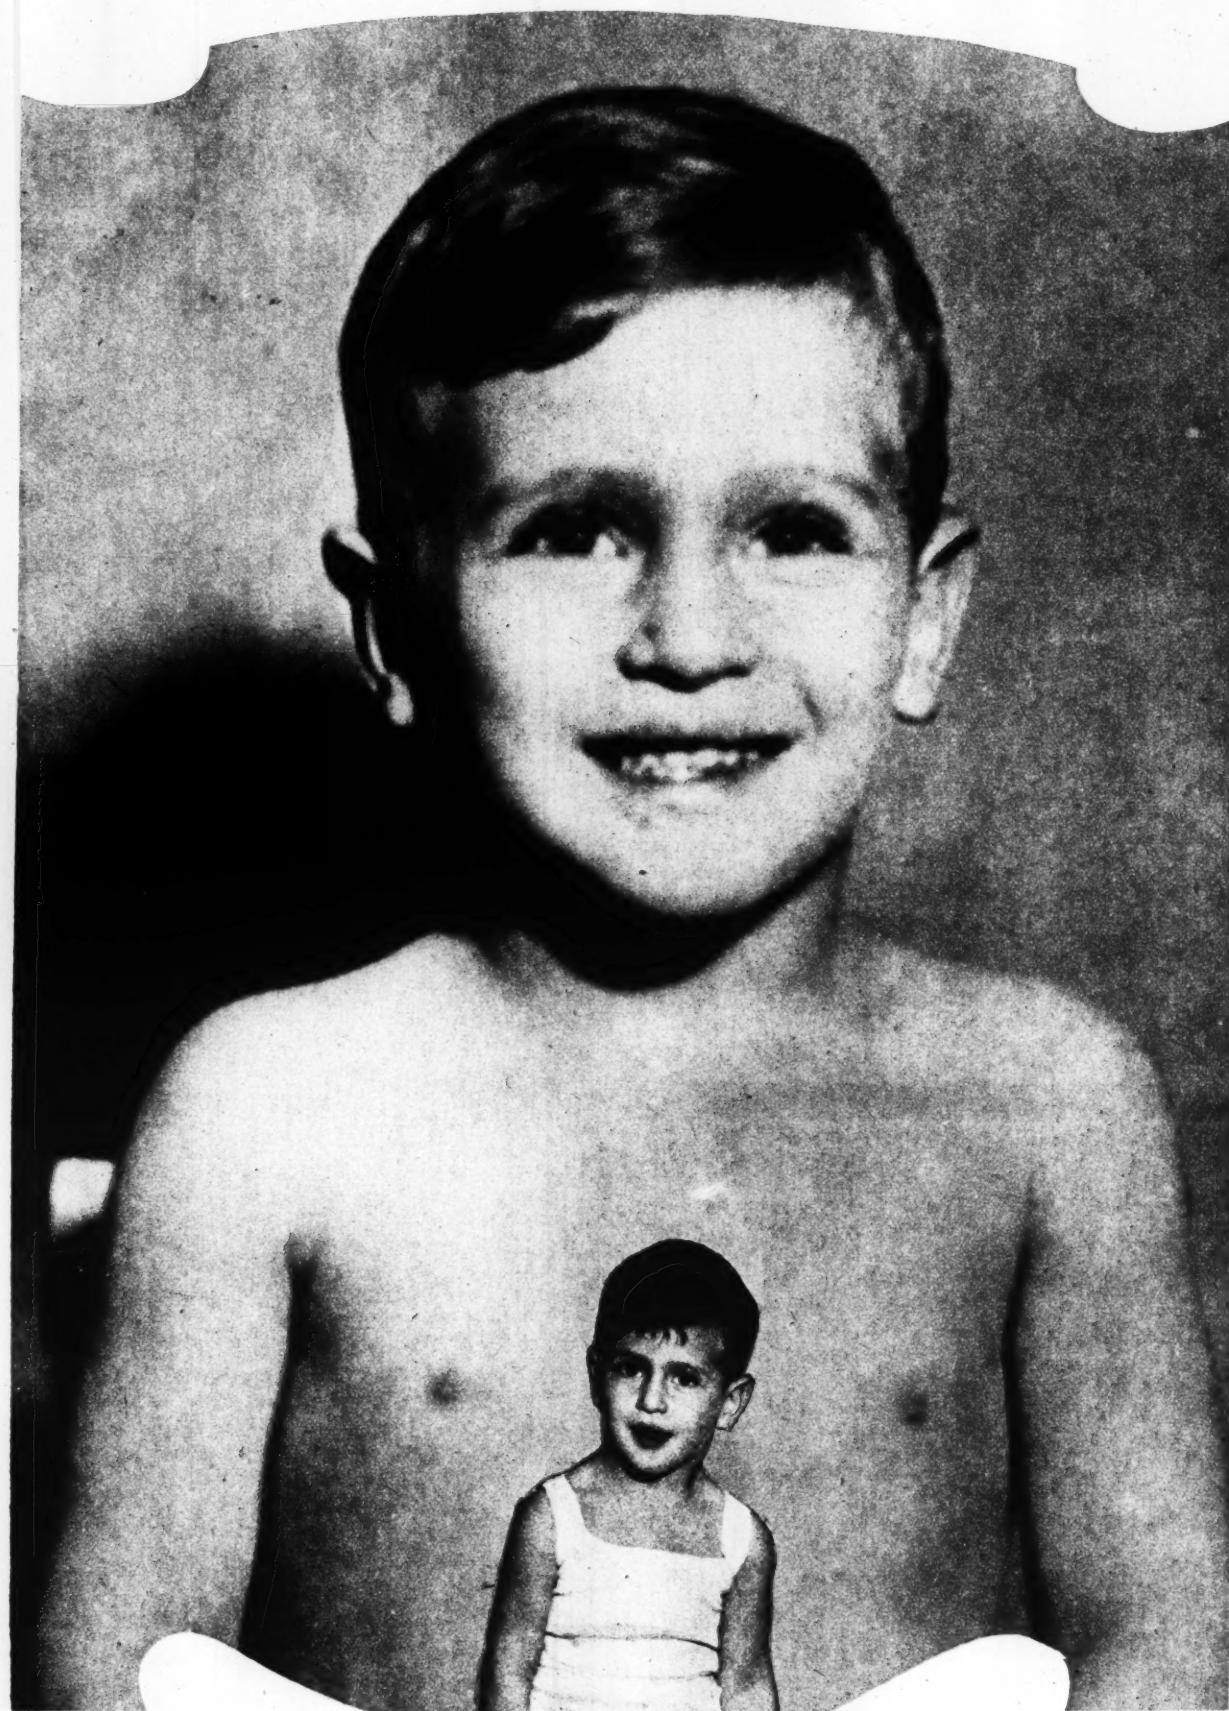

Some of the Bronx mothers, however, whose children play in that neighborhood, are inclined to have another name for what little Charlie is full of. A few of them, in fact, forbid their children to play with him, but on the whole he gets along very well with his playmates, says Mrs. Fuchs.

"Sometimes, though," says Mrs. Fuchs, "he gets a little impatient with them when they won't play with his heavy toys, and then he may start throwing things. He's got real temperament. That's why I think he'll be such a big success on the stage some day. He's been in several news reels and a few times he has given public exhibitions in the Teasdale Gymnasium with his father. You have to expect temperament with a talent like that."

Occasionally the mother of another child in the neighborhood will complain to Mrs. Fuchs against the excessive roughness of her little Charlie. "But usually it's not Charlie's fault," says Mrs. Fuchs. "Why, one day the mother of an 8-year old boy came to me and said that Charlie had socked her boy with his fist. Sounded foolish to me. All I could tell her was that a boy that age certainly ought to be able to protect himself against a mere baby half his age. Charlie never complains when anything happens to him. He takes his knocks like a real little sport. I sometimes think he doesn't even feel the lickings I have to give him once in a while. At least he doesn't act like he feels them."

Charlie was born on October 29, 1929, a fit day for the appearance in the world of a prodigy. On that same day the stock market fell to new lows and a steamship sank on Lake Michigan.

"He's been strong ever since he was born," said Mrs. Fuchs. "He was a nine-pound baby. As soon as he could walk he started wrestling with his big sister. I think he'd make a great football player. I'll never forget the first time he rushed across the room and tackled Rosalyn. A goldfish bowl upset all over them. I guess he laughed for half an hour at that. It was too funny. I wish his father hadn't made such a good job of training him. He's so strong he always wants to break things. I guess it's natural in a healthy youngster that has a lot of strength. What he doesn't do to the house! He dents the walls. He breaks the furniture. We have to try all the chairs before we sit down on them, because if Charlie's been playing with one it's sure to be broken. Once he dug a big hole in the wall with a clothes hanger. Just then the landlord walked in.

"When he plays around the house he moves everything. He pushes the beds all the way from the bedroom into the living room. He can lift that sideboard—see how big it is?—and the dining table. I have to watch him when there are dishes on the table, because he'll lift the table and the dishes will fall off on the floor."

To prove his mother's assertion Charlie consented to a demonstration.

He stood with his hands on the edge of the heavy dining room table. With only a slight effort he heaved the table was lifted inches from the floor.

"We should live in a barn," smiles Mrs. Fuchs. "Then Charlie could run wild and we wouldn't have to worry about him all the time."

At this moment there were footsteps outside and Charlie ran to the door, crying, "That's my daddy! Now I'll show you something."

"They're crazy about each other," explained Mrs. Fuchs. "He'll do anything for his father."

No sooner had the father, who is tall, dark and weighs 200 pounds, entered the room than he was swinging Charlie by the legs, swinging Charlie in loops and circles.

"Just to get him warmed up," he explained, lifting Charlie high over his head as the boy held his feet perfectly rigid.

"He's got legs like bars of iron," said the father. "And he's not afraid of anything."

Then Charlie clambered into his gym trunks and went through a series of violent somersaults that threatened any moment to break the bed on which he was bouncing. Next he clambered under the bed and dragged out his weight-lifting equipment. "Make up a 75-pound barbell," his father ordered.

With the barbell completed, Charlie braced his feet firmly on the floor, stuck out his tongue and heaved. The muscles of his arms and legs bulged. The weight left the floor and rose as high as Charlie's waist.

"He can lift it above his head," explained the father, "but I don't like him to do that too often."

Four times the child lifted the weight waist high before turning to other feats of strength. Some of the other things he did were to squat a dozen times with a 50-pound weight on his back—a leg-strengthening exercise; support a person weighing 149 pounds on his back while he braced his legs; do a forearm curl with a 25-pound barbell, and a series of light exercises with a pair of 12-pound dumbbells. When he was tired of playing with the dumbbells he let them drop to the floor, perhaps the kind of gesture to which the neighbors downstairs had formerly objected.

Mr. Fuchs, himself an amateur wrestler of more than ordinary ability, always regretted that he had become an electrician instead of a professional athlete, and when his son was born he determined to train him to become the strongest man in the world.

"From six to nine months," said Mr. Fuchs, explaining his methods of training his son, "all I had him do was light calisthenics. Then, until he was 14 months old he did nothing. I just let him grow and develop. From 14 months until 2 years, he worked with the light weights. Then for a whole year he did absolutely nothing."

"They're crazy about each other," explained Mrs. Fuchs. "He'll do anything for his father."

CAROLE LOMBARD

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in her proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

This week's star is Carole Lombard. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by her in these roles in the following movies:

Judith Denning in "White Woman", Abby Fane in "Brief Moment," and Connie in "No Man of Her Own."

Next week: James Cagney.

MICE STRO—(Singing.)
You've heard wolves howl, you've heard dogs bark,
You've heard the rooster's crow;
You've heard birds sing, you've heard frogs croak.

Now hear the great Mice Stro.

(When he has finished he marches on and next we see him bowing low in front of the home of Harry Hoarder.)

MICE STRO—Greetings, gentlemen. I am Mice Stro, the great musician. I come to teach you how to sing.

HARRY HOARDER—We're too busy to sing.

MICE STRO—Nonsense. Let me hear you sing "do." (He raises his baton and sings "do.") There is a dead silence. Splendid. It probably was better than it would have been if you had tried. Now let me show you really how to sing. (He starts to sing. Hilda Hoarder listens for a while, then rushes to the phone and calls up Mrs. Siesta Opossum.)

HILDA HOARDER—Hello, Siesta. Listen! There is a fellow singing in front of our house. He has the sweetest voice and sings the prettiest songs you ever heard. (Meanwhile Harry Hoarder becomes suspicious of Mice Stro and sends Happy for the police.)

HAPPY HOARDER—(Running.) Pop said it might be good music, but he'd like it better if they put that bird in a cage.

where an automobile waited. It took them, in a three-hour ride, to a hotel in West Forty-fifth street, New York. Police have checked and found that she spent one night in the hotel, a notorious hangout.

Next morning Dietze received her final instructions. She was to take the Hudson-Manhattan tube and train to Newark and meet a man at the Robert Treat Hotel.

HERE coincidence once more, stepped in. The tube officials refused to permit the Dietze to ride and Dietze arrived for her appointment via the Pennsylvania Railroad, an hour late. The clerk at the hotel said her man had become angry and introduced her to a man who waited for two hours and decided to take a walk.

talist sentiment which aroused the workers last winter, there are numerous quarrels between the various labor sections, likely to materialize at any time. Barcelona was the center of the Catalan separatist movement and of the movement for regional autonomy.

Of course, the city is not nearly so violent in its outer appearance as its recent history would indicate. Its boulevards are thronged with crowds of leisurely evening strollers. The inhabitants of the Barrio Chino emerge from their alleys, which are lined with story buildings, to bask in the sunshine on El Paralelo, an avenue which is park-like and full of stalls and sunny cafes. The world city is extremely handsome and picturesque, dating back to pre-Christian days of the Phoenician colonists.

clean up the filth that has been allowed to accumulate in the crannies through so many years will, of course, be no task. But the newly-discovered charm of respectability has to have taken hold vigorously and the Governor-General is optimistic.

You can tell them in the United States," he says, "that we are going to make Barcelona a respectable and safe place for tourists." One wonders whether safety and decorum will ever come as powerful an attraction as the Barrio Chino.

those who care to theorize may say that the submerged Pacific continent and the risen South American continent mutually irritate each other in some manner, originating tidal waves.

On August 13, 1868, a submarine displacement off the coast of Africa, South America, started a wave that reached Hawaii and was clocked at a speed of 357 miles an hour.

In 1855 a tidal wave reached Hawaii and threw the United States battleship Maryland, a heavy iron ship, on her beam ends. Water poured in her upper hull, and the Maryland was in the harbor at the time; not out at sea.

In 1856 the United States Navy dispatched the heavy mine sweeper Conestoga to Hawaii from San Francisco. The vessel was never again heard from, and the battle fleet grew out of a scouting line 2100 miles from flank to flank, searching for her.

A few hundred miles from Hawaii, an area of ashes and murky water was found, and the supposition was that the Conestoga was near a gigantic submarine explosion, perhaps right over it, and foundered in the tidal wave and ashes.

Much of the physical phenomena in the Pacific seems to support a theory, held by many reputable scientists, that the moon's mass departed here when the world was in a quasi-molten state, but that the solidification began at once, with the interior gases throwing out a light crust, which, being thinner than the other continents, but floating perhaps in the same manner as the others, on the molten, gaseous core of the world.

Release of gases from beneath

is thought to have caused the Pacific continent gradually to subside, receiving water which, when the Pacific continent was up, lay over much of the world. It may still be settling slowly, for it is significant that in the Pacific area the islands that appear to be continental islands are the ones that are subsiding, while the volcanic islands are rising.

Pacific Ocean soundings, combined with the report of the Imperial Japanese Navy concerning the subsiding of the Island of Yap, a cable station in the Japanese mandated Caroline Islands, add support to those who theorize about a once vast mid-Pacific continent. For instance, just as the greatest deep to the eastward is found off the coast of South America, so the greatest deep to the westward is found just off the Japanese coast.

THE Tuscarora Deep, named after the American ship which discovered it, parallels the Japanese trend and reaches downward more than five miles, just as the southerly deep, found by the survey ship Penguin, reaches 30,930 feet to the south of the Kermadec Islands and 300 miles northeast from the East Cape of New Zealand, which might mark a southerly boundary of a sunken continent.

Since it is now known that the earth is just a great magnet, it seems sensible, too, to suppose that these processes were aided by the peculiar distribution of materials in a magnet, and that, according to the laws of magnetism in a magnetic body, the earth's heavy metals would, during the cooling process, gravitate to the northward, while the metalloids such as phosphorus, sulphur and carbon would tend to move to the south. The pressures applied with cooling and contraction would naturally heat the metalloids, form gases and force the gases eventually to ignite in places, and find vents in the form of volcanoes. The light pumice and the basalts of the Pacific Island volcanoes add still further to the evidence of those who hold this theory. These facts, if they are facts, would also account for the sinking of a vast continent, and the rising of pillars and peaks from the sunken mass, as molten stuff was pushed out through the volcanic stacks until it reached the surface to form the very volcanic islands which constitute many of the Pacific land spots.

Yet some of the higher places of the lost continent would still barely project above water, just as Mount McKinley and Mount Whitney probably would if a continental submersion occurred. Here we have the case of the Island of Yap, not yet sunk, but going down with her continent. Yap lies in the Caroline group, between the equator and the eleventh north parallel, some 2300 miles from the Japanese coast, in the line of island peaks which, on a lost continent, would have been comparable, perhaps, to the Rockies.

How far the continent islands can sink, no one knows. When a volcanic island starts to lose its volcanic energy, it, too, starts downward. Perhaps the whole Pacific floor is sinking. Sinking coral on continental peaks points that way. Yet the floor may be going down in undulations, age-long in their movements. If so, the pressures created below are at least partially savages. Real engineering was applied, and only an imperial government, with good control over the volcanic stack; the submarine explosions and eruptions which cause our tidal waves may go on for many centuries to come. Since the phenomena are apparently growing less violent, the process may be arriving at a point of comparative stability, and may be about finished.

On Yap, the Japanese have found great high roads, better built than the Appian Way, with huge stone blocks, and stone council houses, with lofty, carved pillars and high gables. These could not have been built by untutored

The Gilberts, along with the inner Ladrone, Carolines and Marshall, Ellice and the Austral group, have lost their volcanic energy and are now perceptibly subsiding. The Solomons, however, show a tendency to rise.

In the Gilberts appear great dry-stone monuments and massive walls, with individual stones weighing from two to 20 tons, which could be handled only with engineering knowledge and tens of thousands of laborers; there are probably not tens of thousands left in the whole Pacific island area.

THE logs of the Pacific navigators of the seventeenth century contain many allusions to Pacific land masses of large extent, now no longer visible. Even today, the Hawaiians still have a name for a body of land which is supposed to have existed between Hawaii and New Zealand. In fact, they say, it filled up the space entirely, with Hawaii on one end and New Zealand on the other.

The name is Ka-houpo-o-Kane, and means "The solar-plexus of Kane."

thought at least 1000 devils were there.

"But that is the best way to drive away the devil; when one calls on Christ and holds the Evil One in contempt, he cannot bear it. One must say, 'Are you Christ or man, so be it.' This I said also at Eisenach."

Luther's discourse on devils continues, with comment on the habits and hiding places of these creatures. "Many devils are in woods, in waters, in wildernesses and in dark pool places, ready to hurt and prejudice people," he wrote. "Some are also in the thick, black clouds, which cause hail, lightnings and thunderings, and poison the air, the pastures and grounds."

"WHEN these things happen, then the philosophers and physicians say it is natural, ascribing it to the planets, and showing I know not what reasons for such misfortunes and plagues as ensue.

"The devil vexes and harasses the workmen in the mines. He makes them think they have found fine new veins of silver, which when they have labored and labored, turn out to be mere illusions. Even in open day, on the surface of the earth, he causes people to think they see a treasure before them, which vanishes when they would pick it up. At times, treasure really is found, but this is by the special grace of God. I never had any success in the mines, but such was God's will, and I am content."

More dicta: "The Emperor Frederic, father of Maximilian, invited a necro-mancer to dine with him, and by his knowledge of magic, turned his guest's hands into griffin's claws. He then wanted him to eat, but the man, ashamed, hid his claws under the table.

"He took his revenge, however, for the jest played upon him. He caused it to seem that a loud altercation was going on in the courtyard, and when the Emperor put his head out of the window to see what was the matter, he, by his art, clapped on him a pair of huge stag's horns, so that the Emperor could not get his head into the room again until he had cured the necromancer of his disfigurement."

"I am delighted," said Luther, "when one devil plagues the other. They are not all, however, of equal power."

"There was at Neuburg a magician named Wilderer, who, one day, swallowed a countryman, with his ox and cart. A few hours afterward, man, horse and cart were all found in a slough, some miles off."

"I have heard, too, of a seeming monk, who asked a wagoner that was taking some hay to market, how much he would charge to let him eat his fill of hay. The man said, a kreutzer, whereupon the monk set to work, and had nearly devoured the whole load, when the wagoner drove him off."

Luther discoursed at length concerning witchcraft and charms. He said that his mother had had to undergo infinite annoyance from one of her neighbors, who was a witch, and whom she was fain to conciliate with all sorts of attentions; for this witch could throw a charm upon children, making them cry themselves to death. "A pastor having punished her for some knavery," he wrote, "she cast a spell upon him by means of some earth, upon which he had walked and which she bewitched. The poor man hereupon fell sick of a malady which no remedy could remove, and shortly after, died."

This old sixteenth century tome is the property of Ernst Raba, a San Antonio photographer. Among other effects, it was willed to him by his brother-in-law, who brought it from Germany several years ago. How and when the brother-in-law came into possession of it Ernst did not learn. It is believed that there are but few copies still in existence, and it is a cause for marvel that there are any, for the manuscript narrowly escaped burning long before it was printed in 1566.

HAVING refused to retract his utterances, which were deemed heretical, Luther was brought under the fire of Charles V at the Diet of Worms in 1521 and an order was issued for the burning of all his books. He was kidnapped by his friends and, at the instigation of the Elector of Saxony, was hidden in the Wartburg. There he translated the Scriptures and repulsed the devil with an inkwell. And there fell from his lips the utterances that were set down in the Tischreden.

During and after the Reformation that followed, more than 80,000 of Luther's books were burned and an edict was promulgated, decreeing death to anyone keeping a copy. Luther died in 1546, but 20 years later his Tischreden found its way to the printers and was published at Eisenach under the editorial care of John Aurifaber. It is to this edition that Raba's copy belongs. The title page shows clearly: "Bedruckt zu Eisleben bey Urban Gaubisch. . . . 1566."

The Strange Case of an 18-Year-Old Girl Without a Country

where an automobile waited. It took them, in a three-hour ride, to a hotel in West Forty-fifth street, New York. Police here checked and found that she spent the night in the hotel, a notorious taint.

Next morning Dietze received her final instructions. She was to take the Hudson-Manhattan tube train to Newark and meet a man at the Robert Treat Hotel.

HERE coincidence once more stepped in. The tube officials refused to permit the how to ride and Dietze arrived for her appointment via the Pennsylvania Railroad, an hour late. The clerk at the hotel said the man had become angry and gone 10 minutes ago. She waited for two hours and decided to take a walk.

Her friends, friendly and almost sentimental, the girl, born of a racial war, was in Africa and visited across thousands of leagues to Newark, New Jersey, like a bale of cotton, wandered along Broad street. The Chow, bursting with energy, snapped the leash and leaped joyfully over the iron fence to gambol on the grass of Military Park. Not satisfied with this, he dashed across the park, threaded the street on the other side and disappeared in the maze of pedestrians homeward bound from store and office in New York. Dietze gave chase and searched anxiously in the row of shops.

The Chow had made friends with a florist and there was much happy talk over the reunion. Dietze told the florist her story and a young man named Harry took deep interest. Harry knew just the person who could help her. He invited her to dinner and introduced her to a barber. The barber, in turn, knew just the place where a girl ought to live in a strange town, a boarding house run by a woman friend of his who was a mother to all the girl boarders. He told her never to mind about the rent, that all that could be fixed up after he had located her friends over in New York.

In the evenings after returning from this search, the persistent barber called on her regularly. His attempts at love-making were seriously hampered by the dog, which bristled and showed its teeth at the slightest move. But luck favored the barber. In three weeks the dog became sick and was taken to a veterinary on advice of the solicitous admirer.

THIS obstacle removed, the barber had a clear field. On a promise of marriage, according to the girl, he seduced her. Appalled at what she had permitted to occur, the girl immediately sought out the parish priest, who took her to police headquarters. The barber was picked up in a drug store as he was trying to call the girl. Police learned that he had deserted his wife and child. He was booked on the girl's charges.

Acting Police Chief Sebald and Detectives Lynch and Fox questioned Dietze at great length. They traced her movements from the Manhattan Hotel to the Robert Treat to the florist shop to the boarding house, but when they tried to dig past Montauk Point, or Atlantic City, whichever it was, they found themselves up against a blank wall. One day they thought they had punctured the balloon when they found several copies of the National Geographic magazine in the girl's room. But not one issue contained anything about Africa!

And a few days later a well-dressed man showed up at Ellis Island saying he had read about the girl and wanted to marry her. The police never have decided who this fellow was. He just dropped out of the picture.

Newark's strong men in blue meanwhile are "keeping an eye on the kid" and hoping she is the real McCoy and not some prankster. It is not wise to suggest the latter around Newark police headquarters.

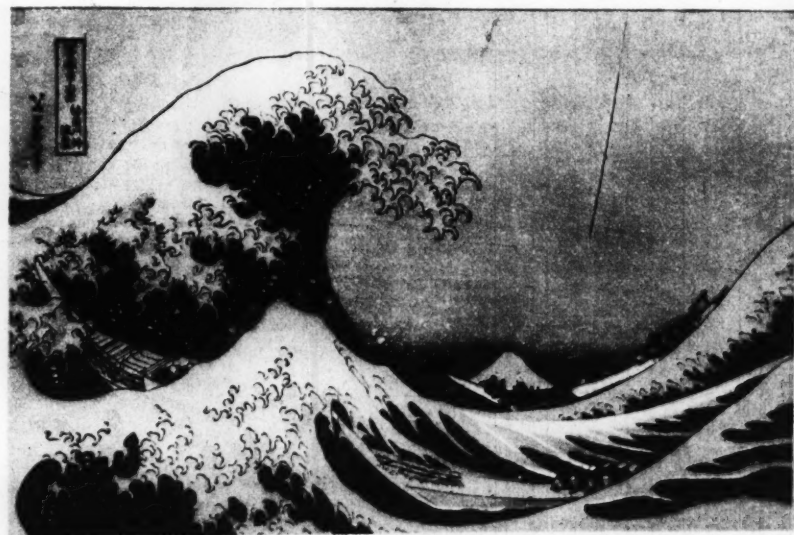

JAPANESE COLOR PRINTS

THE exhibit of Japanese Color Prints is the forty-ninth in a series of showings being featured weekly at the City Art Museum in Forest Park. This exhibit occupies the alcove and stairs at the right and rear of the great entrance hall. Each display in this "Gallery of the Week" presentation will be reproduced in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, with an accompanying description of the exhibit by museum authorities.

One of the most delightful approaches to Oriental art is afforded by the charming color patterns and rhythmic lines of Japanese prints. These prints originated in the early seventeenth century to fill a demand for low-priced pictures of actors, wrestlers, the beauties of the Yoshiwara, famous scenes and other popular subjects, all embraced under the more or less reproachful term Ukiyo-e or "Pictures of the fleeting world." Such subjects, regarded as low and vulgar by the cultured Japanese, were spurned by the traditional schools of art which confined themselves almost wholly to lofty poetic and religious themes. But the common people were rising in wealth and power and the plebeian genre artists who made these prints maintained a thriving business for nearly three hundred years.

In the southwest alcove gallery is shown an interesting group of Japanese prints embracing both figure subjects and landscapes. The earliest artist represented is Toyonobu (1711-85) whose print "Woman with Samisen" (a musical instrument) is of elongated form designed to hang upon the wooden pillar of a Japanese house. The lines possess a sweeping, calligraphic quality and the color scheme, limited to perhaps four pigments, is delicately patterned. "Young Man Disguised as a Komuso" (Buddhist monk) by Koriusu (1740-82) is more elaborately colored and achieves likewise charming grace in its drawing. A decoratively composed print by Shunko (1760-87) represents the actor Segawa Kikunojo in the role of a bride, women not being permitted upon the contemporary Japanese stage. Other actor prints are by Toyokuni (1769-1825) and by Sharaku (1760-99?) who was unexcelled in the power of his satirical characterizations. In the early part of the nineteenth century the art of designing figure prints entered upon a period of decadence, but a new phase of the art, that of representing landscape, came into prominence. Hokusai (1760-1849) and Hiroshige (1797-1858) stand pre-eminent among the landscape designers. Outstanding among Hokusai's works was a striking series of "Thirty-six views of Fuji" from which three subjects are shown, including "The Great Wave," Great Wave, Kanagawa." Hiroshige delighted in broad decorative panoramas such as the great triptychs of "Mountain, Snow and River on the Kiso Road," and "Naruto Whirlpool, Awa." He also rendered atmospheric effects with great delicacy and charm, as in "Rain at Shono," and "Snow at Kameyama."

Stop the pain with "Ben-Gay"—it penetrates deeper, stays in longer!

When you are in pain, seconds count. "Ben-Gay" penetrates through skin, flesh, muscles, directly to the spot of the pain and stays in until the pain disappears. That's why "Ben-Gay" has a faster hypersensitizing (pain relieving) action than its many imitators. If you want sure, fast relief, put the hypersensitizing and antipruritic action of "Ben-Gay" to work—rub it on generously and know quick relief. Be sure to look for the red "Ben-Gay" on the cover.

TWO years ago, when Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. followed Peter Arno, the New York artist, around Reno with a revolver which later proved to be unloaded, the cartoonist appealed to the local chief of police, J. M. Kirkley, for protection, insisting that the journalist meant to do him some bodily injury. The officer wasn't particularly impressed with the danger and told Arno that if anyone was molesting him he should "go punch him in the jaw."

Having finished the business that brought him to Reno, Arno cleared for points east, with no very marked amiability towards the rough justice of Nevada. But before departing he denied having kissed Vanderbilt's wife, deplored what he considered the millionaire journalist's "mania for publicity" and, when he was threatened with fistic reprisals, said he was going into training with Jackie Coogan as sparring partner.

Perhaps it was some lingering memory of the police chief's advice that inspired Peter Arno's recent difficulty which took place in Hollywood's reputedly exclusive Embassy Club. At any rate, the artist did not call in the gendarmes when he decided to resent certain alleged familiarities of Drexel Biddle Steel, the Philadelphia aristocrat who had known Arno when they were students at Phillips-Andover Academy in Massachusetts.

So far as the altercation itself is concerned, there are as many versions as there were witnesses and participants. Peter Arno seems to have been dining with Sallie O'Neil, the movie actress, when Drexel Steel came in with Miss Claire Delmar and Gordon Butler, his business manager. Butler is a former football player.

Steel was introducing his friends to Arno and Miss O'Neil when the amenities were disturbed by the cartoonist's first disconcerting outburst of the evening.

"Why do you boast about knowing me?" he asked Steel, implying at the same time that the Philadelphia was claiming "buddyship" through the length and breadth of Hollywood salons.

Steel had not realized that he was bearding a lion. He murmured something about, "Why does anyone boast about knowing anybody?" He was pretty well staggered by the tone of the question—and still thinks Arno "a great artist and a fine fellow."

There was more conversation on this order, all very bewildering, apparently, to everyone except Peter Arno. After a while the two parties withdrew to separate tables. Miss O'Neil, fearing that her escort was not yet completely placated, urged him to play the piano with the orchestra, hoping thus to divert him. Unfortunately Steel took advantage of Arno's preoccupation with the orchestra to step over to Miss O'Neil's table and apologize for his part in the recent disagreement.

"That's all right," she replied laughingly. "It's all just good, clean fun, you know."

Seeing them engaged in conversation, Arno left the piano and rushed back to his table. It was quite apparent to all who watched him that he resented the general fact of Drexel Steel's existence and all the contributory facts which led him to be just where he was at that time.

"What do you mean by talking to her?" he demanded.

Steel did not trouble to reply. He sauntered casually back to his table, his hands in his pockets. Arno followed him, or as the cartoonist later claimed, dragged him back by his coat lapel. He was about to administer what pugilists call a "hay-maker," when Butler interfered, feeling, it seems, that the conversation had passed from the jurisdiction of Emily Post to that of the Marquis of Queensberry. Not wishing to see his companion struck down with his hands in his pockets, he anticipated Arno's blow by a well-placed hook to the artist's chin. The latter rose in the air and came down sliding rapidly along the polished floor.

Instantly there was screaming pandemonium. The drummer rolled out a long salute on the bass drum. Waiters, attendants and guests dashed to the fray. Someone—a reporter said it was Sallie O'Neil—brandished a chair, but not much additional damage seems to have been done to anything save the Embassy's rigid decorum. The chair was later found a mass of gilded splinters.

MISS O'NEIL indignantly rejects the suggestion that it was she who brought in the uplifted chair. She admits that she was excited and that she had the temerity to step between the combatants, the lightest of whom (Arno) weighs more than 185 pounds.

"It would have been impossible for me to have used a chair on Mr. Steel as reports said," she explained afterwards. "Imagine me, five feet one and weighing 90 pounds, bringing down a chair on the head of a man over six feet in height. I'd have had to stand on two tables to do that."

Anyhow, the combatants and their seconds took themselves home as soon as possible.

Reporters found Mr. Arno garbed in silk pajamas, reading telegrams in bed. He was kind enough to offer to continue the duel with fists, folla, broadswords, horse pistols or eggs. And he gave this version of the disagreement:

"George Drexel Biddle Steel, as we call him around New York, is not unknown to me. However, he is not and never has been a friend of mine. So when I heard he had been going around Hollywood telling people he was a very good friend of mine and that we were going to back a night club, it burned me up. "At the Embassy Club this morning, he came over to my table and I told him to cut out that over and saw him at my table chatter about being a pal of mine. He went back to his table. A few minutes after that, while I was playing the piano, I looked and I told him to cut out that over and saw him at my table

talking to my guest, Miss Sallie O'Neil. "I walked to the table, grabbed him by the lapel of his coat and pushed him right back to his own

table. Then I got ready to pop him. Just then someone hit me. "They tell me it was Butler—I didn't know Drexel had a butler. Steel, while this was going on, raised a chair and made for me. Miss O'Neil rushed to my rescue and shoed Drexel away. Then waiters and what not rushed in and the fight, if any, was over. Steel yourself!"

PETER ARNO EXPLAINS WHY HE TOOK IT ON the CHIN

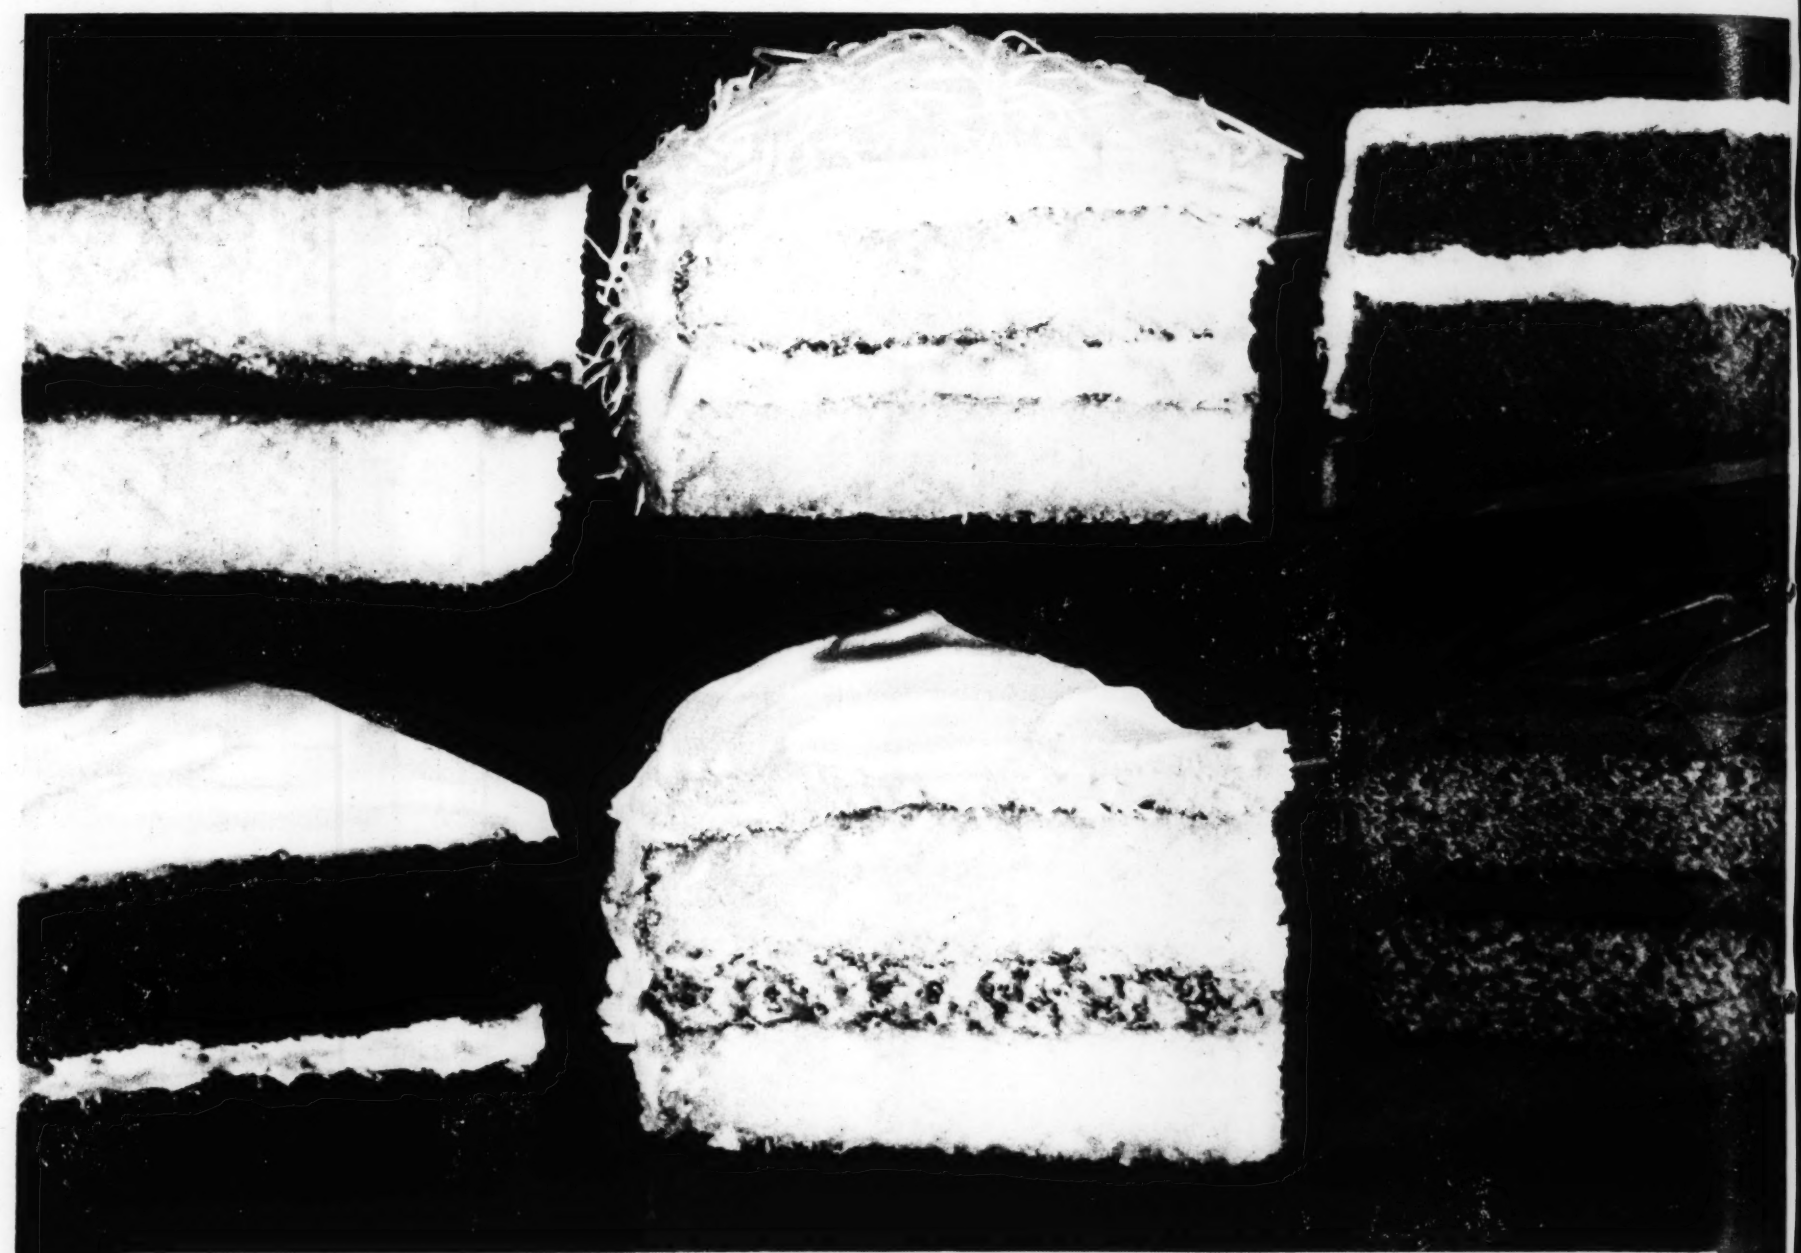

In His Hollywood Altercation With Drexel Biddle Steel and the Later's Manager.

"That is, it was over temporarily. For the next time I see George Drexel Steel I'm going to give him something he'll never forget."

"Also, I want to make it clear that I never would have been knocked down had I not been caught off balance."

He then produced a paper which appeared shortly after the caption "Badly hurt."

SEE! • TOUCH! • TASTE!

Calumet's "Velvety Crumb"

BEAUTIFUL as this photograph is—after all, it's only a photograph. You cannot fully appreciate the lovely, velvety quality of Calumet cake until you see it with your own eyes—in a cake from your own oven—one that you can touch and taste, as well as see!

So make a Calumet cake yourself—using the thrifty Calumet proportion (only one level teaspoon of Calumet Baking Powder to a cup of sifted flour in most recipes).

Cut a slice of that Calumet cake. Feel a bit between your finger and thumb. Soft as velvet!... Then touch the cut surface. See how it springs back, tenderly moist and elastic... Now taste it. Velvet-fine, velvet-smooth!

Such melting delicacy of texture is made possible by Calumet's protective Double-Action. One action begins in the mixing bowl—but the second is held in reserve to act in the oven-heat. And all through the baking, the tiny bubbles rise, creating cake as marvelously light and delicate as a cloud!

Simple or elaborate, light or dark, one-egg or five-egg... every Calumet cake you make has this same lovely "velvety crumb."

You can see it in the six cakes pictured here—America's six favorites. Chocolate Layer Cake, Coconut Layer, Creole Fudge Cake, Devil's Food, Lady Baltimore Cake, and Spice Cake with Mocha Frosting.

Get a can of Calumet... a product of General Foods... and try this Calumet recipe for Lady Baltimore Cake. It's one of the "key" recipes in the remarkable new baking book described at the right.

LADY BALTIMORE CAKE

(3 egg whites)
3 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
3 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add flour, alternately with liquid, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add flavoring; fold in egg whites. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 20 minutes. Put layers together with boiled frosting to which chopped fruits and nuts have been added. Spread plain boiled frosting on top and sides of cake. (All measurements are level.)

Get this big, fascinating new 52-page
1933 Lionel Model Railroad Planning
Book . . . FREE at your dealer's

If you want to enjoy the most fascinating hobby any father and son can have, get this big, new gorgeously illustrated 52-page Lionel Model Railroad Planning Book. It tells you (1) how to plan and lay out a miniature railroad system and (2) what to get to make it true to life down to the very last detail.

No other book can give you what this new 1933 Lionel Model Railroad Planning Book does. It offers you a dozen different track layout combinations that you can build; it shows you all the very latest switches, signal towers, bridges, tunnels, semaphore systems—in fact everything you need to make a real model railroad operating system. It shows how you can start with a few feet of single track, a locomotive and several cars and then gradually add to your equipment until you have a great four-track system with batteries of powerful locomotives hauling great strings of freight cars, coal cars, gondolas and cabooses. There is even a wrecking train with special derrick and flood-light cars. Pullmans, Observation and Mail Cars are described and pictured in full colors; as are also faithful models of many famous locomotives and crack passenger trains such as the Twentieth Century Limited, the Pennsylvania Limited, the Blue Comet, the Olympian and others.

"THE CHUGGER"

A startlingly realistic new Lionel invention

You will be fascinated and thrilled to listen to the sound of your new Lionel locomotive when it goes "Chug . . . Chug . . . Chug . . ." as your Lionel Train gets under way, speeding up as the train speeds up, just like a real locomotive. This new and realistic sound device has been developed by Lionel engineers only after long years of patient experiment. It is now installed in Lionel "O" Gauge Locomotive No. 260E and all Lionel Standard Gauge Locomotives except No. 390E. Only Lionel Trains have it—no others. One thing more—and important. This year all Lionel Locomotives, regardless of price or type, are also equipped with "Remote Control," so that you can now have the thrill of sitting at the controls of your Lionel Railroad System at any distance from your trains and making them stop, start or reverse, just as you wish, without touching them. No wonder more Lionel Trains are sold than all other makes combined!

Tune in on Lionel's new and thrilling series of "True Railroad Adventures." Every Wednesday at 4:00 P. M., and Sunday at 3:00 P. M., C. S. T., over the NBC-WJZ National Broadcasting Network starting November 5th. Look in your newspaper under the title "True Railroad Adventures" for the name of your local station carrying this fascinating series.

Lionel Electric Trains can be bought for as little as $7.95 . . . Lionel-Ives Electric Trains with Transformer-Station from $5.75 . . . Lionel-Ives Mechanicals (for junior) as low as $1.50. (Prices subject to change.)

Mother to the Rescue!

THE TRUE STORY
OF A YOUNG BRIDE
WITH THE WASHDAY BLUES
WHO FOUND HER MOTHER
MORE UP-TO-DATE THAN HERSELF!

Research Chemists Develop Astounding New Granulated Soap

Cuts Washing Time 25% to 40%—Ends Washboard Scrubbing and Boiling. Washes Clothes 4 to 5 Shades Whiter, in Hard or Soft Water, Than Old-Style Granulated, Bar or Flake Soaps . . . Yet Can't Fade Colors, Harm Fabrics or Hurt Hands

HERE is a new scientific soap development that has revolutionized washdays in more than a million homes. A creation so amazing that women everywhere are asking—"Will the wonders of science never cease?"

An utterly new-type laundry soap. A soap that multiplies itself 500 times in suds. A still faster-washing, still whiter-washing soap that's utterly safe for colors, fabrics, and hands.

This remarkable new discovery is called OXYDOL. And you will find to your surprise that even your favorite soap—whether "granulated," bar or flake—is hopelessly out-of-date, compared to this new invention!

Women believed they had the fastest soap already. Then found it was slow, alongside OXYDOL. For OXYDOL utterly banishes boiling. It ends washboard scrubbing. It cuts soaking time to 15 minutes—thus gets clothes out far sooner

They believed they had the whitest washes they could possibly get. And are now amazed by washes 4 to 5 shades whiter than before.

By impartial scientific test, one washing with OXYDOL gets clothes whiter than 2 to 4 washes with other soaps. But that's not all!

You'll find clothes actually last longer. That delicate colors do not fade. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe.

And OXYDOL is easier on hands than any soap you've ever used. For no strong agents, no chemical bleaches are employed in OXYDOL. OXYDOL simply can't hurt anything clear water won't.

So, if you want a faster, easier wash—a whiter wash—a safer wash—use OXYDOL next washday! Its creamy, "free-acting" suds dissolve the dirt in 15 minutes. And use it alone. OXYDOL needs no help from other soaps—or from added water-softeners. The right amount of water-softener is already there, for OXYDOL is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it is sold.

With OXYDOL you'll do your wash safely in 25% to 40% less time. You'll use less soap, but you'll get a cleaner, sweeter-smelling wash than ever before! If you are not using OXYDOL now, we'll gladly see that you get a full-size 10c package, absolutely free. Enough for 2 full washes. Simply send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Box 1801, Dept. 70 Cincinnati, Ohio. A postcard will do.

ECONOMICAL

By actual test a regular 25c package of OXYDOL will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap—or 2 to 3 times as much flakes.
